HOMILIES.

And to be Read in every Parish-Church agreeably.

LONDON, Printed ANNO DOM. 1676.
AN ADMONITION TO ALL Ministers Ecclesiastical.

Or that the Lord doth require of his Servant, whom he hath set over his household to shew both faithfulness and prudence in his Office: it shall be necessary that ye above all other do behave yourselves most faithfully and diligently in your so great a Function: that is, apply, plainly, and distinctly to read the sacred Scriptures, diligently to instruct the youth in their Catechism, gravely and reverently to Minister his most holy Sacraments, prudently also to choose out such Homilies as be most meet for the time, and for the more agreeable instruction of the people committed to your charge, with such discretion, that where the Homily may appear too long for one reading, to divide the same to be read part in the forenoon, and part in the afternoon. And where it may so chance some one or other Chapter of the Old Testament to fall in order to be read upon the Sundays or Holy-days, which were better to be changed with some other of the New Testament of more edification, it shall be well done to spend your time to consider well of such Chapters before hand, whereby your prudence and diligence in your office may appear, so that your people may have cause to glorifie God for you, and be the readier to embrace your labours, to your better commendation, to the discharge of your Consciences and their own.

OF THE
Right Use of the Church or Temple of GOD, and of the Reverence due unto the same.

The First Chapter.

HEREAS there appeareth at these days great slackness and negligence of a great lot of people, in resorting to the Church, there to serve God their heavenly Father, according to their most bounden duty, as also much incomely and irreverent behaviour of many persons in the same when they be there assembled, and thereby may just fear a picture of the wrath of God, and his dreadful plagues hanging over our heads for our grievous offences in this behalf, amongst other many and great sins which we daily and hourly commit before the Lord.

Therefore for the discharge of all our consciences, and for the avoiding of the common peril and plague hanging over us, let us consider what may be laid out of God's holy Book concerning this matter, whereby I pray you give good audience, for that it is of great weight, and concerneth you all. Although the eternal and incomprehensible Majesty of God, the Lord of Heaven and Earth, whose seat is Heaven, and the Earth his footstool, cannot be included in Temples or Houses made with man's hand, as in dwelling places able to receive or contain his Majesty, according as is evidently declared by the Prophet Isiah, and by the doctrine of S. Stephen, and S. Paul in the Acts of the Apos-ties. And where King Solomon (who builded unto the Lord, the Acts 7. 17, most glorious Temple that ever was made) saith, Who shall be able; 2 Reg. 8. to build a meet or worthy house for him? if heaven, and the heavena, 2 Par. 2. dove all heavens cannot contain him: how much less can that which I and 6.
O.

have builded? And further confesseth; What am I, that I should be able to build thee an house, 0 Lord? But yet for this purpose only it is made, that thou mayst regard the prayer of thy servant, and his humble application. Much less then be our Churches meet dwelling places to receive the incomprehensible Majesty of God. And indeed, the chief and special temples of God, wherein he hath greatest pleasure, and most delighteth to dwell and continue in, are the bodies and minds of true Christians, and the chosen people of God, according to the Doctrine of the holy Scripture, declared in the first Epistle to the Corinthians. Know ye not (saith St. Paul) that ye be the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you? If any man defile the temple of God, him will God destroy. For the temple of God is holy, which ye are. And again in the same Epistle: Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost dwelling in you, whom ye have given you of God, and that ye be not your own? For ye are dearly bought. Glorify ye now therefore God in your body, and in your Spirit, which are Gods. And therefore as our Saviour Christ teacheth in the Gospel of Saint John, they that worship God the Father in spirit and truth, in what place soever they do it, worship him aright; for such worshippers both God the Father look for. For God is a Spirit, and those that worship him, must worship him in spirit and truth, saith our Saviour Christ. Yet all this notwithstanding, the material Church or temple is a place appointed as well by the usage and continual examples expressed in the Old Testament, as in the New, for the people of God to resort together unto, there to hear Gods holy Word, to call upon his holy Name, to give him thanks for his innumerable and unspeakable benefits bestowed upon us, and duly and truly to celebrate his holy Sacraments: (In the unfeigned doing and accomplishing of the which, standeth that true and right worshipping of God aforesaid) and the same Church or temple, is by the holy Scriptures, both of the Old Testament and New, called the House and temple of the Lord, (so the peculiar service there done to his Majesty by his people, and for the effectual presence of his heavenly Grace, wherewith be by his said holy Word endued his people thereto assembled. And to the said house or temple of God, at all times, by common order appointed, are all people that be godly indeed, bound with all diligence to resort, unless by sickness or other most urgent cause they be letted therefrom. And all the same to resorting thither, ought with all quietness and reverence there to behave themselves, in doing their bounden duty and service to Almighty God, in the Congregation of his Saints. All which things are evident to be proved by Gods holy Word, as hereafter shall plainly appear.

And first of all, I will declare by the Scriptures, that it is called (as it is indeed) the House of God, and temple of the Lord. He that sweareth by the temple (saith our Saviour Christ) sweareth by it, and him that dwelleth therein, meaning God the Father, which he also expresslyplainly in the Gospel of Saint John, saying: Do not make the House of my Father the House of merchandize. And in the book of the Psalms, the Prophet David faith, I will enter into thine House, I will worship in the holy temple, in thy fear. And it is almost in infinite places of the Scripture, especially in the Prophets and book of Psalms, called called the House of God, or House of the Lord. Sometimes it is named the Tabernacle of the Lord; and sometimes the Sanctuary, that is to say, the holy Place or House of the Lord. And it is likewise called the House of Prayer, as Solomon, who builded the Temple of the Lord Acts 12. declared in the first Epistle to the Corinthians, that the Church is

Acts 12. to be declared, that the Church of temple is the place where the lively

Acts 15. ye may fee the usage of reading the Scriptures of the old Testament

Of the right Use

It is written in the Stories of the Gospel in divers places, that Jesus went round about all Galilee, teaching in their Synagogues, and preaching the Gospel of the Kingdom of Heaven; In which places is his great diligence in continual preaching and teaching of the people most evidently set forth.

In Luke ye read, how Jesus according to his accustomed use came into the temple, and how the book of Isaiah the Prophet was delivered him, how he read a text therein, and made a Sermon upon the same.

And in the act. is expressed how he taught daily in the temple. And it is thus written in the 8th of John: Jesus came again early in the morning into the temple, and all the people came unto him, and he sat down and taught them. And in the 9th of John, our Saviour testifieth before Pilate, that he spake openly unto the world; and that he always taught in the Synagogue and in the temple, whither all the Jews resorted, and that secretly he spake nothing. And in Saint Luke: Jesus taught in the temple, and all the people came early in the morning unto him, that they might hear him in the temple.

Here ye see as well the diligence of our Saviour in teaching the word of God in the temple daily, and specially on the Sabbath days, as also the readiness of the people resorting altogether; and that early in the morning, into the temple to hear him.

The same example of diligence in preaching the word of God in the temple, shall ye find in the Apostles, and the people resorting unto them, Acts the first. Where the Apostles, although they had been whipped and scourged the day before, and by the High Priest commanded that they should preach no more in the Name of Jesus, yet the day following they entered early in the morning into the temple, and did not cease to teach and declare Jesus Christ. And in another place of the story of the Acts, ye shall find and like diligence both in the Apostles in teaching, and in the people in coming to the temple to hear God's Word. And it is testified in the 1st of Luke, that when Zachary the holy Priest, and father to John Baptist, did sacrifice within the temple, all the people stood without a long time praying, such was their zeal and fervency at that time.

And in the second of Luke appeared what great journeys men, women, young children took, to come to the temple on the Feast-day, there to serve the Lord, and specially the example of Joseph, the blessed Virgin Mary, mother to our Saviour Jesus Christ, and of our Saviour himself, being yet but a Child, whose examples are worthy for us to follow. So that if we would compare our negligence in resorting to the House of the Lord, there to serve him, with the diligence of the Jews in coming daily very early, sometimes by great journeys to their temple, and when the multitude could not be received within the temple, the fervent zeal that they had, was declared in standing long without praying: we may justly in this comparison condemn our slothfulness and negligence, men, plain contempt, in coming to the Lord's House, standing to hear unto us, to seldom, and scarcely at any time. So far is it from a great many of us to come early in the morning, or give attendance without, who disdain to come into the temple; and yet we abhor the very Name of the Jews when we hear it, as of a most wicked and ungodly people. But it is to be feared, that in this point we be far worse than the Jews, and that they shall else at the day of Judgment, to our condemnation, who in comparison to them, show such slackness and

and contempt in relating to the House of the Lord, there to serve him, accepting as we are of duty most bound. And besides this most horrible dread of God's just Judgment in the great day, we shall not in this life escape his heavy hand and vengeance for this contempt of the House of the Lord, and his due service in the tame, according as the Lord himself threateth in the first Chapter of the Prophet Aggæus, after this sort: Because you have left my House desolate and without company (faith the Lord) and ye have made haste every man to his own House, for this cause are the Heavens stayed over you, that they should give no dew, and the earth is forbidden that it shall not bring forth her fruit; I have called drought upon the earth, and upon the mountains, and upon cop, and upon wine, and upon oil, and upon all things that the earth bringeth forth, and upon men, and upon beasts, and upon all things that men's hands labour for. Behold, if we be such worshippers that we care not for the eternal Judgments of God (which yet of all other are most dreadful, and horrible) we shall not escape the punishment of God in this world by drought and famine, and the taking away of all worldly commodities, which we as worshippers seem only to regard and care for. Whereas on the contrary part, if we would amend this fault, of negligence, want of readiness and contempt of the House of the Lord, and his due Service there, and with diligence resort together, to serve the Lord with one accord and consent, in all holiness and righteousness before him, we have promises of benefits both heavenly and worldly. Wherefore two or three be gathered in my Name faith our Saviour Christ there am I in the midst of them. And what can be more blessed, than to have our Saviour Christ among us? Or what again can be more unhappy or unmerciful than to drive our Saviour Christ from among us, to leave a place for his and our most ancient and mortal enemy the old Dragon and serpent, Satan the devil, in the midst of us?

In the second of Luke it is written, how that the mother of Christ and Joseph, when they had long sought Christ, whom they had lost, and could find him no where, that at the last they found him in the temple, sitting in the midst of the Doctors. So if we lack Jesus Christ, that is to say, the Saviour of our souls and bodies, we shall not find him in the market-place, or in the Guild-hall, much less in the ale-house or Tavern, amongst good fellows (as they call them) so long as we shall find him in the temple, the Lords House, amongst the Teachers and Preachers of his Word, where indeed he is to be found. And as concerning worldly commodities, we have a sure promise of our Saviour Christ: Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and the righteousness thereof, and all these things shall withal be given unto you. And thus we have in the first part of this保利 declared by God's Word, that the Temple or Church is the House of the Lord, for that the Service of the Lord (as teaching and hearing of his holy Word, calling upon his holy Name, giving thanks to him for his great and innumerable benefits, and due ministering of his Sacraments) is there used. And it is likewise declared by the Scriptures, how all godly and Christian men and women ought at times appointed, with diligence to resort unto the House of the Lord, there to serve him, and to glorifie him, as he is most worthy, and we most bound, to whom be all glory and honour without end. Amen.

The

The Second Part of the Homily of the right Use of the Church.

It was declared in the first part of this Homily, by God's Word, that the Temple or Church is the House of the Lord, for that the Service of the Lord (as teaching and hearing of His Word, calling upon His Holy Name, giving thanks to Him for his great and innumerable benefits, and due ministering of the Sacraments) is there used. And it is like wise already declared by the Scriptures, how all godly and Christian men and women, ought at times appointed, with diligence to resort unto the House of the Lord, there to serve him, and to glorify him, as he is most worthy, and we most bounden.

Now it remained in this second part of the Homily concerning the right use of the Temple of God, to be likewise declared by God's Word, with what quietness, silence, and reverence, those that resort to the House of the Lord, ought there to use and behave themselves.

It may teach us sufficiently how well it doth become us Christian men reverently to use the Church and holy House of our prayers, by considering in how great reverence and veneration the Jews in the old law had their Temple, which appeareth by many places, whereof I will note unto you certain. In the xxv. of Matthew, it is said to our Saviour Christ's charge before a Temporal Judge, as a matter worthy of death, by the two false witnesses, that he had said, he could destroy the Temple, of God, and in three days build it again, not doubting but if they might make men to believe that he had said any thing against the honour and majesty of the Temple, he should seem to all men most worthy of death. And in the xxi. of the Acts, when the Jews sought Paul in the Temple, they laid hands upon him, crying, Ye men Jews, help, this is he that teacheth all men everywhere against the people and the law, and against this place: believe that, he hath brought the Gentiles into the Temple, and hath profaned this holy place. Behold how they took it for a like offence to speak against the Temple of God, as to speak against the Law of God, and how they judged it convenient, that none but godly persons and the true worshippers of God, should enter into the Temple of God. And the same fault is laid to Paul's charge by Tertullus an eloquent man, and by the Jews in the xxvi. of the Acts, before a Temporal Judge, as a matter worthy of death, that he went about to pollute the Temple of God. And in the xxvii. of Matthew, when the chief Priests had received again the pieces of silver of Judas, they said, It is not lawful to put them into Corban (which was the treasure house of the Temple) because it is the price of blood. So that they could not abide that not only any unclean person, but also any other dead thing that was judged unclean, should once enter into the Temple or any place thereto belonging. And to this end is S. Pauls laying in the second Epistle to the Corinthians, the vi. Chapter to be applied: What fellowship is there betwixt righteousness and unrighteousness? or what communion between light and darkness? or what concord between Christ and Belial? or what part can the faithful have

have with the unfaithful? or what agreement can there be between the temple of God and images? Which sentence, although it be chiefly referred to the temple of the mind of the soul; yet being that the similitude and pitch of the argument is taken from the material temple, it enforced that no ungodliness, specially of images or idols, may be suffered in the temple of God, which is the place of worshipping God: and therefore can no more be suffered to stand there, than light can agree with darkness, or Christ with Belial; for that the true worshipping of God, and the worshipping of images, are most contrary. And the setting of them up in the place of worshipping, may give great occasion to the worshipping of them. But to turn to the reverence that the Jews had to their temple. You will say that they honoured it superstitiously, and a great deal too much, crying out, The temple of the Lord, the temple of the Lord, being notwithstanding most wicked in life, and be therefore most justly reproved of Jeremiah the Prophet of the Lord. Truth it is that they were superstitiously given to the honouring of their temple. But I would we were not as far too short from the due reverence of the Lord's house, as they overshot themselves therein. And if the Prophet justly reprehended them, hearken also what the Lord requireth at our hands, that we may know whether we be blame-worthy or no.

It is written in Ecclesiastes the fourth Chapter: \textbf{When thou hast entered into the house of God (faith he) take heed to thy feet, draw near that thou mayest hear: for obedience is much more than the sacrifice of fools, which know not what evil they do. Speak nothing rashly there, neither let thine heart be lifted up to utter words before God. For God is in heaven, and thou art upon the Earth, therefore let thy words be few. Note (wellbeloved) what quietness in gesture and behaviour, what silence in talk and words, is required in the house of God, \textit{for so he calleth it}; see whether they take heed to their feet, as they be here warned, which never cease from uncomely walking and setting up and down, and overthrow the Church, shewing an evident signification of notable contempt, both of God, and all good men there present: and what heed they take to their tongues and speech, which do not only speak words swiftly and rashly before the Lord (which they be here rebuked) but also oftentimes speak f familiarly, covetously, and ungodly, talking of matters scarce honest or fit for the holy house of public assembly, in the house of the Lord, little considering that they speak before God, who dwelleth in Heaven (as is here declared) when they do but remember here creeping upon the earth, in comparison to his eternal Majesty, and less regarding that they must give an account at the great day of every idle word whereforessoever it be spoken, much more of filthy, unclean, or wicked words spoken in the Lord's house, to the great disdaining of his Majesty, and offence of all that hear them. And indeed concerning the people and multitude, the temple is prepared for them to be hearers, rather than speakers, considering that as well the word of God is there read or taught, whereunto they are bound to give diligent ear, with all reverence and silence, as also that Common Prayer and Thanksgiving are rehearsed and said by the Publick Minister in the name of the people and the whole multitude present, whereunto they giving their ready audience, should attend and say, Amen, as S. Paul teacheth in the first Epistle to the Corinthians. And in another place, glorifying God with one spirit and mouth: which cannot be when every man

man and woman in several persecutions of devotion prayeth privately, one asking another, giving thanks, another reading doctrine, and not regarding to hear the Common prayer of the Minister. And peculiarly, what due reverence is to be used in the ministering of the Sacraments in the Temple, the same S. Paul teacheth to the Corinthians, rebuking such as did unceremoniously use themselves in that behalf. Have ye not houses to eat and drink in (faith he)? Do ye despise the Church of Congregatiun of God? What shall I say unto you? Shall I praise you? In this I praise you not. And God requireth not only this outward reverence of behaviour and silence in his house, but inward reverence in cleansing the thoughts of our hearts, threatening by his Prophet Osee in the ir. Chapter, that for the malice of the inventions and devices of the people, he will cast them out of his house: whereby is also signified the eternal casting of them out of his heavenly House and Kingdom, which is most horrid. And therefore in the ir. of Leviticus God saith, Fear you with reverence my Sanctuary, for I am the Lord. And according to the same the Prophet David saith, I will enter into thine house, I will worship in thy holy Temple in thy fear: showing what inward reverence and humbleness of mind the godly man ought to have in the House of the Lord. And to allege somewhat concerning this matter out of the new Testament, in what honour God would have his House or Temple kept, and that by the example of our Saviour Christ, whose authority ought of good reason with all true Christians to be of most weight and estimation. It is written of all the four Evangelists, as a notable act, and worthy to be testified by many holy witnesses, how that our Saviour Jesus Christ, that merciful and mild Lord, compared for his meekness to a sheep suffering with silence his sheete to be torn from him, and to a Lamb led without resistance to the slaughter, which gave his Body to them that did slay him, answered not him that reviled, nor turned away his face from them that did reproach him and spit upon him, and according to his own example, gave precepts of mildness and subserviency to his Disciples: Yet when he seeth the Temple and holy House of his heavenly Father despoiled, polluted, and profaned, with great severity and sharpness, overturned the Tables of the Exchangers, subverted the seats of them that sold Doles, made a whip of Cords, and drove out those wicked adulterers and profaners of the Temple of God, saying, By House shall be called the House of Prayer, but he have made it a den of Thieves. And in the second of John, Do not ye make the House of my Father, the House of Merchandise. For as it is the House of God, when God’s service is duly done in it: So when we wickedly abuse it with wicked talk or covetous bargaining, we make it a den of thieves, or an house of merchandise. Pea, and such reverence would Christ should be therein, that he would not suffer any defile to be carried through the Temple. And whereas our Saviour Christ (as is before mentioned out of S. Luke) could be found no where (when he was taught) but only in the Temple amongst the Doctors, and now again he exercised his Authority and Jurisdiction, not in Castles and Princely Palaces amongst Stewards, but in the Temple: He may hereby understand in what place his Spiritual Kingdom (which he denoteth to be of this world) is fittest to be found, and best to be known of all places in this world. And according to this example of our Saviour Christ in the primitive Church, which was most holy and godly, and in the

the which due discipline with severity was used against the wicked, open offenders were not suffered once to enter into the House of the Lord, nor admitted to common prayer, and the use of the holy Sacraments with other true Christians, until they had done open penance before the whole Church. And this was practise, not only upon mean persons, but also upon the rich, noble, and mighty persons, even upon Theodosius, that puissant and mighty Emperor, whom, for committing a grievous and wilful murder, St. Ambrose Bishop of Milan reproved sharply, and did also excommunicate the said Emperor, and brought him to open penance. And they that were by justly excommunicated (as was done) from the House of the Lord, were taken (as they be indeed) for such as were cut off and separated from Christ's Church, and in most dangerous estate, even as Paul saith*, even given unto Satan the devil for a time, and their company was shunned and abhorred of all godly men and women, until such time as they by repentance and public penance were reconciled. Such was the honour of the Lord's House in men's hearts, and outward reverence also at that time, and so terrible a thing was it to be shut out of the Church and House of the Lord in those days, when Religion was most pure, and nothing to corrupt as it hath been of late days, and yet we willingly, either by abjuring our selves from the House of the Lord, or (as it were) recommunicating ourselves from the Church and fellowship of the Saints of God, or else coming thither, by uncomely and unbecoming behaviour there, by hath, rash, and uncertain and wicked thoughts and words before the Lord our God, highly dishonour his holy House the Church of God, and his holy Name and Majesty, to the great danger of our souls, and certain damnation also, if we do not speedily and earnestly repent us of this wickedness.

Thus ye have heard (hearsely beloved) out of God's word, what reverence is due to the holy House of the Lord, how all godly persons ought with diligence at times appointed thither to repair, how they ought to behave themselves there, with reverence and dread before the Lord, what plagues and punishments, as well temporal, as eternal, the Lord in his holy word threatens, as well as eternal as to come to his holy House, as also to those who coming thither, do unbecomingly by gesture or talk there behave themselves. Therefore if we desire to have reasonable weather, and thereby to enjoy the good fruits of the earth, if we will avoid drought and barrenness, thirst and hunger, which are plagues threatened unto such as make haste to go to their own houses, to Ale-houses and Taverns, and leave the House of the Lord empty and desolate, if we abhor to be scourged, not with whips made of cords, out of the material temple only as our Saviour Christ fled the defilers of the House of God in Jerusalem; but also to be beaten and driven out of the eternal temple and House of the Lord (which is his Heavenly Kingdom) with the iron rod of everlasting damnation, and cast into utter darkness, where is weeping and gnashing of teeth, if we Eph. 3: fear, dread, and abhor this. For we have most just cause to do, then let us amend this negligence and contempt in coming to the House of the Lord, this our unbecoming behaviour in the House of the Lord, and refraining thither diligently together, let us there with reverence hearing of the Lord's holy word, calling on the Lord's holy Name, giving of hearty thanks unto the Lord for his manifold and inestimable benefits daily and hourly bestowed upon us, celebrating also reverently

AGAINST

Peril of Idolatry, and superfluous decking of Churches.

The First Part.

In what points the true ornaments of the Church or Temple of God do consist and stand, hath been declared in the two last Homilies, treating of the right use of the Temple or House of God, and of the due reverence that all our true Christian people are bound to give unto the same. The sum whereof is, that the Church or House of God is a place appointed by the holy Scriptures, where the liberty of God ought to be read, taught, and heard, the Lords holy Name called upon by publick Prayer, hearty thanks given to his Majesty for his infinite and unspeakable benefits bestowed upon us, his holy Sacraments duly and reverently ministered, and that therefore all that be godly indeed, ought both with diligence at times appointed, to repair together to the said Church, and there with all reverence to use and behave themselves before the Lord. And that the said Church thus godly used by the Servants of the Lord, in the Lords true service, for the effectual presence of Gods grace, whereby he both by his holy word and promises, endure his people there present and assembled, to the attainment, as well of commodities worldly, necessary for us, as also of all heavenly gifts, and life everlasting, is called by the word of God (as it is indeed) the temple of the Lord, and the House of God, and that therefore the due reverence thereof, is starded up in the hearts of the godly, by the consideration of these true ornaments of the said House of God, and not by any outward ceremonies of costly and glorious decking of the said House or Temple of the Lord, contrary to the which most manifest doctrine of the Scriptures, against peril of Idolatry.

and contrary to the usage of the Primitive Church, which was most pure and uncorrupt, and contrary to the sentences and judgments of the most ancient, learned and godly Doctors of the Church (as hereafter shall appear) the corruption of these latter dates hath brought into the Church infinite multitudes of images, and the same, with other parts of the temple also, have been decked with gold and silver, painted with colours, set them with stone and pearl, clothed them with silks and precious stones, sanctuary untenably that to be the chief decking and adornment of the temple of our Lord God, and that all people should be the more moved to the due reverence of the same, if all corners thereof were glorious, and glittering with gold and precious stones. Whereas indeed they by the said images, and such glorious decking of the temple, have nothing at all profited such as were wise and of understanding; but have thereby greatly hurt the simple and unwise, occasioning them thereby to commit most horrid idolatry. And the covetous perjurers, by the same occasion, seeming to worship and pray in the adoration of images, have beenconstituted, and so the people have been led away, and so the whole matter concluded. But let any person take occasion by the way, of doubting by words or names, it is thought good here to note first of all, that although in common speech we use to call the likenesses of similitudes of men or other things images, and not idols, yet the Scriptures use the said two words (images and idols) indiscriminately for one thing only. They be words of divers tongues and sounds, but one in sense and significations in the Scriptures. The one is taken of the Greek word Φιλοι, an Idol, and the other of the Latin word Imago, an Image, and so both used as English terms in the translating of Scriptures indiscriminately, according as the Septuaginta have in their translation in Greek Φιλοι, and S. Jerome in his translation of the same places in Latin hath simulacra, in English, Images. And in the new Testament, that which S. John calleth Φιλοι, S. Jerome likewise translated simulacrum, as in all other like places of Scripture usually he both do translate. And Terrillan, a most ancient Doctor, and well learned in both the tongues, Greek and Latin, interpreting this place of S. John, Beware of Φιλοι, that is to say (faith Terrillan) of the images themselves: the Latin words which he useth, be Effiges and Imago, that is to say, an Image. And therefore it skilleth not, whether in this pieces we use the one term or the other, or both together, seeing they both (though not in common English speech, yet in Scripture) signify onething. And though some to blind mens eyes, have heretofore hastily gone about to make them to be taken for words of divers significations in matters of Religion, and have theretofore usually named P 2

the likeness or similitude of a thing set up amongst the Heathen in their temples, or other places to be worshipped, an Idol. But the like similitude with us, let up in the Church, the place of worshipping, they call an Image, as though these two words (Idol and Image) in Scripture, did differ in propriety and sense, which (as is before laid) differ only in sound and language, and in meaning be indeed all one, especially in the Scriptures and matters of Religion. And our Images also have been, and be, and if they be publicly ushered in Churches and Temples, ever will be also, worshipped, and to Idolatry committed to them, as in the last part of this Homily Hall at large be declared and proved. Wherefore our Images in temples and Churches, be indeed none other but Idols, as unto the which Idolatry hath been, is, and ever will be committed.

And first of all, the Scriptures of the Old Testament, condemning and abhorring as well all Idolatry or worshipping of Images, as also the very Idols or Images themselves, especially in temples, are so many and plentiful, that it were almost an infinite work, and to be contained in no small volume, to recopy all the places concerning the same. For when God had chosen to himself a peculiar and special people from amongst all other Nations that knew not God, but worshipped idols and false gods, he gave unto them certain ordinances and laws to be kept and observed of his said people. But concerning none other matter did he give either more, or more earnest and express Laws to his said people, than those that concerned the true worshipping of him; and the avoiding and seeing of Idols and images, and idolatry: for that, both the said idolatry is most repugnant to the right worshipping of him and his true glory, above all other vices, and that he knew the proneness and inclination of many corrupt kind and nature, to that most odious and abominable vice. Of the which Ordinances and Laws, so given by the Lord to his people concerning this matter, I will rehearse and allege some that be most special for this purpose, that you by them may judge of the rest.

In the fourth Chapter of the Book named Deuteronomy, is a notable place, and most worthy with all diligence to be marked, which begins thus: And now Israel, hear the Commandments and Judgments which I teach thee (faith the Lord) that thou doing them, mayst live; and enter and possess the Land which the Lord God of your Fathers will give you. Ye shall put nothing to the word which I speak to you, neither shall ye take any thing from it. Keep ye the Commandments of the Lord your God, which I command you. And by and by, after he repeated the same sentence three or four times, before he came to the matter that he would specially warn them of, as it were for a Preface, to make them to take the better heed unto it. Take heed to thy self (faith he) and to thy soul, with all carefulness, lest thou forget the things which thine eyes have seen, and that they go not out of thine heart all the days of thy life, that thou mayst teach them to thy Children and Sons, to be diligent to observe all the commandments of the Lord, which I command thee this day. And shortly after, the Lord spake unto you out of the middle of fire, but ye heard the voice of the Lord, and the voice of his words, but ye saw no manner of image in the day in which the Lord spake unto you in Horeb, out of the midst of the fire, lest peradventure you being

ing deceived, shoul make to your selves any graven image, or likeness of man or woman, or the likeness of any beast which is upon the Earth, or of the birds that fere under Heaven, or of any creeping thing that is moved on the Earth, or of the fishes that do continue in the waters; lest you adventure you lifting up thine eyes to Heaven, do see the Sun and the Moon, and the Stars of Heaven, and to thou, being deceived by error, shouldst honour and worship them which the Lord thy God hath created to serve all Nations that be under Heaven. And again; Beware that thou forget not the Covenant of the Lord thy God, which he made with thee, and to make to thyself any carved image of them which the Lord hath forbidden to be made: for the Lord thy God is a consuming fire, and a jealous God. If you have Children and Nephews, do tarry in the Land, and being deceived, do make to your selves any similitude, doing evil before the Lord your God, and provoke him to anger: I do this day call upon Heaven and Earth to witness, that ye shall quickly perish out of the Land which ye shall possess, you shall not dwell in it any long time, but the Lord will destroy you, and will scatter you amongst all Nations, and ye shall remain but a very few amongst the Nations, whither the Lord will lead you away, and then shall you serve gods which are made with mans hands, of wood and stone, which see not, and hear not, neither eat not smell, and so forth. This is a notable Chapter, and treated almost altogether of this matter. But because it is too long to write out the whole, I have noted you certain principal points out of it. First, how earnestly and oft he calleth upon them to mark and to take heed, and that upon the peril of their souls, to the charge which he giveth them. Then how he forbidden by a solemn and long reheartial of all things in Heaven, in Earth, and in the water, any image or likeness of any thing at all to be made. Thirdly, what penalty and horrible destruction, he solemnly, with invocation of Heaven and Earth, for recopy, denounced and threatneth to them, their children and posterity, if they, contrary to this Commandment, do make or worship any images or similitude, which he strictly hath forbidden. And when they, this notwithstanding, partly by inclination of man corrupt nature, most prone to idolatry, and partly occasioned by the Gentiles and Heathen people dwelling about them, who were idolaters, did fall to the making and worshipping of images: God according to his word, brought upon them all those plagues which he threatened them with, as appeared in the Books of the Kings and the Chronicles, in sundry places at large. And agreeable herunto are many other notable places in the Old Testament, Deuteronomy 27. Curved be he that maketh a carved image, or a cast of molten image, which is abomination before the Lord, the work of the Artificers hand, and setteth it up in a secret corner, and all the people shall say, Amen.

Read the thirteenth and fourteenth Chapters of the Book of Wiel, concerning Idols or Images, how they be made, set up, called upon, and offered unto, and how he passeth the tree whereof the gibbet is made, as happy, in comparison to the tree that an image of idol is made of, even by these very words, Happy is the tree whereon Righteousness cometh (meaning the gibbet) but cursed is the Idol that is made with hanging, pea, both it, and he that made it, and so forth. And by and by he sheweth, how that the things which were the good creatures of
of God before (as trees or stones) when they be once altered and fashioned into images to be worshipped, become abomination, a temptation unto the souls of men, and a snare for the feet of the unwise. And why? the seeking out of Images, is the beginning of wisdom (faith he) and the bringing up of them, is the destruction of life: for they were not from the beginning, neither shall they continue forever. The wealthy idlets of men hath found them out upon Earth, therefore shall they come short to an end: and so forth to the end of the Chapter, containing these points, How idols of images were first invented, and offered unto, how by an ungracious custom they were established, how priests compel men to worship them, how the ignorant and the common people are deceived by the cunning of the workman, and the beauty of the image, to do honour unto it, and so to err from the knowledge of God, and of other great and many mischiefs that come by images. And for a conclusion he saith, that the honouring of abominable images, is the cause, the beginning, and end of all evil, and that the worshippers of them be either mad, or most wicked. See and view the whole Chapter with diligence, for it is worthy to be well considered, specially that is written of the deceiving of the simple and unwise common people by idols and images, and repeated twice or thrice, lest it should be forgotten. And in the Chapter following be these words: The painting of the picture and carved image with divers colours, enticed the ignorant so, that he honoured and loveth the picture of a dead image that hath no soul. Nevertheless, they that love such evil things, they that trust in them, they that make them, they that favour them, and they that honour them, are all worthy of death, and so forth.

In the Book of Psalms, the Prophet cureth the image honours, in divers places. Confounded be all they that worship carved images, and that delight of glory in them. Like be they unto the images that make them, and all they that put their trust in them.

And in the Prophet Isaiah, saith the Lord: even I am the Lord, and this is my Name, and my glory will I give to none other, neither my honour to graven images. And by and by; Let them be confounded with shame that trust in idols or images, or say to them, you are our Gods: And in the 1st Chapter after he hath set forth the incomprehensible Majesty of God, he asketh, To whom then will ye make God like? Or what finitude will ye set up unto him? Shall the carver make him a carved Image? and shall the Goldsmith cover him with gold, and cast him into a form of silver plates? And for the poor man, shall the Image maker frame an Image of timber, that he may have somewhat to set up also? And after this he explytly saith: O ye merchants, hear ye never of this? Hath it not been preached unto you since the beginning, and so forth, how by the Creation of the world, and the greatness of the work, They might understand the Majesty of God, the Creator and Maker of all, to be greater than that it should be explyted, or set forth in any image of bodily finitude? And besides this preaching, even in the Law of God written with his own finger (as the Scripture speaketh) and that in the first Table, and the beginning thereof, is this doctrine aspealed against Images (not briefly touched) but at large set forth and preached, and that with denunciation of destruction to the contemners and breakers of this Law, and their posterity after them.

them. And lest it should yet not be marked or not remembered, the same is written and reported not in one, but in sundry places of the Word of God, that by oft hearing and reading of it, we might once learn and remember it, as you also hear daily read in the Church, God spake these words, and said, I am the Lord thy God. Thou shalt have none other Gods but me. Thou shalt not make to thyself any graven Image, nor the likeness of any thing that is in Heaven above, nor in the Earth beneath, nor in the Water under the Earth, thou shalt not bow down to them, nor worship them: For the Lord thy God is a jealous God, and visiteth the iniquity of the fathers upon the children, unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate me, and shew mercy unto thousands in them that love me, and keep my Commandments. All this notwithstanding, neither could the notabilities of the place, being the very beginning of the loving Lord's Law, make us to mark it, nor the plain declaration by recounting of all kind of similitudes, cause us to understand it, nor the oft repeating and reporting of it in divers and sundry places, the oft reading and hearing of it, could cause us to remember it, nor the dread of the horrible penalty in our fathers, our children's posterity after us, fright us from transgressing of it, nor the greatness of the reward to us and our children after us, move us any thing to obedience, and the observing of this the Lord's great Law: But as though it had been written in some corner, and not at large expressed, but briefly and obscurely touched, as though no penalty to the transgressors, nor reward to the obedient, had been adjointed unto it, like blind men without all knowledge and understanding, like unreasonable Beasts, without dread of punishment or respect of reward, have diminished and dishonoured the high Majesty of the living God, by the baseness and vileness of sundry and divers Images of dead Stocks, Stones, and Metals. And as the Majesty of God, whom we have left, forsaken, and dishonoured, and therefore the greatness of our sin and offence against his Majesty, cannot be exprest; so is the weakness, vileness, and foolishness, in devise of the Images (whereby we have dishonoured him) expressed at large in the Scriptures, namely the Psalms, the book of Wisdom, the Prophet Isaiah, Ezekiel, and Baruch, especially in those places and Chapters of them: Psalm Cxx, and Cxxii. Isai. xlv. and xlix. Ezekiel vi. Wisdom xil. cxlv. against Idolatry or Images.

God, who alone is able both to save his servants, and to destroy his enemies everlastingly. They be trimly deckt in Gold, Silver, and Stone, as well the images of men, as of women, like wanton venches (as the Prophet Baruch) that love paramours, and therefore can they not teach us, nor our wives and daughters any sobberness, modesty, and chastity. And therefore although it is now commonly said that they be the Lap-mens books, yet we fee they teach no good lesson, neither of God, nor godliness, but all error and wickedness. Therefore God by his word, as he forbiddest any idols or images to be made or let up, so both he command such as we find made and let up to be pulled down, broken, and destroyed.

Numb. 23. And it is written in the Book of Numbers, the eighth Chapter, that there was no idol in Jacob, nor there was no image seen in Israel, and that the Lord God was with the people. Where note, that the true Israelites, that is, the people of God, have no images among them, but that God was with them, and that therefore their enemies cannot hurt them, as appeared in the process of that Chapter. And as concerning images already set up, thus saith the Lord in Deuteronomy: Overturn their altars, and break them to pieces, cut down their grooves, burn their images; for thou art an holy people unto the Lord. And the same is repeated more vehemently again in the twelfth Chapter of the same Book. Here note, what the people of God ought to do to images, where they find them. But lest any private persons, upon colour of destroying images, should make any evil or disturbance in the Commonwealth, it must always be remembered, that the rejections of such publick ennuities pertaineth to the Magistrates, and such as be in authority only, and not to private persons, and therefore the good Kings of Juda, Asa, Ezechias, Josaphat, and Josias, are highly commended for the breaking down and destroying of the altars, idols, and images. And the Scriptures declare that they, specially in that point, did that which was right before the Lord. And contrariwise, Jeroboam, Achab, Joas, and other Princes, which either set up, or suffered such altars or images destroyed, are by the word of God reproved to have done evil before the Lord. And if any, contrary to the Commandment of the Lord, will needs set up such altars or images, or suffer them undestroyed amongst them, the Lord himself threateneth in the first Chapter of the Book of Numbers, and by his holy Prophets Ezekiel, Micheas, and Abakuk, that he will come himself and pull them down. And how he will handle, punish, and destroy the people that set up, or suffer such altars, images, or idols undestroyed, he denounceth by his Prophet Ezechiel on this manner: I my self (saith the Lord) will bring a sword over you, to destroy your high places, I will cast down your altars, and break down your images, your vain men will I lay before your gods, and the dead carcases of the children of Israel will I cast before their idols, your bones will I strew round about your altars and dwelling places, your Cities shall be desolate, the hill Chappells laid waste, your altars destroyed and broken, your gods cast down and taken away, your temples laden even with the ground, your own works clean rooted out, your vain men shall be among you, that ye may learn to know how that I am the Lord, and to 20th to the Chapters end, worship with diligence to be read: that they that be near, shall perish with the sword, they that be far off, with the pestilence, they that are into hounds or wildernes, with hunger:

hunger: and if any be yet left, that they shall be carried away prisoners to servitude and bondage. So that if either the multitude, or plaintexts of the places might make us to understand, or the earnest charge that God giveth in the said places, more us to regard, or the horrible plagues, punishments, and dreadful destruction, threatened to such worshippers of images or idols, letters up, or maintainers of them, might engender any fear in our hearts, we would once leave and forsake this wickedness, being in the Lord's sight to great an offence and abomination. Infinite places almost might be brought out of the Scriptures of the Old Testament concerning this matter, but these few at this time shall serve for all.

You will say, peradventure, these things pertain to the Jews, what have we to do with them? Indeed they pertain no less to us Christians, than to them. For if we be the people of God, how can the Lord and Law of God not appertain to us? Saint Paul affirming one text out of the Old Testament, concluded generally for other Scriptures of the Old Testament as well as that, saying, Whatsoever is written before (meaning in the Old Testament) is written for our instruction: which sentence is most specially true of such writings of the Old Testament, as contain the immutable law and ordinances of God, in no age or time to be altered, nor of any persons of any nations or age to be disobeyed, such as the above rehearsed places be. Notwithstanding, for your further satisfying herein, according to my promise, I will out of the Scriptures of the New Testament or Gospel of our Saviour Christ, likewise make a confirmation of the said doctrine against idols or images, and of our duty concerning the same. First the Scriptures of the new Testament do in sundry places make mention with rejoicing, as for a most excellent benefit and gift of God, that they which received the Faith of Christ, were turned from their dumb and dead images, unto the true and living God, who is to be blessed for ever: namely in these places, the first, and second, of the Acts of the Apostles, the eleventh to the Romans, and the first Epistle to the Corinthians, the eleventh Chapter to the Galatians, the fourth, and the first to the Thessalonians the first Chapter.

And likewise the said idols, images, and worshipping of them, are in the Scriptures of the new Testament by the Spirit of God much abhorred and detested, and earnestly forbidden, as appear both in the forenamed places, and also many other besides, as in the seventh and sixteenth of the Acts of the Apostles, the first to the Romans, where is it said in the horrible plague of idolaters, given over by God unto a reprobate lite to work all wickedness and abominations not to be spoken, as usually spiritual and carnal corruption go together.

In the first Epistle to the Corinthians, the fifth Chapter, we are forbidden once to keep company, or to eat and drink with such as be called brethren of Christians, that do worship images. In the fifth to the Galatians, the worshipping of images is numbered amongst the works of the flesh: and in the fifth to the Corinthians, the tenth, it is said the service of Devils, and that such as use it, shall be destroyed. And in the sixth Chapter of the said Epistle, and the fifth to the Galatians, is denounced, that such Image-worshippers shall never come into the inheritance of the Kingdom of Heaven. And in sundry other places is threatened, that the wrath of God shall come upon all such. And therefore St. John in John 5. his Epistle exhorteth us to his dear Children, to beware of images. And Saint Paul warneth us to flee from the worshipping of them, 1 Cor. 10.
be wise, that is to say, if we care for health, and fear destruction, if we regard the Kingdom of God, and life everlasting, and dread the wrath of God, and everlasting damnation. For it is not possible that we should be worshippers of images, and the true Servants of God also, as St. Paul teacheth, in the second to the Corinthians, the sixth Chapter, affirming expressly that there can be no more consent or agreement betwixt the temple of God (which all true Christians be) and images, than between righteous souls and unrighteous souls, between light and darkness, between the faithful and the unfaithful, or between Christ and the Devil. Which place enforceth both that we should not worship images, and that we should not have images in the temple, for fear and occasion of worshipping them, though they be of themselves things indifferent: for the Christian is the holy temple and lively image of God, as the place well declareth, to such as will read and weigh it. And whereas all godly men did ever abhor that any kneeling and worshipping of offering should be used to themselves when they were alive (for that it was the honour due to God only) as appeareth in the Acts of the Apostles by St. Peter forbidding it to Cornelius: and by St. Paul and Barnabas, forbidding the same to the Citizens in Lystra: yet we like mad men fall down before the head idols of images of Peter and Paul, and give that honour to stocks and stones, which they thought abominable to be given to themselves being alive. And the good Angel of God, as appeareth in the book of St. John Revelation, refused to be kneeld unto, when that honour was offered him of John: Beware (saith the Angel) that thou do it not, for I am thy fellow Servant. But the evil Angel, Satan, deserveth nothing so much as to be kneeld unto, and thereby at once both to rob God of his due honour, and to work the damnation of such as make him to low courtesse, as in the story of the Gospel appeareth in sundry places. Ye, and he offered our Saviour Christ all earthly goods, on the condition that he would kneel down and worship him. But our Saviour repelleth Satan by the Scriptures, saying, It is written, thou shalt worship thy Lord God, and him alone shalt thou serve. But we by not worshipping and serving God alone (as the Scriptures teach us) and by worshipping of images, contrary to the Scriptures, pluck Satan to us, and are ready without reward to follow his desire: yea, rather than fail, we will offer him gifts and oblations to receive our service. But let us brethren rather follow the counsel of the good Angel of God, than the suggestion of subtil Satan, that wicked Angel and old Serpent, who, according to the pride whereby he first fell, attempts always by such knowledge to deprive God (whom he envieth) of his due honour: and (because his own face is horrible and ugly) to convey it to himself by the mediation of gilt stocks and stones, and withal to make us the enemies of God, and his own suppliants and slaves, and in the end to procure us for a reward, everlasting destruction and damnation. Therefore above all things, if we take our selves to be Christians indeed (as we be named) let us credit the Word, obey the Law, and follow the doctrine and example of our Saviour and Father Christ, repelling Satan's suggestion to idolatry, and worshipping of images, according to the truth alleged and taught out of the Testament and Gospel of our laid heavenly Doctor and Schoolmaster Jesus Christ, who is God to be blessed for ever. Amen.

The Second Part of the Homily against peril of Idolatry.

We have heard (well-beloved) in the first part of this Homily, the doctrine of the word of God against idols and images, against Idolatry, and worshipping of images, taken out of the Scriptures of the Old Testament and the New, and confirmed by the examples as well of the Apostles as of our Saviour Christ himself. Now although our Saviour Christ taketh not, yea neither of not any testimony of men, and that which is once confirmed by the certainty of his eternal truth, hath no more need of the confirmation of men's doctrine and writings, than the bright Sun at noon-tide hath need of the light of a little candle to put away darkness, and to increase his light: yet for your further content, it shall in this second part be declared (as in the beginning of the first part was promised) that this truth and doctrine concerning the forbidding of images and worshipping of them, taken out of the holy Scriptures, as well of the Old Testament as the New, was believed and taught of the old holy Fathers, and most ancient learned Doctors, and received in the old primitive Church, which was most uncorrupt and pure. And this declaration shall be made out of the said holy Doctors own writings, and out of the ancient Histories Ecclesiastical to the same belonging.

Tertullian, a most ancient Writer and Doctor of the Church, who lived about one hundred and threescore years after the death of our Saviour, our Christ, both inunny other places of his works, and specially in his book written against the manner of crowning, and in another little tract, entituled, Of the foulcers crown or garland, both most sharply and vehemently wrote and inveigh against images of idols. And upon St. John's words, the first Epistle and fifth Chapter, faith thus, Saint John (faith he) deeply considering the matter, faith, My little children, keep your selves from images of idols. He faith not now, keep your selves from Idolatry, as it were from the service and worshipping of them; but from the images of idols themselves, that is, from the very shape and likeness of them. For it were an unworthy thing, that the image of the living God should become the image of a dead idol. Do you not think those persons which place images and idols in Churches and temples, yea, sit on them even over the Lord's table, even as it were of purpose to the worshipping and honouring of them, take good heed either to Saint John's counsel, or Tertullian's? For so to place images and idols, is it to keep themselves from them, or else to receive and embrace them?

Origen in his Book against Celsus, faith thus: Christian men and Jews, when they hear these words of the Law (Thou shalt fear the Lord thy God, and shalt not make any image) do not only abhor the temples, altars, and images of the gods, but if need be, will rather die than they should defile themselves with any impurity. And shortly after he faith; In the Commonwealth of the Jews, the carver of idols... and image-maker, was cast off and forbidden, lest they should have any occasion to make images, which might pluck certain foolish persons from God, and turn the eyes of their souls to the contemplation of earthly things. And in another place of the same book; It is not only (saith he) a mad and frantic part to worship images, but also once to assemble or join at it. And a man may know God and his only Son, and those which have had such honour given them by God, that they be called gods: But it is not possible that any should by worshipping of images, get any knowledge of God.

Athanasius in his Book against the Gentiles, hath these words: Let them tell, I pray you, how God may be known by an image. If it be by the matter of an image, then there needeth no shape or figure, seeing that God hath appeared in all material creatures which do testified his glory. Now if they say, he is known by the sign of his fashion, Is he not better to be known by the living things themselves, whose fashions the images express? For of surety, the glory of God should be more evidently known, if it were declared by reasonable and living creatures, rather than by dead and Amendment images. Therefore when ye do graven images, to the end to know God thereby, surely ye do an unworthy and unjust thing. And in another place of the same book he saith, The invention of images came of no good, but of evil; and whatsoever hath an evil beginning, can never in any thing be judged good, seeing it is altogether naught. Thus saith Athanasius, a very ancient, holy, and learned Bishop and Doctor, who judgeth both the first beginning and the end, and altogether of images in idols, to be naught.

Lactantius, likewise, an old and learned writer, in his Book of the Original of Error, hath these words: God is above man, and is not placed beneath, but is to be sought in the highest region. Wherefore there is no doubt, but that no Religion is in that place whereofever any image is: For if Religion stand in godly things (and there is no godliness but in heavenly things) then be images without Religion. There be Lactantius his words, who was above cith hundred years ago, and within three hundred years after our Saviour Christ.

Cyrilus, an old and holy Doctor, upon the Gospel of Saint John, hath these words: Many have left the Creator, and have worshipped the Creature, neither have they been ashamed to speak unto a Stone. Thou art my Father, and to a Stone, Thou begettest me. For many, even almost all (alas for sorrow) are fallen into such folly, that they have given the glory of Deity to Godhead, to things without sense or feeling.

Epiphanius, Bishop of Salamine in Cyprus, a very holy and learned man, who lived in Theodosius the Emperor's time, about three hundred and ninety years after our Saviour Christ's ascension, with which thus to John Patriarch of Jerusalem. He added (saith Epiphanius) into a certain Church to pray. I found there a linen cloth hanging in the Church door, painted, and having in it the image of Christ, as it were, of some other Saint (for I remember not well whose image it was) therefore when I did see the image of a man hanging in the Church of Christ, contrary to the authority of the Scriptures, I did tear it, and gave counsel to the keepers of the Church, that they should wind a poor man that was dead, in the said cloth, and to bury him.

And
against peril of Idolatry.

And afterwards the same Epiphanius sending another unainted cloth, so that painted one which he had torn, to the said Patriarch, writeth thus. I pray you, will the Elders of that place to receive this cloth which I have sent by this bearer, and command them that henceforth no such painted cloths, contrary to our Religion, be hanged in the Church of Christ. For it becometh your gooddnes rather to have this care, that you take away such scrupulosity, which is unfitting for the Church of Christ, and offensive to the people committed to your charge. And this Epistle, as worthy to be read of many, did S. Jerome himself translate into the Latin tongue. And that ye may know that S. Jerome had this holy and learned Bishop Epiphanius in most high estimation, and therefore did translate this Epistle, as a writing of authority, hear what a testimony the said S. Jerome giveth him in another place, in his Treatise against the Errors of John Bishop of Jerusalem, where he hath these words: Thou hast (faith S. Jerome) Pope Epiphanius, which hath penned in his letters call thee an Heretick. Surely thou art not to be preceeded before him, neither for age, nor learning, nor godliness of life, nor by the testimony of the whole world. And shortly after in the same Treatise faith S. Jerome, Bishop Epiphanius was ever so great veneration and estimation, that Valens the Emperor, who was a great persecutor, did not once touch him. For Hereticks being Princes, thought it their shame if they should persecute such a notable man. And in the tripartite Ecclesiastical History, the ninth Book, and xivith. Chapter, is testified, that Epiphanius being yet alive, did work miracles, and that after his death, dressing, being expelled at his grave of tomb, did raise. Thus you see what authority S. Jerome, and that most ancient History, give unto the holy and learned Bishop Epiphanius, whose judgment of images in Churches and Temples, then beginning by stealth to creep in, is worthy to be noted.

First, he judged it contrary to Christian religion and the authority of the Scriptures, to have any images in Christ's Church. Secondly, he rejected not only carved, graven, and moulten images, but also painted images out of Christ's Church. Thirdly, that he regarded not whether it were the image of Christ, or of any other Saint, but being an image would not suffer it in the Church. Fourthly, that he did not only remove it out of the Church, but with a moste zeale take it in finder, and exhorited that a Coiffe should be wrapped and buried in it, judging it meet for nothing but to rot in the earth, following herin the example of the good King Ezechias, who brake the golden Serpent to pieces, and burned it to ashes, so that idolatry was committed to it. Last of all, that Epiphanius thinketh it the duty of vigilant Bishops, to be careful that no images be permitted in the Church, so that they be occasion of scandal and offence to the people committed to their charge. Now whereas neither S. Jerome, who did translate the same Epistle, nor the authors of that most ancient History Ecclesiastical tripartite (who do most highly commend Epiphanius, as is aforesaid) nor any other godly or learned Bishop at that time, or shortly after, have written any thing against Epiphanius his judgment concerning images: it is an evident proof, that in those days, which were about four hundred years after our Saviour Christ, there were no images publicly used and received in the Church of Christ, which was then much less corrupt, and more pure than now it is.

And...
The Second part of the Sermon

And whereas images began at that time secretly and by stealth to creep out of private mens houses into the Churches, and that first in painted cloths and walls, such Bishops as were godly and vigilant, when they perceived them, removed them away, as unlawful and contrary to Christian Religion, as did here Epiphanius, to whose judgment you have not only Saint Jerome the translator of his Epistle, and the writer of the Bishop Tripartite, but also all the learned and godly Clerks, yea, and the whole Church of that Age, and so upward to our Saviour Christ's time, by the space of about four hundred years, contending and agreeing. This is written the more largely of Epiphanius, for that our image maintainers now abate, seeing themselves to proceed with this most plain and earnest act and writing of Epiphanius, a Bishop and Doctor of such antiquity and authority, labour by all means (but in vain against the truth) either to prove that this Epistle was neither of Epiphanius writing, nor Saint Jerome's translation: either if it be, say they, it is of no great force: for this Epiphanius, say they, was a Jew, and being converted to the Christian Faith, and made a Bishop, retained the hatred which Jews have to images, still in his mind, and so did and wrote against them as a Jew, rather than as a Christian. O Jewish impudence and malice of such debaters, it should be proved, and not laid only, that Epiphanius was a Jew. Furthermore, concerning the reason they make, I would admit it gladly. For if Epiphanius his judgment against images is not to be admitted, for that he was born of a Jew, an enemy to images, which be God's enemies, converted to Christ's Religion, then likewise followeth it, that no sentence in the old Doctors and Fathers concerning images, ought to be of any authority, for that in the Primitive Church the most part of learned Writers, as Tertullian, Cyprian, Ambrose, Austin, and infinite others more, were of Gentiles (which be favourers and worshippers of Images) converted to the Christian Faith, and so let somewhat slip out of their pens, concerning images, rather as Gentiles than Christians, as Eusebius in his Bishop Ecclesiastical, and Saint Jerome faith plainly, that images came first from the Gentiles to us Christians. And much more both it follow, that the opinion of all the rabblement of the Papish Church, maintaining images, ought to be esteemed of small or no authority, for that it is no marvel that they which have from their childhood been brought up among images and idols, and have drunk idolatrie almost with their mothers milk, hold with images and idols, and speak and write for them. But indeed it would not be so much marked whether he were of a Jew or a Gentile converted unto Christ's Religion, that writeth, as how agreeable or contrary to God's word he both writeth, and to credit or discredit him. Now what God's word of idols and images, and the worshipping of them, you heard at large in the first part of this Sermon.

Saint Ambrose in his treatise of the death of Theodosius the Emperor, saith, Helene found the Cross and the title on it. She worshipped the King, and not the wood surely (for that is an heathenish error), and the vanity of the wicked) but she worshipped him that hunged on the Cross, and whose name was written in the title, and so copy. See both the godly Empress her fact, and Saint Ambrose judgment at once: They thought it been an heathenish error and vanity of the wicked, to have worshipped the Cross it self which was embued with

with our Saviour Christ's own precious blood. And we fall down before every Cross piece of timber, which is but an image of that Cross.

Saint Augustine, the best learned of all ancient Doctors, in his first Epistle to Maximus, faith, Know thou that none of the dead, not anything that is made of God, is worshipped as God of the Catholic Church, or of there is a Church also in your Town. Note that by Saint Augustine, such as worshipped the dead, of creatures, be not Catholic Christians.

The same Saint Augustine teacheth in his Book of the City of God, the tenth Chapter, that neither temples or Churches ought to be builded or made for Martyrs or Saints, but to God alone; and that there ought no Priests to be appointed for Martyrs or Saints, but to God only. The same Saint Augustine in his Book of the manners of the Catholic Church, hath these words: I know that many be worshippers of tombs and pictures. I know that there be many that banquet most riotously over the graves of the dead, and giving meat to dead carcases, do bury themselves upon the buried, and attribute their gluttony and drunkenness to Religion. See, he earnestly worshipped of Saints tombs and pictures, as good religion as gluttony and drunkenness, and no better at all. Saint Augustine greatly allowed Marcus Varro, affirming that Religion is most pure without images; and faith himself, images be of use to feed an unhappy soul, than to teach and instruct it. And faith further, Every child, even every beast knoweth that it is not God that they see. Wherefore then both the Holy Ghost so often admonish us of that which all men know? Whereunto Saint Augustine himself answereth thus: For (faith he) when images are placed in temples, and set in honourable sublimity, and begin once to be worshipped, forthwith breedeth the most vile affection of Error. This is Saint Augustine's judgment of images in Churches, that by and by they breed error and idolatry. It would be tedious to rehearse all other places, which might be brought out of the ancient Doctors against images and idolatry. Wherefore we shall hold our selves contented with these few here present. Now as concerning Histories Ecclesiastical, touching this matter, ye may know why and when, and by whom images were first used privately, and afterwards not only received into the Christian Churches and temples, but in conclusion worshipped also, and how the same was gain-said, refuted, and forbidden, as well by godly Bishops and learned Doctors, as also by lindy Christian Princes: I will briefly collect into a compendious Histroy, that which is at large, and in lindy places written by divers ancient Writers and Historiographers concerning this matter.

As the Jews, having a most plain and express commandment of God, that they should neither make nor worship any image (as it is at large before declared) did notwithstanding, by the example of the Gentiles or Heathen people that dwelt about them, fall to the making of Images, and worshipping of them, and so to the committing of most abominable idolatry, for the which God by his holy Prophets both most sharply reproved and threatened them, and afterward did accomplish his said threatenings by extreme punishing of them (as is also above specified: even to some of the Christians in old time, which were converted from from worshipping of idols and false gods, unto the true living God, and to our Saviour Jesus Christ, did of a certain blind zeal (as men long accustomed to images) paint or carve images of our Saviour Christ, his Mother Mary, and of the Apostles, thinking that this was a point of gratitude and kindness towards those, by whom they had received the true knowledge of God, and the doctrine of the Gospel. But these pictures of images came not yet into Churches, nor were yet worshipped of a long time after. And lest you should think that I do lay this of mine own head only without authority, I allege for me Eusebius Bishop of Caesarea, and the most ancient Author of the Ecclesiastical History, who lived about the three hundred and thirtieth year of our Lord in Constantius Magnus his days, and his Son Constantius, Emperours, in the seventy Book of his History Ecclesiastical, the fourteenth Chapter, and Saint Jerome upon the tenth Chapter of the Prophet Jeremiah, who both expressly say, That the errors of Images (for so Saint Jerome calls it) have come in and passed to the Christians from the Gentiles, by an Heathenish use and custom. The cause and means Eusebius Heweth, lying. It is no marvel if they which being Gentiles before, and did believe, seemed to offer this, as a gift to our Saviour, for the benefits which they had received of him, Yes, and we do see now that Images of Peter and Paul, and of our Saviour himself be made, and tables to be painted, which I think to have been observed and kept indifferently by an Heathenish custome. For the Heathen are wont to honour them whom they judged worthy; for that some tokens of old men should be kept. For the remembrance of posterity is a token of their honour that were before, and the love of those that come after.

Thus far I have rehearsed Eusebius his Words. Where note ye, that both S. Jerome and he agree herein, that these Images came in amongst Christian men by such as were Gentiles, and accustomed to idols, and being converted to the Faith of Christ, retained yet some remnants of Gentility not thoroughly purged; for S. Jerome calleth it an error manifestly. And the like example we see in the Acts of the Apostles, of the Jews, who when they were converted to Christ, would have brought in their circumcision (whereunto they were long accustomed) with them, into Christ's Religion. With whom the Apostles (namely Saint Paul) had much ado for the slaying of that matter. But of Circumcision was no marvel, for that it came first in by God's ordinance and commandment. A man may not justly wonder of Images so directly against God's holy word and strict commandment, how they should enter in. But Images were not yet worshipped in Eusebius his time, nor publickly set up in Churches and Temples, and they who privately had them, did care of a certain zeal, and not by malice: but afterwards they crept out of private houses into Churches, and by bad first superstition, and last of all Idolatry amongst Christians, as hereafter shall appear.

In the time of Theodosius and Martian, Emperours, who reigned about the year of our Lord 460, and 1177 years ago, when the people of the City of Nola once a year did celebrate the birth day of Saint Felix in the Temple, and used to banquet there sumptuously, Pontius Paulinus Bishop of Nola, caused the walls of the Temple to be painted with stories taken out of the Old Testament, that the people beholding and considering those
against peril of Idolatry.

those pictures, might the better abstain from too much underrating and riot. And about the same time Aurelius Prudentius, a very learned and Christian Poet, declared how he did see painted in a Church, the History of the passion of Saint Cysian, a Schoolmaster and Martyr, whom his own Scholars, at the commandment of the tyrant, tormented with the prickings of their pointeds or hafted pens into his body, and so by a thousand wounds and doe (as faith Prudentius) most cruelly killed him. And these were the first paintings in Churches that were of notable antiquity. And by this example came in painting, and afnerward images of timber and stone, and other matter, into the Churches of Christians. Now, if we well consider this beginning, men are not to ready to worship a picture on a wall, or in a window, as an en-bossed and gilt image, let with pearl and stone. And a process of a story, painted with the gestures and actions of many persons, and commonly the sum of the story written withal, hath another use in it, than one dumb idol or image standing by it self. But by learning by painted stories, it came by little and little to Idolatry. Which when godly men (as well Emperors and learned Bishops, as others) perceived, they commanded that such pictures, images, or idols, should be used no more.
And I will for a declaration thereof, begin with the decree of the ancient Christian Emperors, Valens and Theodosius the second, who reigned about four hundred years after our Saviour Christ's ascension, who forbad that any images should be made or painted privately: for certain it is, that there were none in temples publicly in their time. These Emperors did write unto the Captain of the Army attending on the Emperors, after this sort, Valens and Theodosius Emperors, unto the Captain of the Army; Whereas we have a diligent care to maintain the Religion of God above, in all writings, we will grant to no man to set forth, grave, carive, or paint the image of our Saviour Christ in colours; none, or any other matter, but in what place soever it shall be found, we command that it be taken away, and that all such as shall attempt any thing contrary to our decrees or commandment herein, shall be most harshly punished. This decree is written in the Books named Libri Augustales, the Imperial Books, gathered by Tribonianus, Basilides, Theophaeus, Diodorus, and Tatius, men of great authority and learning, at the commandment of the Emperor Julianus, and is alledged by Petrus Crinius, a notable learned man, in the 1st Book and 1st Chapter of his Tract, intituled De honesta Disciplina, that is to say, of honest learning.
Here you see what Christian Princes of most ancient times decreed against images, which then began to creep in amongst the Christians.
For it is certain, that by the space of three hundred years and more, af-fter the death of our Saviour Christ, and before these godly Emperors reigned, there were no images publicly in Churches or Temples.
How would the Idolators glory, if they had so much antiquity and authority for them, as is here against them?

Now shortly after these dates, the Goths, Vandals, Huns, and other barbarous and wicked Nations, burst into Italy, and all parts of the West Countries of Europe, with huge and mighty Armies, spoiled all places, destroyed Cities, and burned Libraries, so that learning and true Religion went to woak, and decayed incredibly. And so the Bishops of those latter dates, being of less learning, and in the midst of the Wars, taking less heed also than did the Bishops afore, by ignoance

...rant of God's Word, and negligence of Bishops, and especially barbarous Princes, not rightly instructed in true Religion, beholding the use, images came into the Church of Christ in the said West parts, where these barbarous people ruled, not now in painted cloth only, but embossed in stone, timber, metal, and other like matter, and were not only set up, but began to be worshipped also. And therefore Serenus, Bishop of Massile (the head town of Gallia Narbonensis now called the Province) a Godly and learned man, who was about six hundred years after our Saviour Christ, seeing the people by occasion of images fall to most abominable idolatry, broke to pieces all the images of Christ and Saints which were in that City, and was therefore complained upon by Gregory the first of that name, Bishop of Rome, who was the first learned Bishop that did allow the open having of images in Churches, that can be known by any Writing or History of Antiquity, and upon this Gregory do all image-worshippers at this day ground their defence. But as all things that be amiss, have from a tolerable beginning grown worse and worse, till they at last became intolerable: so did this matter of images. First, men used privately to devise painted in tables, cloths, and walls. Afterwards, grots and embossed images privately in their own houses. Then afterwards, pictures first, and after them embossed images began to creep into Churches, learned and godly men ever speaking against them. Then by slow it was openly maintained that they might be in Churches, but yet forbidden that they should be worshipped. Of which opinion was Gregory, as by the said Gregory's Epistle to the Pope named Serenus, Bishop of Massile, plainly appeareth. Which Epistle is to be found in the Book of Epistles of Gregory, or Register, in the tenth part of the fourth Epistle, where he hath these words: What thou didst forbid images to be worshipped, we praise altogether, but that thou didst break them, we blame. For it is one thing to worship the picture, and another thing by the picture of the story, to learn what is to be worshipped. For that which Scripture is to them that read, the same both picture perform unto idiots or the unlearned beholding, and to faith. And after a few words, therefore it should not have been broken, which was set up, not to be worshipped in Churches, but only to instruct the minds of the ignorant. And a little after, thus thou shouldst have said, If you will have images in the Church for that instruction wherefore they were made in old time, I do permit that they may be made, and that you may have them, and have them, that not the light of the story, which is opened by the picture, but that worshipping which was inconveniently given to the picture, did mislike you. And if any would make images, not to forbid them, but abate by all means to worship any image. By these sentences taken here and there out of Gregory's Epistle to Serenus (for it were too long to rehearse the whole) ye may understand whereunto the matter was now come six hundred years after Christ: that the having of images or pictures in the Churches, were then maintained in the West part of the world (for they were not so forward yet in the East Church) but the worshipping of them was utterly forbidden. And you may withal note, that seeing there is no ground for worshipping of images in Gregory's writing, but a plain condemnation thereof, that such as do worship images, do unjustly allege Gregory for them. And further, if images in the Church do not teach men according to Gregory's mind, but rather blind them: it followeth, that images should not be be in the Church by his sentence, who only would they should be placed there, to the end that they might teach the ignorant. Therefore, if it be declared that images have been, and be worshipped, and also that they teach nothing but errors and lies (which stand by God's grace hereafter be done) I trust that then by Gregory's own determination, all images and image worshippers shall be overthrown. But in the mean season, Gregory's authority was so great in all the West Church, that by his encouragement men set up images in all places: but their judgment was not so good to consider why he would have them set up, but they felt all on heaps to manifest idolatry by worshipping of them, which Bishop Serenus (not without just cause) feared would come to pass. Now if Serenus had judgment, thinking that it meet that images, whereunto Idolatry was committed, should be destroyed, had taken place, Idolatry had been overthrown: for to that which is not, no man committeth Idolatry. But of Gregory's opinion, thinking that images might be suffered in Churches, so it were taught that they should not be worshipped: what culte of Religion, and what mischief ensued afterward to all Chilensdom, experience hath to our great hurt and sorrow proved. First, by the Schism thing between the East and the West Church about the said images. Next, by the division of the Empire into two parts by the lame occasion of images, to the great weakening of all Chilensdom, whereby half of all, hath followed the utter overthrow of the Christian Religion and noble Empire in Greece, and all the East parts of the World, and the encreafe of Mahomet's false religion, and the cruel dominion and tyranny of the Saracens and Turks, who do now hang over our necks also that dwell in the West parts of the world, ready at all occasions to over-run us. And all this do we owe unto our idols and images, and our Idolatry in worshipping of them.

But now give you ear a little to the procés of the History, wherein I do much follow the Histories of Paulus Diaconus, and others joined with Eutropius an old Writer. For though some of the Authors were as in two, labourers of images: yet do they most plainly and at large prosecute the Histories of those times whom Papists Platica also in his History of Popes, as in the lives of Constanine and Gregory the second, Bishops of Platica in Rome, and other places (where he treateth of this matter) both briefly visiti Con- Kantini & Greg. 2.

After Gregory's time, Constanine Bishop of Rome assembled a Council of Bishops in the West Church, and did condemn Philippicus then Emperor, and John Bishop of Constantinople of the Heretic of the Mono-Heresies, not without a cause indeed, but very justly. When he had done, by the consent of the learned about him, the said Constanine Bishop of Rome, enated the images of the ancient fathers, which had been at those six Councils which were allowed and received of all men, to be painted in the enter of St. Peter's Church at Rome. When the Greeks had knowledge hereof, they began to dispute and reason the matter of images with the Latins, and held this Opinion, that images could have no place in Chilens Church, and the Latins held the contrary, and took part with the images. So the East and West Churches which agreed evil before, upon this contention about images fell to utter enmity, which was never well reconciled yet. But in the mean season Philippicus and Arthemius, of Anatolias, Emperors, commanded images and pictures to be pulled down, and raised out in every place of their dominion. After them came Theodorus the third, he commanded the defaced images to be painted again in their places: but this Theodosius reigned but one year. Leo, the third of that name, succeeded him, who was a Syrian born, a very wise, godly, merciful, and valiant prince. This Leo by proclamation commanded, that all images set up in Churches to be worshipped, should be plucked down and defaced; and required specially the Bishop of Rome that he should do the same, and himself in the mean season caused all images that were in the Imperial City Constantinople, to be gathered on an heap in the midst of the City, and there publicly burned them to ashes, and white o'er, and raised out all pictures painted upon the walls of the Temples, and punished haply divers maintainers of images. And when some did therefore report him to be a tyrant, he answered, That such of all other were most justly punished, who either worshipped God aright, not regarded the Imperial Majesty and Authority, but maliciously rebelled against wholesome and pestable Laws. When Gregorius, the third of that name, Bishop of Rome, heard of the Emperour's doings in Greece concerning the images, he assembled a Council of Italian Bishops against him, and there made decrees for images, and that more reverence and honour should yet be given to them than was before, and hired up the Italiains against the Emperour, first at Ravenna, and moved them to rebellion. And as Upurgensius and Antonius, Bishops of Florence, testified in their Chronicles, he caused Rome and all Italy, at the lead, to refuse their obedience, and the payment of any more tribute to the Emperour; and so by treason and rebellion maintained their idolatry. Which example, other Bishops of Rome have continually followed, and gone through withal most forcibly.

After this Leo, who reigned xxiv. years, succeeded his son Constantine the fifth, who after his father's example, kept images out of the temples, and being moved with the Council which Gregory had assembled in Italy for images against his father, he also assembled a Council of all the Learned men and Bishops of Asia and Greece, although some Writers place this Council in Leo Iauricius, his father's latter dates. In this great assembly they late in Council from the fourth of the Idus of February, to the sixth of the Idus of August, and made concerning the use of images this decrees. It is not lawful for them that believe in God through Jesus Christ to have any images, neither of the Creator, nor of any creatures, set up in temples to be worshipped: but rather that all things by the Law of God, and for the avoiding of offence, ought to be taken out of the Churches. And this decree was executed in all places where any images were found in Asia and Greece. And the Emperour sent the determination of this Council helden at Constantinople, to Paul then Bishop of Rome, and commanded him to set all images out of the Churches: which he (trusting in the friendship of Pipin a mighty Prince) refused to do, and both he and his successor Stephanus the third (who assembled another Council in Italy for images) condemned the Emperour and the Council of Constantinople of Pecchio, and made a decree that the holy images, (for so they called them) of Christ, the blessed Virgin, and other Saints, were indeed worthy honour and worshipping. When Constantine was dead, Leo the fourth his son reigned after him, who married a woman of the City of Athens, named Theodora, who also was called Irene, by whom he had a son, named Constantine the fifth, and dying whilst his son was yet young, left the regiment of the Empire and and governance of his young son to his wife Irene. These things were done in the Church about the year of our Lord 60. Not here I pray you in this process of the story, that in the Churches of Asia and Greece, there were no images publicly by the space of almost seven hundred years. And here is no doubt of the primitive Church next the Apostles time was most pure. Note also, that when the contention began about images, how of six Christian Emperors, who were the chief magistrates by God's Law to be obeyed, only one, which was Theodosius, who reigned but one year, held with images. All the other Emperors, and all the Learned Men and Bishops of the East Church, and that in assembled Councils, condemned them, besides the two Emperors before mentioned, Valens and Theodosius the second, who were long before these times, who strictly said that any images should be made. And universally after this time, all the Emperors of Greece (only Theodosius excepted) destroey continually all images. Now on the contrary part, note ye, that the Bishops of Rome, being no ordinary magistrates appointed of God, out of their Dioceses, but usurpers of Princes Authority, contrary to God's Word, were the maintainers of images against God's Word, and strikers up of Sedition and Rebellion, and workers of continual treason against their Sovereign Lords, contrary to God's Law, and the Ordinances of all humane Laws, being not only enemies to God, but also rebels and traitors against their Princes. These be the first bringers in of images openly into Churches, these be the maintainers of them in the Churches, and these be the means whereby they have maintained them: to wit, conspiracy, treason, and rebellion against God and their Princes.

How to proceed in the history, most worthy to be known. In the monasige of Constantine the fifth, the Emperors Irene his mother, in whose hands the regimen of the Empire remained, was governed much by the advice of Theodor Bishop, and Thaurus Patriarch of Constantinople, who practised and held with the Bishop of Rome in maintaining of images most earnestly. By whose counsel and contrivance, the Emperors first most wickedly digged up the body of her father in law Constantine the fifth, and commanded it to be openly burned, and the ashes to be thrown into the Sea, which example (as the constant report goeth) had like to have been put in practice with Princes Coys in our days, had the authority of the holy father continued but a little longer. The cause why the Emperors Irene thus used her father in law, was, for that he, when he was alive, had destroeyed images, and had taken away the sumptuous ornaments of Churches, saying that Christ, whose temples they were, allowed poverty, and not pearls and precious stones. Afterward the said Irene at the perdition of Adrian Bishop of Rome, and Paul the Patriarch of Constantinople and his successor Thaurus assembled a Council of the Bishops of Asia and Greece, at the City Nicea, where the Bishop of Rome's Legates, being Presidents of the Council, and ordering all things as they listed, the Council which were assembled before under the Emperor Constantine the fifth, and had decreed that all images should be destroyed, was condemned as an Heretical Council and Assembly: And a decree was made, That images should be put up in all the Churches of Greece, and that honour and worship also should be given unto the said images. And so the Emperors sparing no dis-

A decree made Constantinople within a short time altogether like Rome. And now you may see that come to pass which Bishop Serenus feared, and Gregory the first sowed in vain; to wit, that images should in no wise be worshipped. For now not only the simple and unwise (unto whom images, as the Scriptures teach, be specially a snare) but the Bishops and learned men also, fall to idolatry by occasion of images, yea, and make decrees and laws for the maintenance of the same. So hard is it, and indeed impossible any long time to have images publicly in Churches and Temples without idolatry, as by the space of little more than an hundred years between Gregory the first, forbidding most strictly the worshipping of images, and Gregory the third, Paul, and Leo the third, Bishops of Rome, with this Council commanding and decreeing that images should be worshipped, most evidently appear.

Now when Constantine the young Emperor came to the age of twenty years, he was daily in less and less estimation. For such as were about his mother, persuaded her, that it was God's determination that she should reign alone, and not her son with her. The ambitious woman believing the same, deprived her son of all Imperial dignity, and compelled all the men of war, with their Captains, to swear to her that they would not suffer her Son Constantine to reign during her life. With which indignity the young Prince being provoked, recovered the regiment of the Empire unto himself by force, and being brought up in true Religion in his Fathers time, fearing the superstition of his Mother Leo, and the idolatry committed by images, cast down, brake, and burned all the tools and images that his Mother had set up. But within a few years after, Irene the Empress, taken again into her Sons favour, after she had persuaded him to put out Nicephorus his uncles eyes, and to cut out the tongues of his two other uncles, and to sojourn his wife, by which means to bring him into hatred with all his Subiects; now further to declare that she was no changling, but the same woman that had before begg'd up and burned her father in laws body, and that she would be as natural a Mother as she had been a kind Daughter, seeing the images, which she loved so well, and had with so great cost set up daily destroyed by her own Son the Emperor, by the help of certain good companions, deprived her Son of the Empire: And first, like a kind and loving Mother, put out both his eyes, and laid him in Prison, where after long and many torments, she at the last most cruelly slew him.

In this history, joined to Euphrosius, it is written, that the Sun was darkened by the space of twelve days most strangely and dreadfully, and that all men said, that for the horribleness of that cruel and unnatural act of Irene, and the putting out of the Emperors eyes, the Sun had lost his light. But indeed, God would signify by the darkness of the Sun, into what darkness and blindness of ignorance and idolatry Christendom should fall by the occasion of images. The bright Sun of his eternal truth, and light of his holy word, by the mists and black clouds of mens traditions being blentned and darkned, as by many most terrible earthquakes that happened about the same time, God signified, that the quiet estate of true Religion, should by such idolatry be most horribly tossed and turnipled. And here may you see what a gracious and vertuous Lady this Irene was, how loving a neece to her husbands husbands uncles, how kind a mother in law to her sons wife, how loving a daughter to her father in law, how natural a mother to her own son, and what about and ballant a Captain the Bishops of Rome had of her, for the setting up and maintenance of their idols or images. Surely, they could not have found a meeter Patron for the maintenance of such a matter, than this Irene, whose ambition and desire of rule was inattainable, whose treason continually studied and sought, was most abominable, whose wicked and unnatural cruelty killed Medes and Progne, whose detestable particides have ministered matter to Poets, to write their horrible Tragedies.

And yet certain Historiographers, who do put in writing all these her horrible wickednesses, for love they had to images, which she maintained, do praise her as a godly Empress, and as sent from God. Such is the blindness of false Superrition, if it once take possession in a man's mind, that it will both declare the vices of wicked Princes, and also commend them. But not long after, the said Irene being suspected to the Princes and Lords of Greece of treason, in alienating the Empire to Charles King of the Francoons, and for practicing a secret marriage between her self and the said King, and being convicted of the same, was by the said Lords deposed and deposed again of the Empire, and carried into exile into the Island Lesbos, where she ended her sad life.

While these tragedies about images were thus working in Greece, the same question of the use of images in Churches began to be moved in Spain also. And at Elberi, a notable city, now called Granate, was a council of Spanish Bishops, and other learned men assembled, and there, after long deliberation and debating of the matter, it was concluded at length by the whole Council, after this sort, in the 36. Article.

We think that pictures ought not to be in Churches, lest which is honoured or worshipped be painted on walls. And in the 11. Canon of that Council it is thus written: We thought good to admonish the faithful, that as much as in them they, they suffer no images to be in their Houses, but if they fear any violence of their servants, at the least let them keep themselves clean and pure from images, if they do not so, let them be accounted as none of the Church. Note here, I say you, how a whole and great Country in the West and South parts of Europe, nearer to Rome a great deal than to Greece in situation of place, do agree with the Greeks against images, and do not only forbid them in Churches, but also in private Houses, and do excommunicate them to the contrary: And another Council of the Learned men of all Spain also, called Concilium Tolerantum Duodecimum, decreed that another and determined likewise against image and image worshippers. But Council 4, when these decrees of the Spanish Council at Elberi came to the knowledge of the Bishop of Rome and his adherents, they fearing lest all Germany also would decree against images, and so take them, thought to prevent the matter, and by the consent and help of the prince of France (whose power was then great in the West parts of the world) assembled a Council of Germans at Frankford, and there procured the Spanish Council against images aforesaid, to be condemned by the name of the Felician Perpete (for that Felix Bishop of Aquitania was chief in that Council) and obtained that the Acts of the Second Nicene Council, assembled by Irene (the holy Empress whom ye heard of before) and the sentence of the Bishop of Rome for images might be received.

For much after this last do the Papists report of the history of the Council of Frankford. Notwithstanding the book of Carolus Magnus his own writing, as the title thereof, which is now put in print, and commonly in men's hands, sheweth, which is now put in print, and commonly in men's hands, sheweth, the judgment of that Prince, and of the whole Council of Frankford also, to be against images, and against the Second Council of Nicaea assembled by Irene for images, and calleth it an arrogantly, foolish, and ungodly Council, and declared the assembly of the Council of Frankford, to have been directly made and gathered against that Nicene Council, and the crosses of the same. So that it must needs follow, that either there were in one Princes time two Councils assembled at Frankford, one contrary to the other, which by no history both appear, or else that after their custom, the Popes and Papists have most shamefully corrupted the Council, as their manner is to handle, not only Councils, but all histories and writings of the old Doctors, satisfying and corrupting them for the maintenance of their wicked and ungodly purposes, as hath in times of late come to light, and both in our days more and more continually appear most evidently. Let the forged gift of Constantine, and the notable attempt to falsifie the first Nicene Council for the Popes Supremacy, practis'd by Popes in St. Augustine's time, be a witness hereof, which practice indeed had then taken effect, had not the diligence and wisdom of St. Augustine, and other learned and godly Bishops in Britain, by their great labour and charges also, confuted and stopped the same. How to come towards an end of this history, and to shew you the principal point that came to pass by the maintenance of images. Whereas from Constantine Magnus time, until this day, all authority imperial and princely dominion of the Empire of Rome, remained continually in the right and possession of the Emperors, who had their continuance and seat Imperial at Constantinople the City Royal. Leo the third, then Bishop of Rome, seeing the Greek Emperors so bent against his gods of gold and silver, timber and stone, and having the King of the Franks or Frenchmen, named Charles, whose power was exceeding great in the West Countries, very applicable to his mind, for causes hereafter appearing, under the pretence that they of Constantinople were for that matter of images under the Popes ban and curse, and therefore unworthy to be Emperors, or to bear rule, and for that the Emperors of Greece being so far off, were not ready at a beck to defend the Pope against the Lombards his enemies, and others with whom he had variance: this Leo the third, I say, attempted a thing exceeding strange and unheard of before, and of incredible boldness and presumption: For he by his Papal authority did translate the Government of the Empire, and the Crown and name Imperial from the Greeks, and gave it unto Charles the great, King of the Franks, not without the consent of the so-called Irene, Empress of Greece, who also sought to be joined in marriage with the said Charles. For which cause the said Irene was by the Lords of Greece depose and banished, as one that had betrayed the Empire, as ye before have heard. And the said Princes of Greece did, after the depopulation of the said Irene, by common consent, elect and create (as they alwayes had done) an Emperor named Nicephorus, whom the Bishop of Rome, and they of the West would not acknowledge for their Emperor; for they had already created them another: and so there became two Emperors, and the Empire which was before one, was divided into two parts, upon occasion of...
of idols and images, and the worshipping of them: even as the Kingdom of the Israelites was in old time, for the like cause of Idolatry, divided in King Rehoboam's time. And to the Bishop of Rome, having the favours of Charles the Great by this means adhere to him, was wonderfully enhanced in power and authority, and did in all the West Church (especially in Italy) what he list, where images were let up, garnished, and worshipped of all sorts of men. But images were not so fast let up, and so much honoured in Italy and the West, but Nicephorus, Emperor of Constantinople, and his Successors Scauratus, the two Michaels, Leo, or Stauros Theophilus, and other Emperors their Successors in the Empire of Greece, continually pulled them down, broke them, burned them, and destroyed them as fast. And when Theodorus the Emperor, being at the Council of Lyons, have agreed with the Bishop of Rome, and have let up images: he was by the Nobles of the Empire of Greece deposed, and another chosen in his place, and to rule a jealousie, suspicion, grudge, hatred, and enmity between the Christians, and Emperors of the East Countries and West, which could never be quenched nor pacified. So that when the Saracens left, and after the Turks, invaded the Christians, the one part of Christendom would not help the other. By reason whereof, the last, the noble Empire of Greece, and the City Imperial, Constantinople, was lost, and is come into the hands of the Infidels, who now have overcome almost all Christendom, and pouring past the middle of Hungary, which is part of the West Empire, do hang over all our heads, to the utter danger of all Christendom.

Thus we see what a sea of mischief the maintenance of images hath brought with it, what an horrible Schism between the East and the West Church, what an hatred between one Christian and another, Councils against Councils, Church against Church, Christians against Christians, Princes against Princes, rebellions, treasons, unnatural and most cruel murders, the daughter digging up and burning her father, the Emperor's body, the mother, for love of idols, most abominably murdering of her own son, being an Emperor; at the last, the tearing in hunder of Christendom and the Empire into two pieces, till the Infidels, Saracens and Turks, common enemies to both parts, have most cruelly vanquished, destroyed and subdued the one part, the whole Empire of Greece, Asia the less, Thracia, Macedonia, Epirus, and many other great and goodly Countries and Provinces, and have won a great piece of the other Empire, and put the whole in dreadful fear and most horrible danger. For it is not without a just and great cause to be dreaded, lest as the Empire of Rome was even for the like cause of images, and the worshipping of them, torn in pieces and divided, as was for Idolatry the Kingdom of Israel in old time divided; so like punishment, as for the like offence, fell upon the Jews, will also light upon us: that is, lest the cruel tyrant, and enemy of our Commonwealth and Religion, the Turk, by God's just vengeance, should likewise partly murder, and partly lead away into captivity us Christians, as did the Assyrian and Babylonian Kings murder and lead away the Israelites, and left the Empire of Rome and Christian Religion be so utterly brought under foot, as was then the Kingdom of Israel and true Religion of God, whereunto the matter already (as I have declared) newly inclined on our part, the greater part of Christendom, within three hundred years space, being brought into captivity and most miserable thraldom under the Turk.
The Second part of the Sermon, &c.

...Turk, and the noble Empire of Greece clean evicted. Whereas if the Christians, divided by these image matters, had held together, no Indiels and Muscians could thus have prevailed against Christendom. And all this mischief and misery, which we have hitherto fallen into, do we owe to our mighty gods of gold and silver, rock and stone, in whose help and defence (where they cannot help themselves) we have trusted too long, until our enemies the Indiels have overcome and over-run us almost altogether. A just reward for those that have left the mighty living God, the Lord of hosts, and have stopped and given the honour due to him, to dead blocks and rocks, who have eyes and feel not, feet and cannot go, and so forth, and are cursed of God, and all they that make them, and that put their trust in them.

Thus you understand (well-beloved in our Saviour Christ) by the judgment of the old learned and godly Doctors of the Church, and by ancient Histories Ecclesiastical, agreeing to the verity of God's word, alleged out of the Old Testament and the New, that images and image-worshipping were in the Primitive Church (which was most pure and incorrupt) abhored and detested, as abominable and contrary to true Christian Religion. And that when images began to creep into the Church, they were not only spoken and written against by godly and learned Bishops, Doctors, and Clerks, but also condemned by whole Councils of Bishops and learned men assembled together, yea, the said Images by many Christian Emperors and Bishops were defaced, broken, and destroyed, and that above seven hundred, and eight hundred years ago, and that thencefore it is not of late dates (as some would bear you in hand) that images and image-worshipping have been spoken and written against. Finally, you have heard what mischief and misery hath by the occasion of the said images fallen upon whole Christendom, besides the loss of infinite souls, which is most horrible of all. Wherefore let us beseech God, that we, being warned by his holy word, forbidding all idolatry, and by the writing of old godly Doctors and Ecclesiastical Histories written, and preserved by God's Ordinance for our admonition and warning, may flee from all idolatry, and to escape the horrible punishment and plagues, as well worldly, as everlasting, threaten'd by the same, which God our heavenly Father grant us, for our only Saviour and Mediator, Jesus Christ's sake. Amen.
The Third Part of the Homily against Images, and the worshipping of them, containing the confutation of the principal Arguments which are used to be made for the maintenance of Images. Which part may serve to instruct the Curates themselves, or men of good Understanding.

O W we have heard how plainly, how vehemently, and that in many places, the Word of God speaks against not only idolatry and worshipping of images, but also against idols and images themselves: (I mean always thus herein, in that we be stirred and provoked by them to worship them, and not as though they were simply forbidden by the New Testament, without such occasion and danger.) And we have heard likewise out of Histories Ecclesiastical, the beginning, proceeding, and success of idolatry by images, and the great contention in the Church of Christ about them, to the great trouble and decay of Christendom; and which we have heard the sentences of old ancient Fathers, and godly learned Doctors and Bishops, against images and idolatry, taken out of their own writings. It remaineth, that such reasons as be made for the maintenance of images, and excessive painting, gilding and dressing, as well of them, as of the Temples or Churches, also be answered and confuted, partly by application of some places before alleged, to their reasons, and partly, by otherwise answering the same. Which part hath the last place in this Treatise, for that it cannot be well understood of the meaner sort, nor the arguments of image-maintainers, can without pitieth too much tedious, be answered without the knowledge of the Treatise going before. And although divers things before mentioned, be here rehearsed again, yet this repetition is not superfluous, but in a manner necessary, for that the simple sort cannot else understand how the cogent places are to be applied to the arguments of such as do maintain images, wherein otherwise they might be abused.

First, it is alleged by them that maintain images, that all laws, prohibitions and curbs, noted by us out of the holy Scripture, and sentences of the Doctors also by us alleged, against images and the worshipping of them, appertain to the gods of the Gentiles or Pagans, as the idol of Jupiter, Mars, Mercury, &c. and not to our images of God, of Christ and his Saints. But it shall be declared both by God's Word, and the sentences of the ancient Doctors, and judgment of the Primitive Church, that all images, as well ours, as the idols of the Gentiles, be forbidden and unlawful, namely in Churches and Temples. And first this is to be replied out of God's Word, that the images of God the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost, either severally, or the images of the Trinity, which we had in every Church, be by the Scriptures expressly and directly forbidden, and condemned, as appeareth by these places: the Lord spake unto you out of the middle of fire, you heard the Voice, voice or sound of his words, but you did see no form or shape at all, left peradventure you being deceived, should make to your self any graven image or likeness, and so forth, as is at large rehearsed in the first part of this Treatise against Images. And therefore in the old Law, the middle of the propitiatory, which represented God's Seat, was empty, left any should take occasion to make any similitude or likeness of him. Isaiah, after he hath let forth the incomprehensible Majesty of God, he asketh, to whom then will ye make God like? or what similitude will ye let up unto him? Shall the Carver make him a carved image? and shall the Goldsmith cover him with gold, or cast him into a form of silver plates? And for the poor man, shall the image-maker frame an image of timber, that he may have something to set up also? And after this he cryeth out: O wretched, heard ye never of this? Hath it not been preached to you since the beginning, how by the creation of the world, and the greatness of the works, they might understand the Majesty of God, the Maker and Creator of all, to be greater then that it could be expressed or let forth in any image of bodily similitude? Thus far the Prophet Isaiah, who from the 9th Chapter, to the 11th, treated in a manner of no other thing. And S. Paul, in the Acts of the Apostles, evidently teacheth the same, that no similitude can be made unto God, in gold, silver, stone, or any other matter. By these and many other places of Scripture it is evident, that no image either ought, or can be made unto God. For how can God, a most pure Spirit, whom man never saw, be expressed by a gross, bodily, and visible similitude? How can the infinite Majesty and Greatness of God, incomprehensible to mankind, much more not able to be compassed with the senses, be expressed in a small and little image? How can a dead and dumb image express the living God? What can an image, which when it is fallen, cannot rise up again, which can neither help his friends, nor hurt his enemies, express of the most puissant and mighty God, who alone is able to reward his friends, and to destroy his enemies eternally? A man might justly cry with the Prophet Habakkuk, Shall such Images instruct or teach any thing right of God? Or shall they become Doctors?
Wherefore men that have made an image of God, whereby to honour him, have thereby dishonoured him most highly, diminished his Majesty, diminished his glory, and falsified his truth. And therefore S. Paul saith, that such as have framed any similitude or image of God like a noble man, or any other likeness, in timber, stone, or any other matter, have changed his truth into a lie. For both they thought it to be no longer that which it was, a stock or stone, and took it to be that which it was not, as God, or an image of God. Wherefore an image of God is not only a lie, but a double lie also. But the Devil is a liar, and the Father of lies: wherefore the lying images which he made of God, to his great dishonour, and horrible danger of his people, came from the Devil.

Wherefore they be consist of foolishness and wickedness in making of images of God, or the Trinity; for that no image of God ought can be made, as by the Scriptures and good reason evidently appear-eth; yea, and once to despise the image of God, cometh of insobriety, thinking not God to be present, except they might see some sign of image of him, as appeareth by the Hebrews in the wilderness, willing Aaron to make them gods whom they might see go before them. Where they object, that seeing Isaiah and Daniel, by certain descriptions of God, as sitting on a high seat, &c. Why may not a painter likewise set him forth in colours to be seen, as it were a judge sitting on a throne, as well as he is described in writing by the Prophets, seeing that Scripture of Writing, and Picture, differ but a little: First, it is to be answered, that things forbidden by God's word, as painting of images of God, and things permitted of God, as such descriptions used of the Prophets, be not all one: neither ought, nor can man's reason (although it were never so good) prevail anything against God's express word, and plain Statute Law, as I may well term it. Furthermore, the Scripture, although it have certain descriptions of God, yet if you read forward, it expoundeth it well, declaring that God is a pure Spirit, infinite, who replenisheth Heaven and Earth, which the picture doth not, nor expoundeth it well, but rather when it hath set God forth in a bodily similitude, leadeth a man there, and will easily bring one into the Prescise of the Anthropomorphites, thinking God to have hands and feet, and to sit as a man doth: which they that do (saith St. Augustine in his Book de Hele & Symbolo cap. 7.) fall into that Sacrilege which the Apostle detesteth in those, who have changed the glory of the incorruptible God, into the similitude of a corruptible man. For it is wickedness for a Christian to erect such an image to God in a Temple, and much more wickedness to erect such an one in his heart, by believing of it. But to this they reply, that this reason notwithstanding, images of Christ may be made, for that he took upon him flesh, and became man. It were well that they would first grant, that they have hitherto done most wickedly, in making and maintaining of images of God, and of the Trinity in every place, whereof they are by force of God's word and good reason convicted; and then to descend to the tryal for other images.

Now concerning their Objection, that an image of Christ may be made, the answer is easy: For in God's Word and Religion, it is not only required whether a thing may be done, or not: but also, whether it be lawful and agreeable to God's word to be done, or not. For all wickedness may be, and is daily done, which ought not to be done. And the words of the reasons above alleged out of the Scriptures are, that images neither ought, nor can be made unto God. Wherefore to reply that images of Christ may be made, except withal it be proved that it is lawful for them to be made, is, rather than to hold ones peace to say somewhat, but nothing to the purpose. And yet it appeareth that no image can be made of Christ, but a lying image (as the Scripture particularly calleth images lies) for Christ is God and man. Seeing therefore, that for the Godhead, which is the most excellent part, no images can be made, it is falsely called the image of Christ. Wherefore images of Christ be not only defective, but also lies. Which reason serveth also for the images of Saints, whose souls, the most excellent parts of them, can be no images be presented and expressed. Wherefore, they be no images of Saints, whose souls reign in joy with God, but of the bodies of Saints, which as yet are putrid in the graves. Furthermore, no true image can be made of Christ's body, for it is unknown now of what form and countenance he was. And there be in Greece and at Rome, and in other places, divers images of Christ, and none of them like to other, and yet every of them affirmeth, that there is the true and lively image of Christ, which cannot possibly be. Therefore, as soon as an image of Christ is made, by and by is a lie made of him, which by Gods word is forbidden. Which also is true of the images of any Saints of antiquity, for that it is unknown of what form and countenance they were. Wherefore seeing that Religion ought to be grounded upon truth, Images which cannot be without lies, ought not to be made, or put to any use of Religion, or to be placed in Churches and Temples, places particularly appointed to true Religion and service of God.
And thus much, that no true image of God, our Saviour Christ, or his Saints can be made: wherewithal is also confuted that their allegation, that images be the Lopes mens Books. For it is evident by that which is afores rehearsed, that they teach no things of God, of our Saviour Christ, and of his Saints, but lies and errors. Wherefore either they be no Books, or if they be, they be false and lying Books, the teachers of all error.

And now if it should be admitted and granted, that an image of Christ could truly be made, yet it is unlawful that it should be made, yea, or that the image of any Saint should be made, specially to be set up in Temples, to the great and unavoidable danger of idolatry, as hereafter shall be proved. And first concerning the image of Christ, that though it might be bad truly, yet it were unlawful to have it in Churches publicly, is a notable place in Irenaeus, who reproved the Paeastics called Gnostics, for that they carried about the image of Christ, made truly after his own proportion in Pilate’s time (as they said) and therefore more to be esteemed than those lying images of him which we now have. The which Gnostics also used to set garlands upon the head of the said image, to shew their affection to it. But to go to God’s word. Be not, I pray you, the words of the Scripture plain? Beware lest thou be deceived, make to thy self (to say, to any use of Religion) any graven image, or any similitude of any thing, &c. And cursed be the man that maketh a graven or molten image, abomination before the Lord, &c. Be not our images such? Be not our images of Christ and his Saints, either carved or molten, or cast, or similitudes of men and women; It is happy that we have not followed the Gentiles in making of images of beasts, fishes, and verminis also. Notwithstanding, the image of an Horse, as also the image of the Ass that Christ rode on, have in divers places been brought into the Church and Temple of God. And is not that which is written in the beginning of the Lord’s most holy Law, and daily read unto you, most evident also? Thou shalt not make any likeness of any thing in heaven above, in earth beneath, or in the water under the earth, &c. Could any more be forbidden, and said, than this? Either of the kinds of images, which be either carved, molten, or otherwise similitudes? or of things whereof images are forbidden to be made?
Are not all things either in heaven, earth, or water under the earth?
And by not our images of Christ and his Saints, likenesses of things in heaven, earth, or in the water? If they continue in their former answer, that these prohibitions concern the idols of the Gentiles, and not our images: First, that answer is already confuted, concerning the images of God and the Trinity, at large, and concerning the images of Christ also, by Irenaeus. And that the Law of God is likewise to be understood against all our images, as well of Christ, as his Saints, in Temples and Churches, appeareth further by the judgment of the old Dotors, and Primitive Church. Epiphanius renting a painted cloth, wherein was the picture of Christ, or of some Saint, affirning it to be against our Religion, that any such image should be had in the Temple of Church (as is before at large declared) judged that not only images of the Gentiles, but that all images of Christ and his Saints also, were forbidden by God's Word and our Religion. Laetanius affirming it to be certain, that no true Religion can be where any image of picture is (as is before declared) judged, that as well all images and pictures, as the idols of the Gentiles were forbidden, else would be not to generally have spoken and pronounced of them. And S. Augustine (as is before alleged) greatly allowed M. Varro, affirming that Religion is most pure Civ. Dei. In without images; and faith himself, Images be of more force to crook Ps. 36. 13. an unhappy soul, than to reach and instruct it. And he lastly further, every child, yea, every beast knoweth that it is not God that they see. Wherefore then both the Poly Stoic so often admonish us of that which all men know; Whereunto S. Augustine answereth us. For (faith he) when images are placed in Temples, and set in honourable subtility, and begin once to be worshipp'd, forthwith breeth the most vile affection oferror. This is Saint Augustine's judgment of images in Churches, that by and by they breed error and idolatry. The Christian Emperors, the learned Bishops, all the learned men of Asia, Greece, and Spain, assembled in Councils at Constantinople and in Spain, seven and eight hundred years ago, and more, condemning and destroying all images, as well of Christ, as of the Saints, set up by the Christians (as is before at large declared) testifie, that they understood God's word so, that it fo bad our images, as well as the idols of the Gentiles. And as it is written, 1 Sam. 28. that images were not from the beginning, neither shall they continue to the end; So were they not in the beginning in the Primitive Church, God grant they may in the end be destroyed. For all Christians in the Primitive Church, as Origen against Celsus, Origems, Cyprian also and Arnobius do testify, were thus charged and complained on, that they had no Altars nor Images. Wherefore did they not (If you pray you) confound themselves to the Gentiles in making of images, but for lack of them sustaine their heavy displeasure, if they had taken it to be lawful by God's word to have images? It is evident therefore, that they took all images to be unlawful in the Church of Temple of God, and therefore had none (though the Gentiles therefore were most highly displeased) following this rule, We must obey God rather than men. And Zephyrus, in his Notes upon the Apology of Tertullian, saith, that all his vehement perswasion should be but cold, except we know this once for all, that Christian men in his time did most hate images, with their ornaments. And Irenaeus (as is above declared) repro- veth the Persecutors called Gnotici, for that they carried about the image of Christ. And therefore the Primitive Church, which is specially to be followed as most incorrupt and pure, hath publicly in Churches neither images of the Gentiles, nor any other images, as things dearely forbidden by God's word. And thus it is declared by God's word, the sentences of the Doctors, and the judgment of the Primitive Church, which was most pure and sincere, that all images, as well ours, as the idols of the Gentiles, be by God's word forbidden, and therefore unlawful, specially in Temples and Churches.

Now if they (as their custom is) see to this answer, that God's word forbidden not absolutely all Images to be made, but that they should should not be made to be worshipped, and therefore we may have images, to we worship them not, for that they be things indifferent, which may be abused, or well used. Which seemeth also to be the judgment of Damascene and Gregory the first, as is above declared. And this is one of their chief allegations for the maintenance of images, which have been alleged since Gregory the first his time.

Well then, we be come to their second allegation, which in part we would not stick to grant them. For we are not to superstitions or superfluous, that we do abhor either flowers wrought in carpets, hangings, and other arras, either images of princes painted or stamped in their copyns, which Christ did see in a Roman copyn, we read not that he reprehended it, neither do we condemn the arts of painting and image-making, as wicked of themselves. But we would abuse and grant them, that images used for no Religion, or Superstition rather, we mean the images of none worshipped, not in danger to be worshipped of any, may be suffered. But images placed publicly in temples, cannot possibly be without danger of worshipping and idolatry, wherefore they are not publickly to be had of suffered in temples and Churches. The Jews, to whom this Law was first given (and yet being a moral Commandment, and not ceremonial, as all Doctors interpret it, it bindeth us as well as them) the Jews I say, who should have the true sense and meaning of Gods Law, so peculiarly given unto them, neither had in the beginning any images publicly in their temple (as Origen and Celse, Josephus at large declare) neither after the restitution of the temple, would by any means consent to Herod, Pilate, or Petronius, that images should be placed only in the temple at Jerusalem, although no worshipping of images was required at their hands; but rather offered themselves to the death, than to assent that images should once be placed in the temple of God, neither would they suffer any image-maker among them. And Origen added this cause, lest their minds should be plucked from God, to the contemplation of earthly things. And they are much commended for this earnest zeal, in maintaining of Gods honour and true religion. And truth it is, that the Jews and Turks, who abhor Images and Icons as directly forbidden by Gods Word, will never come to the truth of our religion, whilst the stumbling blocks of Images remain amongst us, and tie in their way. If they object yet the broken Serpent which Moses did set up, or the Images of the Cherubims, or any other Images which the Jews had in their temple, the answer is easy: We must in Religion obey Gods general Law; which bindeth all men, and not follow examples of particular dispensation, which be no warrants for us; else we may by the same reason refuse Circumcision and Sacrificing of Beasts, and other Rites permitted to the Jews. Neither can those images of Cherubims, set in secret where no man might come, nor be any example for our publick setting up of Images in Churches and Temples. But to let the Jews go, Where they say that images, so be not worshipped; as things indifferent may be tolerable in Temples and Churches: we infer and say for the adversative, that all our images of God, our Saviour Christ, and his Saints, publicly set up in Temples and Churches, places peculiarly appointed to the true worshipping of God, be not things indifferent, not tolerable; but against Gods Law and Commandment, taking their

their own interpretation and exposition of it. First, for that all images, to set up publickly, have been worshipped of the unlearned and simple sort shortly after they have been publickly to set up, and in conclusion, of the wise and learned also. Secondly, for that they are worshipped in sundry places now in our time also. And thirdly, for that it is impossible that images of God, Christ, or his Saints, can be suffered (especially in Temples and Churches) any while or space, without worshipping of them: and that idolatry, which is most abominable before God, cannot possibly be escaped and abounded, without the abolishing and destruction of images and pictures in Temples and Churches, for that idolatry is to images, specially in Temples and Churches, an inseparable accident (as they term it) to those images in Churches, and idolatry, go always both together, and that therefore the one cannot be avoided except the other (speciallly in all publick places) be destroyed. Wherefore, to make images, and publickly to set them up in the Temples and Churches, places appointed peculiarly to the service of God, is to make images to the use of Religion, and not only against this Precept, Thou shalt make no manner of images; but against this also, Thou shalt not bow down to them, nor worship them. For they being set up, have been, be, and ever will be worshipped. And the full proof of that which in the beginning of the first part of this Treatise was touched, is here to be made and performed: to wit, that our images, and idols of the Gentiles be all one, as well in the things themselves, as also in that our images have been before, be now, and ever will be worshipped, in like form and manner, as the idols of the Gentiles were worshipped, so long as they be suffered in Churches and Temples. Whereupon it followeth, that our images in Churches have been, be, and ever will be none other but abominable idols, and be therefore no things indifferent. And every of these parts shall be proved in order, as hereafter followeth. And first, that our images, and the idols of the Gentiles, be all one concerning themselves, is most evident, the matter of them being gold, silver, or other metal, stone, wood, clay, or plaster, as were the idols of the Gentiles, and so being either moulder or cast, either carved, graven, hewn, or otherwise formed and fashioned after the similitude and likeness of man or woman, be dead and dumb works of mans hands, having mouths and speak not, eyes and see not, hands and feel not, and go not, and so as well in form as matter, be altogether like the idols of the Gentiles. Insomuch that all the titles which be given to the idols in the Scriptures, may be verified of our images. Wherefore, no doubt but the like curtesies which are mentioned in the Scriptures, will light upon the makers and worshippers of them both. Secondly, that they have been and be worshipped in our time, in like form and manner as were the idols of the Gentiles, is now to be proved. And for that idolatry standeth chiefly in the mind, it shall in this part first be proved, that our image-maintainers have had, and have the same opinions and judgment of Saints, whose images they have made and worshipped, as the Gentiles idolaters had of their gods. And afterwards shall be declared, that our image-maintainers and worshippers, have used, and use the same outward Rites and manner of honouring and worshipping their images, as the Gentiles did use before their idols, and that therefore they commit idolatry, as well inwardly and outwardly, as did the wicked Gentiles idolaters.

And concerning the first part of the idolatrous opinions of our image-maintainers. What I say you, be such Saints with us, to whom we attribute the defence of certain Countries, spoiling God of his due honour herein, but Dii Tuciilares of the Gentiles idolaters? Such as were Belus to the Babylonians and Assyrians, Osiris and Isis to the Egyptians, Vulcan to the Lemnians, and to such other. What be such Saints to whom the safeguard of certain Cities are appointed, but Dii Presides with the Gentiles idolaters? Such as were at Delphos Apollo, at Athens Minerva, at Carthage Juno, at Rome Quirinus, &c. What be such Saints, to whom, contrary to the use of the Primitive Church, Temples and Churches be builded, and Altars erected, but Dii Patroni, of the Gentiles idolaters? Such as were in the Capitol, Jupiter, in Paphus Temple Venus, in Ephesus Temple Diana; and such like. Alas, we seem in thus thinking and doing to have learned our Religion, not out of Gods word, but out of the Pagan Poets, who say, Excepere omnes adyaxis, ariique religiosis, Dii quibus imperium hoc steterat, &c. That is to say, All the gods by whole defence this Empire stood, are gone out of the Temples, and have forsaken their Altars. And where one Saint hath images in divers places, the same Saint hath divers names thereof, most like to the Gentiles. When you hear of our Lady of Walsingham, our Lady of Ipswich, our Lady of Walsingham, and such others; what is it but an imitation of the Gentiles idolaters? Diana Agrotera, Diana Corinpha, Diana Ephesia, Venus Cypria, Venus Paphia, Venus Gnidi. Whereby it evidently means, that the Saint for the image sake, should in those places, as in the images themselves, have a dwelling, which is the ground of their idolatry. For where no images be, they have no such means. Terentius Varro says, that there were three hundred Jupiters in his time, there were so few Venus and Dianas, we had no fewer Christophers, Ladies, and Mary Magdalens, and other Saints, Venus, Aenea, and Hercules, that in their time there were thirty thousand gods. I think we had no fewer Saints, to whom we gave the honour due to God. And they have not only spoiled the true living God of his due Honour in Temples, Cities, Countries, and Lands, by such deceits and inventions as the Gentiles idolaters have done before them, but the Sea and Waters have as well special Saints with them, as they had Gods with the Gentiles, Neptune, Triton, Nereus, Caetor, and Polux, Venus, and such others: In whole places be come Saint Christopher, Saint Clement, and divers other, and specially our Lady, to whom shipmen sing Ave maris Stella. Neither hath the fire leaped the idolatrous inventions. For instead of Vulcan and Vesta, the Gentiles gods of the fire, our men have placed Saint Agatha, and make letters on her day to quench fire with. Every Artificer and Profession hath his special Saint, as a peculiar god. As for example, Scholars have Saint Nicholas, and S. Gregory, Painters, S. Luke; neither lack Souldiers their Mars, nor Lovers their Venus, amongst Christians. All Physicians have their special Saints, as gods the curers of them. The Pope Saint Roche, the Falling-ill Saint Cornelis, the Toothache Saint Apollin, &c. Neither do braits nor cattel lack their gods with us, for Saint Loy is the Poultech, and Saint Anthony the Linnenhead, &c. Where is Gods Providence and due honour in the mean season? Who faith, The Heavens be mine, and the Earth is mine, the whole world and all that in it is, I do give victory, and I put to flight, of me be all countless and help,

help, &c. Except I keep the City, in vain both he watch that keepeth it, thou Lord shalt save both men and beasts. But we have left him neither heaven, nor earth, nor water, nor country, nor city, peace nor war, to rule and govern, neither men, nor beasts, nor their diseases to cure: that a godly man might duly for jealous indignation cry out, O heaven, O earth, and seas, what madness and wickedness against God are men fallen into! What dishonour do the Creatures to their Creator and Maker! And if we remember God sometimes, yet because we doubt of his ability or will to help, we join to him another helper, as if he were a Mourn Adjective, using these sayings; such as learn, God and Saint Nicholas be my speed: such as need, God help and Saint John: to the Pope, God and Saint Loy save thee. Thus are we become like Hylites and Wyules, which have no understanding. For, is there not one God only, who by his power and wisdom made all things, and by his providence governeth the same; and by his goodness maintaineth and laboureth them? Be not all things of him, by him, and through him? Why dost thou turn from the Creator to the Creatures? This is the manner of the Gentiles idolaters: but thou art a Christian, and therefore by Christ alone hast access to God the Father, and help of him only. These things are not written to any reproach of the Saints themselves, who were the true Servants of God, and did give all honour to him, taking none unto themselves, and are blessed souls with God; but against our foolishness and wickedness, making of the true Servants of God, false gods, by attributing to them the power and honour which is God's, and due to him only. And for that we have such opinions of the power and ready help of Saints, all our Legends, Hymns, Sequences, and Pasties, did contain Stories, Laws, and Pasties of them, and Prayers to them; and, and Sermons also altogether of them, and to their pasties, Gods wood being clean laid aside. And this we do altogether agreeable to the Saints, as did the Gentiles idolaters to their false Gods. For these opinions which men have had of mortal persons, were they never so holy, the old most godly and learned Pagans have written against the reigning Gods of the Gentiles, and Christian Persons have destroyed their images, who if they were now living, would doubtless likewise both write against our false opinions of Saints, and also destroy their images. For it is evident, that our image-maintainers have the same opinion of Saints which the Gentiles had of their false gods, and thereby are moved to make them images as the Gentiles did. If answer be made, that they make Saints but intercessors to God, and means for such things as they would obtain of God: that is, even after the Gentiles idolatrous usage, to make them of Saints, gods, called Di Mediosine, to be mean intercessors and helpers to God, as though he did not hear, or should be weary if he did all alone. So did the Gentiles teach, that there was one chief power working by other, as means, and to they made all Gods subject to fate of beings: as Lucian in his Dialogues saith that Neptune made fuit to Mercury, that he might speak with Jupiter. And therefore is this also, it is most evident that our image-maintainers be all one in opinion with the Gentiles idolaters.

Now remaineth the third part, that their Rites and Ceremonies in honouring and worshipping of the Images of Saints be all one with the Rites which the Gentiles idolaters used in honouring their idols.
The Third part of the Sermon

First, what meaneth it, that Christians, after the example of the Gentiles idolaters, go on pilgrimage to visit images, where they have the like at home, but that they have a greater opinion of holiness and virtue in some images, than other some, like as the Gentiles idolaters had; which is the readiest way to bring them to idolatry by worshiping of them, and directly against God's word, who saith, 'Seek me, and ye shall find me, and do not seek Bethel, enter not into Gilgal, neither go to Beersheba.' And against such as had any superstition in holiness of the place, as though they should be heard for the places sake, saying, Our Father's worshipped in this Mountain, and ye say, that at Jerusalem is the place where men should worship; our Saviour Christ pronounced, 'Believe me, the hour cometh when ye shall worship the Father, neither in this Mountain, nor at Jerusalem, but true worshippers shall worship the Father in spirit and truth.' But it is too well known, that by such pilgrimage going, Lady Venus and her son Cupid, were rather worshipped wantonly in the flesh, than God the Father, and our Saviour Christ his Son, truly worshipped in the spirit.

And it was very agreeable (as Saint Paul teacheth) that they which fell to idolatry, which is spiritual cognition, should also fall into carnal cognition, and all uncleanness, by the just judgments of God, deliver them over to abominable concupiscences.

What meaneth it, that Christian men, after the use of the Gentiles idolaters, cap and kneel before images; which if they had any sense and gratitude, would kneel before men, Carpenters, Masons, Plasterers, Founders, and Goldsmiths, their makers and framers, by whose means they have attained this honour, which else should have been everlasting and rude lumps of clay, or plaster, pieces of timber, stone, or metal, without shape or fashion, and to without all estimation and honour, as that idol in the Pagan Poet confesseth, saying, I was once a vile block, but now I am become a God, &c. What a foul thing is it for man, who hath life and reason, to bow himself to a dead and insensible Image, the work of his own hand? is not this slopping and kneeling before them, adoration of them, which is forbidden to every other by God's word? Let such as so fall down before images of Saints, know and confess that they exhibit that honour to dead stones and stones, which the Saints themselves, Peter, Paul, and Barnabas would not to be given them being alive, which the Angel of God forbiddeth to be given to him. And if they lay, they exhibit such honour not to the image, but to the Saint whom it representeth, they are convicted of folly, to believe that they please Saints with that honour, which they abhor as a spoil of God's honour: for they be no changelings: but now both having greater understanding, and more fervent love of God, do more abhor to deprive him of his due honour: and being now like unto the Angels of God, do with Angels see to take unto them by sacrifice the honour due to God. And here-withal is confuted their low distinction of Laura and Dulia, where it is evident, that the Saints of God cannot abide, that as much as any outward worshipping be done of them. But Satan, God's enemy, desiring to rob God of his honour, desiring exceedingly that such honour might be given to him. Wherefore those which give the honour due to the Creator, to any Creature, do servile acceptable to no Saints, who be the friends of God, but unto Satan, God and mans moral and

soon enemy. And to attribute such desire of divine honour to Saints, is to blot them with a most odious and deplorable ignominy and villany, and indeed of Saints to make them Saxons and very Devils, whose property is to challenge to themselves the honour which is due to God only. And furthermore, in that they say that they do not worship the images, as the Gentiles did their idols, but God and the Saints whom the images do represent, and therefore that their beings before images, be not like the idolatry of the Gentiles before their idols, Saint Augustine, Laetantius, and Clemens, do prove evidently, that by this answer, they be all one with the Gentiles Idolaters. The Gentiles [S. 135, (faith Saint Augustine) which seem to be of the purer Religion, say, We worship not the images, but by the corporeal image, we do behold the signs of the things which we ought to worship. And Laetantius faith, The Gentiles say, we fear not the images, but them after whole likenesses the images be made, and to whole names they be consecrated. Thus far Laetantius. And Clemens faith, That Serpent the Devil, uttereth these words by the mouth of certain men, We to the honour of the invisible God, worship visible images: which latter is most false. See how in using the same excuses which the Gentiles idolaters pretended, they shew themselves to join with them in idolatry. For notwithstanding this excuse, Saint Augustine, Clemens, and Laetantius prove them idolaters. And Clemens faith, That the Serpent, the Devil, putteth such excuses in the mouth of the idolaters, And the Scriptures say, they worship the stock and stones (notwithstanding this excuse) even as our image-maintainers do. And Ezekiel therefore calleth the Gods of the Assyrians, stocks and stones, although they were but images of their Gods. So are our images of God and the Saints named by the names of God and his Saints, after the use of the Gentiles. And the same Clemens faith thus in the same Book, They dare not give the name of the Emperor to any other, for he punisheth his offender and treptoure by and by: but they dare give the name of God to others, because he for repentance suffreth his offenders. And even so do our image-worshippers give both names of God and the Saints, and also the honour due to God, to their images, even as the Gentiles idolaters to their idols. What should it mean that they, according as did the Gentiles idolaters, light candles at noon time, or at midnight, before them, but therewith to honour them? for other use is there none in so doing. For in the day it needeth not, but was ever a provest of foolishness, to light a candle at noon time. And in the night, it abateth not to light a candle before the blind, and God hath neither use nor honour thereof. And concerning this candle-lighting, it is notable that Laetantius above a thousand years ago hath written, after this manner, If they would behold the heavenly light of the Sun, then should they perceive that God hath no need of their candles, who for the use of man hath made to Godly a Light. And whereas in to little a circle of the Sun, which for the great distance, seemeth to be no greater than a mans head, there is to great brightnes, that the light of mans Eye is not able to behold it, but if one steadfastly look upon it a while, his Eyes will be dulled and blinded with darkness. How great light, how great clearness may we think to be with God, with whom is no night nor darkness? and so forth. And by and by he faith, Seemeth he therefore to be in his right mind.

mind, who offereth up to the giver of light, the light of a war candle for a gift? He requireth another light of us, which is not smoky, but bright and clear, even the light of the mind and understanding. And shortly after he saith, But their gods, because they be earthy, have need of light, lest they remain in darkness, whose worshippers, because they understand no heavenly thing, do draw religion, which they use, down to the earth, in which being dark of nature, is need of light. Wherefore they give to their gods no heavenly, but the earthly understanding of mortal men. And therefore they believe those things to be necessary and pleasant unto them, which are to us, who have need either of meat when we be hungry, or drink when we be thirsty, or clothing when we be cold, or when the Sun is set, candle light, that we may see. Thus far Laclantius, and much more, too long here to write, of candle lighting in Temples before images and idols for Religion: whereby appeareth both the foolishness thereof, and also, that in opinion and act, we do agree altogether in our Candle Religion, with the Gentiles idolaters. What meaneth it that they, after the example of the Gentiles idolaters, burn incense, offer up gold to images, hang up crucifixes, chains, and nips, legs, arms, and whole men and women of war, before images, as though by them, or Saints (as they say) they were delivered from lameness, sickness, captivity, or shipwreck? Is not this Colere imagines, to worship images, to earnestly forbidden in Gods Word? If they deny it, let them read the 11th Chapter of Daniel the Prophet, who saith of Antichrist, He shall worship God whom his Fathers knew not, with gold, silver, and with precious stone, and other things of pleasure: in which place the Latin word is Colere, And in the second of Paralipomenon the 9th Chapter, all the outward Rites and Ceremonies, as burning of incense, and such other, wherewith God in the Temple was honoured, is called Cultus (to say) worshiping, which is forbidden strictly by Gods word to be given to images. Do not all Stoics Ecclesiastical declare, that our holy Martyrs, rather than they would bow and kneel, or offer up one crum of incense before an image of fool, have suffered a thousand kinds of most horrible and dreadful death? And what excels soever they make, yet that all this running on pilgrimage, burning of incense and candles, hanging up of crucifixes, chains, nips, arms, legs, and whole men and women of war, kneeling and holding up of hands, is done to the images, appeareth by this, that where no images be, or where they have been, and be taken away, they do no such things at all. But all the places frequented when the images were there, now they be taken away, be forsaken and left desert, nap, now they hate and abhor the place deadly, which is an evident proof, that that which they did before, was done in respect of the images. Wherefore, when we see men and women on heaps go on pilgrimage to images, kneel before them, hold up their hands before them, set up candle, burn incense before them, offer up gold and silver unto them, hang up nips, crucifixes, chains, men and women of war before them, attributing health and safeguard, the gifts of God, to them, or the Saints whom they represent, as they rather would have it; who, I say, who can doubt, but that our image-maintainers, agreeing in all idolatrous opinions, outward Rites and Ceremonies with the Gentiles idolaters, agree also with them in committing most abominable idolatry? And to increase this madness, wicked men which have the keeping of such images, for their greater lure and advantage, after the example of the Gentiles idolaters, have reported and spread abroad, as well by lying tales, as written fables, divers mi-cracies of images. As that such an image miraculously was sent from Heaven, even like the Palladium, or magna Diana Ephesorum. Such another was as miraculously found in the earth, as the mans head was in the Caparol, or the hoste head in Capua. Such an image was brought by angels.
Such an one came it self far from the East to the West, as same Fortune fled to Rome. Such an image of our Lady was painted by Saint Luke, whom of a Physician they have made a Painter for that purpose.
Such an one an hundred pokes of oxen could not move, like Bona Dea, whom the ship could not carry, of Jupiter Olympus, which taught the Artistcrs to copy that went about to remove him to Rome. Some images, though they were hard and stone, yet for tender heart and pity, were Some like Cator and Pollux, helping their friends in battle, sweat, as marble pillars do in dampish weather. Some speak more monitory than ever did Balaam's Ake, who had life and breath in him. Such a Triple came and saluted this Saint of Oak, and by and by he was made whole, and too here hanged his crutch. Such an one in a tempest bowed to Saint Christopher, and leaped, and beheld here is his ship of war.
Such an one by Saint Leonards help make out of pilton, and see where his fetters hang. And infinite thousands more miracles, by like or more nameless lies were reported. Thus do our image-maineters, in ears apply to their images, all such miracles as the Gentiles have reigned of their idols. And if it were to be admitted, that some miraculous was were by illusion of the Devil done where images be: (For it is evident that the most part were reigned lies, and crafty jugglings of men) yet followeth it not therefore, that such images are either to be honoured, or suffered to remain, no more than Ezekias left the broken Serpent undestroyed, when it was worshipped, although it were both set up by Gods Commandment, and also approved by a great and true miracle, for as many as beheld it, were by and by healed: neither ought miracles to pervert us to do contrary to Gods word. For the Scriptures have for a warning hereof foresewed, that the Kingdom of Antichrist shall be mighty in miracles and wonders, to the strong illusion of all the Reprobate. But in this they pass the folly and wickedness of the Gentiles, that they honour and worship the relics and bones of our Saints, which prove that they be mortal men and dead, and therefore no gods to be worshipped, which the Gentiles would never confess of their gods for very shame. But the relics we must kiss and offer unto, especially on relique Sunday. And whilst we offer (that we should not be weary of repetits of our cost) the music and minstrelie goeth merely all the offerery time, with praising and calling upon those Saints, whose relics were then in presence. Pea, and the water also wherein those relics have been dipped, must with great reverence be referred, as very holy and effectual. Is this agreeable to Saint Chrysostome, who writeth thus of Reliques? Do not regard the ages of the Saints bodies, nor the relics of their flesh and bones, consumed with time, but open the eyes of thy faith, and behold them clothed with heavenly luster, and the grace of the Holy Ghost, and shining with the brightness of the heavenly light. But our idolaters found too much vantage of relics and relique water, to follow Saint Chrysostome's counsel. And because Reliques were so gainful, few places there were but they had Reliques professed for them. And for more plenty of Reliques, some one Saint had many heads, one in one place, and another in another place. Some had the arms, and others the figures. And where our Lord bare his Cross alone, if all the pieces of the Reliques thereof were gathered together, the greatest ship in England would scarcely bear them, and yet the greatest part of it, they say, both yet remain in the hands of the Infidels, for which they pray on their heathy bidding, that they may get it also in their hands, for such a godly use and purpose. And not only the bones of the Saints, but every thing appertaining to them was an holy Relique. In some place they offer a loaf, in some the scabbard, in some a shoe, in some a saddle that had been set upon some holy place, in some the coats wherewith Saint Laurence was robed, in some places the salf of the Ape which our Lord Jesus Christ gave unto, to be kissed and offered unto for a Relique. For rather than they would lack a Relique, they would offer you a Pope's bone, instead of a Virgin's arm, or the salf of the Ape to be kissed and offered unto for Reliques. O wicked, impudent, and most shameless men, the debilers of these things! O silly, foolish, and dastardly wags, and more beastly than the Ape whose salf they kissed, that believe such things. Now God be merciful to such miserable and silly Christians, who by the fraud and falsehood of those which should have taught them the way of truth and life, have been made not more wicked than the Gentiles idolaters, but also no wiser than Asses, Poppes, and Hules, which have no understanding.

Of these things already rehearsed, it is evident, that our image-maintainers have not only made images, and let them up in Temples, as did the Gentiles idolaters their idols; but also that they have had the same idolatrous opinions of the Saints, to whom they have made images, which the Gentiles idolaters had of their false gods, and have not only worshipped their images with the same rites, ceremonies, superstition, and all circumstances, as did the Gentiles idolaters their idols; but in many points also have far exceeded them in all wickedness, foolishness, and madness. And if this be not sufficient to prove them image-worshippers, that is to say, Idolaters: I say, you shall hear their own open confession. I mean, not only, the decrees of the second Nicene Council under Irene, the Roman Council under Gregory the third, in which, as they teach that Images are to be honoured and worshipped, as is before declared: to yet to they warp and fearfully, in comparison to the blasphemous bold blasphemous insolent idolatry to be done to images, let forth of late, even in these our days, the light of God's truth so shining, that above other abominable doings and writings, a man would marvel most at their impudence, shameless, and most shameless blustering boldness, who would not at the least have chosen them a time of more darkness, as meeter to utter their horrid blasphemies in: but have now taken an Harlots face, not purposed to blush, in setting abroad the furniture of the Spiritual Abode. And hear the plain blasphemy of the reverend Father in God, James Naclan, Bishop of Cluclum, written in his Exposition of Saint Paul's Epistle to the Romans, and the first Chapter, and put in print now of late at Venice, may stand instead of all, whole words of image-worshippers be these in Latin as he did write them; not one syllable altered.

ErGO
against peril of Idolatry.

Ergo non formatum est, fideles in Ecclesia adorare coram imagine (ut nunnali ad caustelam forte loquuntur) sed & adorare imaginem, ut quo volueris, quin & co illam venerate culto, quo & prototypone justus propter quod fiulud habet adorare latra, & illa latra: si dulia, vel hyperdulia, & illa pariter ejusmodi cultu adorandae est.

The sense whereof in English is this: Therefore it is not only to be accounted, that the faithful in the Church do worship before an image (as some preadventure do warily speak) but also do worship the image it self, without any scruple or doubt at all: Yea, and they worship the image with the same kind of worship, wherewith they worship the copy of the image, or the thing whereby the image is made. Wherefore if the copy it self is to be worshipped with divine honour (as is God the Father, Christ, and the Holy Ghost) the image of them is also to be worshipped with divine honour. If the copy ought to be worshipped with inferior honour, or higher worship; the image is also to be worshipped with the same honour and worship. Thus saith Naclan tus, whose blasphemies let Pope Gregory the first confute, and by his Gregory's authority damn them to hell, as his successors had wisely humbly. For although Gregory permitted images to be had, yet he forbid them by any means to be worshipped, and praised much Bishop Serenus rennum Magis for the forbidding the worshippers of them, and wilteth him to teach the people to avoid by all means to worship any image. But, Naclan tus bloweth forth his blasphemous idoltry, willing images to be worshipped with the highest kind of adoration and worship; and lest such wholesome doctrine should lack authority, he groundeth it upon Aristotle in his Book de sommo & vigilia, that is, of sleeping and waking, as by his printed Book noted in the margin, is to be seen: whose impudent wickedness and idolatrous judgment, I have therefore more largely set forth, that ye may (as Virgil speaketh of Simon) of one know all these image-worshippers and idolaters, and understand to what point in conclusion the publick having of images in Temples and Churches hath brought us; comparing the times and writings of Gregory the first, with our dates, the blasphemies of such idolaters as this instrument of Belial, named Naclanus, is. Wherefore now it is by the testimony of the old godly Fathers and Doctors, by the open confession of Bishops assembled in Councils, by most evident signs and arguments, opinions, idolatrous acts, deeds, and worshipping done to their images, and by their own open confession and doctrine set forth in their Books, declared and shewed, that their images have been, and be commonly worshipped, yea, and that they ought so to be: I will out of Gods word make this general argument against all such makers, setters up, and maintainers of images in publick places. And first of all I will begin with the words of our Saviour Christ. To be so to that man by Mark. 18. whom an offence is given, we be to him that offendeth one of these little ones, or weak ones: better were it for him, that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and he cast into the middle of the Sea, and drowned, than he should offend one of these little ones, or weak ones. And in Deut. God himself denouneconth him assured that maketh the blind to wander in his way. And in Lev. Thou shalt not lay a stumbling block before the blind. But Images in Churches and Temples have been, and be, and (as afterward shall be proved) ever will be offences and stumbling blocks, specially to the weak, simple, and blind common people, deceiving their hearts by the cunning of the Artificer (as the Scripture expressly in hungry places both testifies) and so bringing them to idolatry. Therefore we be to the greater, letter up, and maintainer of images in Churches and Temples, for a greater penalty remained for him than the death of the body.

If it be yet made, that this offence might be taken away by diligent and sincere doctrine and preaching of God's Word, as by other means: and that images in Churches and Temples therefore be not things absolutely evil to all men, although dangerous to some: and therefore that it were to be holden, that the pubick having of them in Churches and Temples, is not expedient, as a thing pernicious, rather than unlawful, and a thing utterly wicked. Then followeth the third article to be proved, which is this: That it is not possible, if images be suffered in Churches and Temples, either by preaching of God's Word, or by any other means, to keep the people from worshipping of them, and to avoid idolatry. And first concerning preaching, if it should be admitted, that although images were suffered in Churches, yet might idolatry by diligent and sincere preaching of God's Word be avoided; it should follow of necessity, that sincere Doctrine might always be had and continue, as well as images, and so that wherefover to offence, were erected an image, there also, of reaon, a godly and sincere Preacher should and might be continually maintained. For it is reason, that the warning be as common as the stumbling block, the remedy as large as is the offence, the medicine as general as the popcon: but that is not possible, as both reason and experience teacheth. Wherefoere preaching cannot stay idolatry, images being pubickly suffered. For an image, which will last for many hundred years, may for a little be bought: but a good Preacher cannot without much be continually maintained. Item, if the Prince will suffer it, there will be by and by many, yea, infinite images: but sincere Preachers were, and ever shall be but a few in respect of the multitude to be taught. For our Saviour Christ saith, The harvest is plentiful, but the workmen be few: which hath been hitherto continually true, and will be to the World's end: And in our time, and here in our Country to true, there are scarce have one good Preacher, if they were divided.

Now images will continually to the beholders preach their doctrine, that is, the worshipping of images and idolatry, to the which Preaching mankind is exceeding prone, and inclined to give ear and credit: as experience of all nations and ages doth too much prove. But a true Preacher to say this mischief, is in very many places scarcely heard once in a whole year, and somewhere not once in seven years, as is evident to be proved. And that evil opinion which hath been long rooted in mens hearts, cannot suddenly by one Sermon be rooted out clean. And as few are inclined to credit found doctrine; as many, and almost all, be prone to superstition and idolatry. So that herein appeareth not only a difficulty, but also an impossibility of the remedy. Further, it appeareth not by any copy of credit, that true and sincere Preaching hath endured in any one place above one hundred years: But it is evident that images, superstition, and worshipping of images and idolatry have continued many hundred years. For all writings and experience do testifie, that good things do by little and little euer decay, until they be

be clean banished: and contracted, evil things do more and more increase, till they come to a full perfection and wickedness. Neither need we to seek examples far off for a proof hereof, our present matter is an example. For preaching of God's word most sincere (in the beginning) by precepts of time wagers less and less pure, and after corrupt, and last of all, altogether laid down and left off, and other inventions of men crept in place of it. And on the other part, images among Christian men were first painted, and that in whole stories together, which had some signification in them: Afterwards, they were embossed, and made of timber, stone, plaster, and metal. And first they were only kept privately in private men's houses: And then after, they crept into Churches and Temples, but first by painting, and after by embossing; and yet were they no where at the first worshipped. But shortly after they began to be worshipped of the ignorant sort of men, as appeareth by the Epistle that Gregory the first of that name, Bishop of Rome, did write to Serenus Bishop of Narbonne. Of which I two Bishops, Serenus for Idolatry committed to images, brake them, and burned them. Gregory, although he thought it tolerable to let them stand, yet he judged it abominable that they should be worshipped, and thought (as is now alleged) that the worshippimg of them might be stopped, by teaching of God's word, according as he exhorted Serenus to teach the people, as in the same Epistle appeareth. But whether Gregory's opinion, or Serenus judgment were better herein, consider ye. I pray you, so experience by and by confute Gregory's opinion. For notwithstanding Gregory's writing, and the preaching of others, images being once publicly set up in Temples and Churches, simple men and women shortly after fell on heaps to worshiping of them: And at the last, the learned also were carried away with the publick error, as with a violent stream of flood. And at the second Council Nicene, the Bishops and Clergy decreed, that images should be worshipped and so by occasion of these stumbling blocks, not only the unlearned and simple, but the learned and wise, not the people only, but the Bishops, not the shee, but also the shepherds themselves (who should have been guides in the right way, and right to shine in darkness) being blinded by the bewitching of images, as blind guides of the blind, fell both into the pit of damnable idolatry. In which the whole world, as it were drowned, continued until our age, by the space of above eight hundred years, unspoken against in a manner. And this success had Gregory's order, which mischief had never come to pass, had Bishop Serenus his way been taken, and all idols and images been utterly destroyed and abolished: for no man worshippeth that is not. And thus you see, how from having of images privately, it came to publick letting of them up in Churches and Temples, although without harm at the first, as was then of some wise and learned men judged: and from simple having them there, it came at the last to worshipping of them. First, by the rude people, who specially (as the Scripture teacheth) are in danger of superstition and idolatry, and afterwards by the Bishops, the learned, and by the whole Clergy. So that Latity and Clergy, learned and unlearned, all ages, sexes, and degrees of men, women, and children, of whole Christendom (an horrible and most dreadful thing to think) have been at once drowned in damnable idolatry, of all other vices most detested of God, and most damnable to man, and that by the space of eight hundred years and more. And to this end is come, that beginning of

Setting up of images in Churches then judged harmless, in experience proved not only harmful, but excitious and pestilent, and to the destruction and subversion of all good Religion universally. So that I conclude, as it may be possible in some one City or little Country, to have images let up in Temples and Churches, and yet idolatry by earnest and continual preaching of God's true Word, and the sincere Gospel of our Saviour Christ, may be kept away for a short time: So it is impossible, that (Images once set up and suffered in Temples and Churches) any great Countries, much less the whole World, can any long time be kept from idolatry. And the gradly will respect, not only their own City, Country, and time, and the health of men of their age: but be careful for all places and times, and the salvation of men of all ages.

At the least, they will not lay such stumbling blocks and snares for the feet of other Countrymen and Ages, which experience hath already proved to have been the ruin of the world. Wherefore I make a general conclusion of all that I have hitherto said: If the stumbling blocks, and potlions of unclean souls, by setting up of images, will be many, yea, infinite if they be suffered, and the warnings of the same stumbling blocks, and remedies for the said potlions by preaching but few, as is already declared: if the stumbling blocks be easy to be laid, the potlions is soon provided, and the warnings and remedies hard to know or come by: if the stumbling blocks be continually in the way, and potlions be ready at hand every where, and warnings and remedies but seldom given: and if all men be more ready of themselves to stumble and be offended, then to be warned, all men more ready to drink of the potlion, than to taste of the remedy (as is before partly, and shall hereafter more fully be declared) and so in fine, the potlion continually and deeply drunk of, the remedy seldom and faintly tasted of by a few: How can it be, but that infinite of the weak and infirm shall be offended, infinite by Errors shall break their necks, infinite by deadly venom be poisoned in their souls? And how is the charity of God, or love of our neighbours in our hearts then, if when we may remove such dangerous stumbling blocks, such pestilent potlions, we will not remove them? What shall I say of them which will lay stumbling blocks, where before there was none, and let snares for the feet, nay, for the souls of weak and simple ones, and work the danger of their everlasting destruction, for whom our Saviour Christ shed his most precious blood where better it were that the Arts of painting, flattering, carving, graving, and founding, had never been found nor used, than one of them, whole souls in the sight of God are so precious, should by occasion of image or picture perish and be lost. And thus is it declared that preaching cannot possibly lay idolatry, it images be let up publicly in Temples and Churches. And as true is it, that no other remedy, as writing against idolatry, Councils assembled, Decrees made against it, severe Laws likewise and Proclamations of Princes and Emperors, neither extreme punishments and penalties, nor any other remedy could or can be possibly devised for the abating of idolatry, if images be publicly let up and suffered. For concerning writing against images and idolatry to them committed, there hath been alleged unto you in the second part of this Treatise a great many places out of Tertullian, Origen, Laetanius, S. Augultine, Epiphanius, S. Ambrose, Clemens, and divers other learned and holy Bishops and Doctors of the Church. And besides these, all Histories Ecclesiastical, and...
Books of other gods and learned Bishops and Doctors are full of notable examples and sentences against images and the worshipping of them. And as they have most earnestly written, so did they sincerely and most diligently in their time teach and preach, according to their writings and examples. For they were then preaching Bishops, and more often sermons and letters, than in Princes' palaces, more often occupied in his legacies, who said, to ye into the whole world, & preach the Gospel to all men, than in embasements and affairs of Princes in this world. And as they were more zealous and diligent, so were they of excellent learning and godliness of life, and by both of great authority and credit with the people, and of more force and likelihood to persuade the people, and people more like to believe and follow their doctrine. But if their preachings could not help, much less could their writings, which did not come to the knowledge of a few that be learned, in comparison to continual preaching, whereof the whole multitude is partaker. Neither did the old Fathers, Bishops, and Doctors, severally only by preaching and writing, but also altogether, great numbers of them assembled in Synods and Councils, make Decrees and Ecclesiastical Laws against images, and the worshipping of them, neither did they do once or twice, but divers times, and in divers Ages and Countries, assembled Synods and Councils, and made severe Decrees against images and worshipping of them, as hath been at large in the second part of this History before declared. But all their writing, preaching, assembling in Councils, decreeing and making of Laws Ecclesiastical, could nothing help, either to pull down images to whom idolatry was committed, or against idolatry whilst images stood. For these blind books and dumb Schoolmasters, mean images and idols (for they call them Lap men's books and Schoolmasters) by their carved and painted writings, teaching and preaching idolatry, prevailed against all their written Books, and preaching with lively voice, as they call it. Well, if preaching and writing could not keep men from worshipping of images and idolatry, if pen and words could not do it, you would think that penalty and sword might do it. I mean, that Princes by severe Laws and punishments, might stay this unbridled affront of all men to idolatry, though images were set up and suffered. But experience proveth, that this can no more help against idolatry, than writing and preaching. For Christian Emperors (whose authority ought of reason, and by God's Law, to be greatest) above eight in number, and six of them successively reigning one after another (as is in the Histories before rehearsed) making most severe Laws and Proclamations against idols and idolatry, images and the worshipping of images, and executing most grievous punishments, yet, the penalty of death, upon the maintainers of images, and upon idolaters and image-worshippers; could not long to pass, that either images once set up, might thought be destroyed, or that men should refrain from the worshipping of them, being set up. And what think you then will come to pass, if men of learning should teach the people to make them, and should maintain the setting up of them, as things necessary in Religion? To conclude, it appears evidently by all copies and writings, and experience in times past, that neither preaching, neither writing, neither the consent of the learned, nor authority of the gosly, nor the decrees of Councils, neither the Laws of Princes, nor extreme punishments of the offenders in that behalf,

behalf, nor any other remedy or means, can help against idolatry, if images be suffered publickly. And it is truly said, that times past are Schoolmasters of wisdom to us that follow and live after. Therefore, if in times past, the most zealous and best learned, the most diligent also, and in number almost infinite, ancient Fathers, Bishops, and Doctors with their writing, preaching, industry, earnestness, authority, assemblies and Councils could do nothing against images and idolatry, to images once set up: what can we, neither in learning, nor holiness of life, neither in diligence, neither authority, to be compared with them, but men in contempt, and of no estimation (as the world goeth now) few also in number, in so great a multitude and number of men. What can we do, I say, or being to pass to the day of idolatry of worshipping of images, if they be allowed to stand publickly in Temples and Churches? And if so many, to mighty Emperors, by so severe Laws and Proclamations, to rigorous and extreme punishments and executions could not say the people from letting up and worshipping of images: what will endure, think you, when men shall commend them as necessary Books of the Lay-men. Let us therefore in these latter days learn this lesson of the experience of ancient antiquity, that idolatry cannot possibly be separated from images any long time: but that as an inseparable accident, or as a shadow followeth the body when the Sun shineth, so idolatry followeth and cleaveth to the publick having of images in Temples and Churches. And finally, as idolatry is to be abhorred and abomined, so are images (which cannot be long without idolatry) to be put away and destroyed. Besides the which experiments and proof of times before, the very nature and origin of images themselves sheweth to idolatry most violently, and men's nature and inclination also is bent to idolatry so vehemently, that it is not possible to have any part images, nor to keep men from idolatry, if images be suffered publickly. That I speak of the nature and origin of images, is this: Even as the first invention of them is naught, and no good can come of that which had an evil beginning, so they be altogether naught, as Athanasius in his Book against the Gentiles declareth, and Saint Jerome also upon the Prophet Jeremy the Sixth Chapter, and Ezechias in the Seventh Book of his Ecclesiastical History the Sixth Chapter telesareth, that as they first came from the Gentiles, which were idolaters and worshippers of images, unto us, and as the invention of them was the beginning of spiritual fornication, as the word of God telesareth: [1 Cor. 7:1]. So will they naturally (as it were of necessity) turn to their origin from whence they came, and draw us with them most violently to idolatry, abominable to God and all godly men. For if the origin of images, and worshipping of them, as it is recorded in the Eighth Chapter of the Book of Wisdom, began of a blind love of a fond Father, framing for his comfort an image of his Son, being dead, and so the last men fell to the worshipping of the image of him whom they did know to be dead: How much more will men and women fall to the worshipping of the images of God, our Saviour Christ, and his Saints, if they be suffered to stand in Churches and Temples publickly? For the greater the opinion is of the majesty and holiness of the person to whom an image is made, the sooner will the people fall to the worshipping of the said image. Wherefore the images of God, our Saviour Christ, the blessed Virgin Mary, the Apostles, Martyrs, and

and others of notable holiness, are of all other images most dangerous for the peril of idolatry, and therefore greatest heed to be taken that none of them be suffered to stand publicly in Churches and Temples. For there is no great dread left any should fall to the worshipping of the images of Anna, Caiaphas, Pilate, or Judas the traitor, if they were set up. But to the other, it is already at full proved, that idolatry hath been, is, and is most like continually to be committed. Now as was before touched, and is here most largely to be declared, the nature of man is none otherwise bent to worshipping of images (if he may have them, and see them) than it is bent to who Redom and adultery in the company of harlots. And as unto a man given to the lust of the flesh, seeing a wanton harlot, sitting by her, and embracing her, it profiteth little for one to lay, Beware of concubination, God will condemn concubinators and adulterers: for neither will he, being overcome with greater incitements of the harlot, give ear to take heed to such godly admonitions, and when he is left afterwards alone with the harlot, nothing can follow but wickedness: even so, suffer images to be let in the Churches and Temples, ye shall in vain bid them beware of images, as Saint John doth, and see idolatry, as all the Scriptures warn us, ye shall in vain preach and teach them against idolatry. For a number will notwithstanding fall headlong unto it, what by the nature of images, and what by the inclination of their own corrupt nature.

Wherefore as for a man given to lust, to set down by a harlot, is to tempt God; so is it likewise to erect an idol in this prominence of man's nature to idolatry, nothing but a tempting. Now if any will say that this similitude professeth nothing, yet I say them let the word of God, out of which the similitude is taken, prove something. Doth not the word of God call idolatry, spiritual whoredom? Doth it not call a gift of painted idol or image, a harlot with a painted face? Be not the spiritual wickednesses of an idol's enticing like the flatteries of a wanton harlot? Be not men and women as prone to spiritual concubination (I mean idolatry) as to carnal concubination? if this he denied, let all Nations upon the Earth which have been idolaters (as by all histories appeareth) prove it true. Let the Jews and the people of God, which were so often and so earnestly warned, so dreadfully threatened concerning images and idolatry, and so extremely punished therefore (and yet fell into it) prove it to be true; as in almost all the Books of the Old Testament, namely the Kings and the Chronicles, and the Prophets, it appeareth most evidently. Let all ages and times, and men of all ages and times, of all degrees and conditions wise men, learned men, princes, idiots, unlearned, and community prove it to be true. If you require examples: For wise men, ye have the Egyptians, and the Indian Gymnosophists, the wisest men of the world, you have Solomon the wisest of all other. For learned men, the Greeks, and namely the Athenians, exceeded all other Nations in superfluous and idolatry, as in the history of the Acts of the Apostles Saint Paul chargeth them. For Princes and Governors, you have the Romans, the Tit. Rom. letters of the rot (as they say) you have the same so-called B. Solomon, and all the kings of Israel and Judah after him, I say David, Ezechias, and Josias, and one or two more. All these (I say) and infinite others, wise, learned, princes, and governors, being all idolaters, have you for for examples and a proof of mens inclination to idolatry. That I may pafs over with silence in the mean time, infinite multitudes and mil-ions of idiots and unlearned, the ignorant and gross people, like unto Hopjes and Miles in whom is no understanding, whole peril and dangers to fall on heaps to idolatry by occasion of images, the Scriptures specially foreknow and give warning of. And indeed how should the un-learned, simple, and foolish scape the nets and snares of idols, and im-ges, in which the wisest and the best learned have been so entangled, trapped, and wrapped? Wherefore the argument holdeth this ground sure, That men be as inclined of their corrupt nature to spiritual fornication, as to carnal, which the wisdom of God foreseeing, to the general prohibition, that none should make to themselves any image or simulacrum, addeth a cause, depending of mans corrupt nature. Left (fate God) thou being deceived with error, honour and worship them. And of this ground of mans corrupt inclination, as well to spirituall fornication, as to carnal, it must needs follow, That as it is the duty of the godly Magistrate, loving honestly, and hating whoresom removing all strumpets and harlots, especially out of places notorious suspected, or relaxed unto of naughty parks, for the abounding of carnal fornication: so it is the duty of the same godly Magistrate, after the examples of the godly Kings, Ezechias and Josiah, to drive away all spiritual harlots (I mean idols and images) especially out of suspected places, Churches and Temples, dangerous for idolatry to be committted to images placed there; as it were in the appointed place and height of honour and worship (as Saint Augustine faith) where the living God only (and not dead stones and stocks) is to be worshipped: It is (I say) the office of godly Magistrates like wise to avoid images and idols out of Churches and Temples, as spiritual harlots out of suspected places for the abounding of idolatry, which is spiritual fornication. And as he were the enemy of all honesty, that should be strumpets and harlots out of their secreet corners into the publick market-place, there freely to dwell and practice their filthy merchandise: So is the enemy of the true worshipping of God, that bringeth idols and images into the Temple and Church, the House of God, there openly to be worshipped, and to rob the jealous God of his honour, who will not give it to any other, nor his glory to carved images who is as much es taken, and the bond of love between man and him as much broken by idolatry, which is spiritual fornication, as is the knot and bond of marriage broken by carnal fornication. Let all this be taken as a lie, if the word of God enforce it not to be true.
Curse be the man, saith God in Deuteronomy, that maketh a carved or molten image, and placeth it in a secreet corner: and all the people shall say, Amen. Thus saith God, for at that time no man durst not of worship images openly, but in corners only; and the whole World being the great Temple of God, he that in any corner thereof robbeth God of his glory, and giveth it to stocks and stones, is pronounced by Gods word accursed. Now he that will bring these spiritual harlots out of their lurking corners, into publick Churches and Temples, that spiritual fornication may there openly of all men and women without shame be committed with them, no doubt that person is cursed of God, and twice cursed, and all good and godly men and women will say, Amen, and their Amen will take effect also. Yea, and furthermore the madness of all men professing the Religion of Christ, now by the pace of a loft of hundred years, and yet even in our time in so great light of the Gospel, very many running on heaps by Sea and Land, to the great loss of their time, expense and waste of their goods, destruction of their Mines, Children, and Families, and danger of their own bodies and lives, to Compostella, Rome, Jerusalem, and other far Countries, to visit dumb and dead rocks and stones, both sufficiently prove the proneness of many corrupt nature to the seeking of idols once set up, and the worshipping of them. And thus as well by the origine and nature of idols and images themselves, as by the proneness and inclination of many corrupt nature to idolatry. It is evident, that neither images, if they be publicly set up, can be parted, nor men, if they see images in Temples and Churches, can be said and kept from idolatry. Now whereas they yet alledge, that howsoever the People, Princes, Learned, Wise, and of Old time, have fallen into idolatry by occasion of images, that yet in our time the most part, specially the learned and wise, of any authority, take no hurt nor offence by idols and images, neither do run into far Countries to them, and worship them; and that they know well what an idol or image is, and how to be used, and that therefore it followed, images in Churches and Temples to be an indifferent thing, as the which of Rome is not to be used: and that therefore they may justly hold (as was in the beginning of this part by them alledged) that it is not unlawful or wicked absolutely to have images in Churches and Temples, though it may for the danger of the simple lost seem to be not altogether expedient.

Whereunto may be well replied, that Solomon also, the wisest of all men, did well know what an idol or image was, neither took any harm thereof a great while himself, and also with his godly writings armed others against the danger of them. But yet afterward the 3d. 14.

same Solomon suffereth his wanton Paramours to bring their idols into his Court and Palace, was by carnal Pedants persuaded, and brought at the last to the committing of Spiritual Sodomy with Idols, and of the wisest and godliest Prince, became the most foolish and wicked also. Wherefore it is better even for the wisest to regard this warning, He that loveth danger shall perish therein: and let him Exod. 3. and standeth before me fall, rather than willingly and willingly to 13.

lay such a stumbling block for his own feet and others, that may per. 1 Cor. 10. baps by him at last to break neck. The good King Ezechias did know 4 Reg. 10. well enough, that the baseless Serpent was but a dead image, and therefore he took no hurt himself thereby through idolatry to it: Did he therefore let it stand, because himself took no hurt thereof? No, not so: but being a good King, and therefore regarding the health of his holy Subjects, deceived by that image, and committing idolatry thereto, he did not only take it down, but also brake it to pieces, and this he did to that image that was set up by the Commandment of God, in the presence whereof great Miracles were wrought, as that which was a figure of our Saviour Christ to come, who should deliver us from the mortal king of the old Serpent, Satan. Neither did he spare it in respect of the antiquity of it, which had continued above seven hundred years, nor for that it had been suffered, and preserved by so many godly Kings before his time.

Thus (think you) would Godly Prince (if he were now living) handle our idols, set up against God's commandment directly, and being figures of nothing but folly, and for fools to gaze on till they become as wise as the blocks themselves which they gaze on, and to fall down as naked Larks in that gaze, and being themselves alive, worship a dead stock of stone, gold or silver, and to become idolaters, abominable and cursed before the living God, giving the honour due unto him which made them when they were nothing, and to our Sabious Chrift, who redeemed them being lost, to the dead and dumb idiot, the work of men's hand, which never did, nor can do any thing for them, no, is not able to stir, nor once to move, and therefore more than a vile worm which can move and creep? The excellent King Josias also did take himself no hurt of images and idols, for he did know well what they were: did he therefore, because of his own knowledge, let idols and images stand? much less did he let any up? Or rather did he not by his knowledge and authority also succour the ignorance of such as did not know what they were, by utter taking away of all such rumbling blocks as might be occasion of ruin to his people and subjects? Will they, because a few took no hurt by images or idols, break the general Law of God, Thou shalt make to thee no multitude, &c.? They might as well, because Moses was not seduced by Jethroes daughter, nor Boaz by Ruth, being strangers, reason, that all the Jews might break the general Law of God, forbidding his people to join their children in marriage with strangers, lest they reduce their children that they should not follow God. Wherefore they which thus reason, though it be not expedient, yet it is lawful to have images publicly, and do prove that lawfulness by a few picked and chosen men: if they object that indifferently to all men, which a very few can have without hurt and offence, they seem to take the multitude for the few (as he saith in Virgil) of whose lost and safeguard no reputation is to be had, for whom yet Chrift paid as dearly as for the mightiest Prince, or the wisest and best learned in the Earth. And they that will have it generally to be taken for indifferent, that a very few take no hurt of it, though infinite multitudes besides perish thereby, shew that they put little difference between the multitudes of Christians and brute Beasts, whose danger they do to little esteem. Besides this, if they be Bishops or Parsons, or otherwise having charge of men's consciences that thus reason, it is lawful to have images publicly, though it be not expedient, what manner of Passages they themselves to be to their stock, which think unto them that which they themselves confess not to be expedient for them, but to the utter ruine of the Louis committed to their charge, for whom they shall give an strict account before the Prince of Passages at the last day? For indeed to object to the weak, and ready to fall of themselves, such rumbling blocks, is a thing not only not expedient, but unlawful, yea, and most wicked also. Wherefore it is to be wondered how they can call images, set up in Churches and Temples to no profit of benefit of any, and to so great peril and danger, yea and destruction of many, or rather infinite, things indifferent. Is not the publick letting up of them rather a snare for all men, and the tempting of God? I beseech these reasoners to call to mind their own accustom'd Pompance and Decree, whereby they determined that the Scripture, though by God himself commanded to be known of all men, women, and children, should
against peril of Idolatry.

should not be read of the simple, nos had in the vulgar tongue, for that (as they (say) it was dangerous, by bringing the simple people into er-ours. And will they not forbid images to be set up in Churches and De-Temple, which are not commanded, but forbidden most straitly by God, but let them still be there, yea, and maintain them also, lest the people are brought, not into danger only, but indeed into most abominable errors and detestable idolatry thereby? Shall Gods word, by God commanded to be read unto all, and known of all, for danger of Persecution (as they say) be shut up? and idols and images, notwithstanding they be forbidden by God, and notwithstanding the danger of ido-laty by them, shall they yet be set up, suffered, and maintained in Churches and Temples? O wise and stedfast wisdom, even bent to maintain the inventions and traditions of men by carnal reason, and by the same to disanul oy desecrate the holy ordinances, Laws, and honour of the Eternal God, who is to be honoured and praised for e-ever. Amen.

Now it remained for the conclusion of this Treatise, to declare as well the abuse of Churches and Temples, by too costly and sumptuous beating and adorning of them, as also the lewd painting, gilding, and roasting of images and images, and so to conclude the whole Treatise.

In Tertullian's time, an hundred and three score years after Christ, Tertul. Apo-Christians had none other Temples but common houses, whither they for the most part secretly reposed. And so far off was it that they had before his time any goodly or gorgeous decked Temples, that laws were made in Antonius Verus and Commodus the Emperours times, that no

Christians should dwell in houses, come in publick baths, or be seen in streets of any where abroad, and that if they were once accursed to be Christians, they should by no means be suffered to escape. As was practised on Apollonius, a noble Senator of Rome, who being accursed of his own bondman and slave that he was a Christian, could neither by his defence and apology, learnedly and eloquently written and read pub-lcly in the Senate, nor in respect that he was a Citizen, nor the dignity of his order, nor for the silentness and unlawfulness of his accuser, being his own slave, by likelihood of malice moved to forge lies a-against his Lord, nor for other respect or help, be delivered from death. So that Christians were then driven to dwell in caves and Dens: so far off was it that they had any publick Temples, adorn-and decked as they now be. Which is here rehearsed to the consti-uation of those, which report such glorious gilded faces of the goodly and gorous Temple, that Saint Peter, Linus, Cletus, and those thirty Bishops there Succeded had at Rome, until the time of the Emperor Con-fantine, and which Saint Polycarp should have in Asia, or Irenæus in France, by such lies, contrary to all true histories, to maintain the superfluous gilding and decking of Temples now adorns, wherein they put almost the whole sum and pith of our Religion. But in those times the world was won to Christendom, not by gorgious, gilded, and painted Tem-Oratones.

The Third part of the Sermon

Euseb. lib. 8. Oratories and Dominie, to say, places dedicated to the service of the Lord. And here it is to be noted, that at that time there were no Churches or Temples erected unto any Saint, but to God only, as Saint Augustine also recordeth, saying, We build no Temples unto our Martyrs. And Eusebius himself calleth Churches, Houses of Prayer, and spreadeth that in Constantine the Emperor's time, all men rejoiced, seeing instead of tow Conventicles, which tyrants had destroyed, high Temples to be builded. Lucuntus, in the time of Constantine, by the space of above three hundred years after our Saviour Christ, when Christian Religion was most pure, and indeed golden, Christians had but tow and poss Conventicles, and simple Diatopes, etc. Caves under the ground, called Crypte, where they for fear of persecution assembled secretly together. A figure whereof remaineth in the Catacombs which yet are builded under great Churches, to put us in remembrance of the old state of the primitive Church before Constantine, whereas in Constantine's time, and after him, were builded great and goodly Temples for Christians called Basilicas, either for that the Greeks used to call all great and goodly places Basilicas, or for that the high and everlasting King God, and our Saviour Christ was vested in them. But although Constantine, and other Princes, of good zeal to our Religion, did humbly deck and adorn Christians Temples, yet did they dedicate at that time all Churches and Temples to God, or our Saviour Christ, and to no Saint, so that abuses began long after in Julianian time. And that gaudiness then used, as it was born with, as rising of a good zeal: so was it signified of the gosip learned even at that time, that such cost might otherwise have been better bestowed. Let Saint Jerome (although otherwise too great a liker and allowe of external and outward things) be a proof hereof, who hath these words in his Epistle to Demetriades: Let others (faith Saint Jerome) build Churches, cover walls with tables of Marble, carry together huge pillars, and gild their tops or heads, which do not feel or understand their precious decked and avouning, let them deck the doors with joy and silver, and let the golden Altars with precious stones, I blame it not, let every man abound in his own sense, and better is it to do, then carefully to keep their riches laid up in hope. But thou hast another way appointed thee, to cloth Christ in the poor, to visit him in the sick, to feed him in the hungry, lodge him in those who do lack harbour, and especially such as be of the household of Faith.

And the same Saint Jerome toucheth the same matter somewhat more freely in his Treatise of the life of Clerics to Neporius, saying thus, Many build walls and erect pillars of Churches, the smooth Marbles do glitter, the roof shineth with gold, the altar is set with precious stones: But of the Ministers of Christ, there is no election or choice. Neither let any man object and alledge against me the rich Temple that was in Jewry, the table, candlesticks, incense, chalices, platters, cups, mortars, and other things all of gold. Then were these things allowed of the Lord, when the Priests offered sacrifices, and the blood of Beasts was accounted the redemption of sins. Howbeit all these things went before in figure, and they were written for us, upon whom the end of the world is come. And now where that our Lord being poor, hath dedicated the poverty of his house, let us remember his cross, and we shall esteem riches as mire and dung. What do we marvel at that which Christ calleth wicked

Thus you see how St. Jerome teacheth the sumptuousness amongst the Jews to be a figure to signify, and not an example to follow, and that those outward things were suffered for a time, until Christ our Lord came, who turned off those outward things into spirit, faith, and truth. And the same Saint Jerome, upon the seventh Chapter of Jeremy, saith, God commandeth both the Jews at that time, and now us who are placed in the Church, that we have no trust in the goodness of building and gild roof, and in walls covered with tables of marbles, and say, the temple of the Lord, the temple of the Lord, for that is the temple of the Lord, wherein dwelleth true faith, godly conversation, and the company of all virtues. And upon the Prophet Agge, he describeth the true and right decking of ornaments of the temple after this sort: I (saith Saint Jerome) do think the fiber wherein the House of God is decked, to be the Doctrine of the Scriptures, of which it is spoken. The doctrine of the Lord is a pure doctrine, silver tried in the fire, purged from dross, purified seven times. And I do take gold to be that which remained in the holy sense of the Saints and the secret of the heart, and spiritually with the true light of God. Which is evident that the Apostle also meant of the Saints that build upon the foundation of Christ, some silver, some gold, some precious stones: that by the gold, the holy sense, by silver, godly utterance, by precious stones, works which please God, might be signified. With these metals, the Church of our Saviour is made more godly and gorgeous, than was the Synagogue in old time. With these lovely stones, is the Church and House of Christ builded, and peace is given to it for ever. All these be Saint Jerome's sayings. No more did the old godly Bishops and Doctors of the Church allow the over-sumptuous furniture of Temples and Churches with plate, vessels of gold, silver, and precious vestments. Chrysostome saith, in the ministry of the holy Sacraments, there is no need of golden vessels, but of golden minds. And St. Ambrose saith, Christ sent his Apostles without gold, and gathered his Church without gold. The Church hath gold, not to keep it, but to bestow it on the necessities of the poor. The Sacraments look for no gold, neither do they please God for the commendation of gold, which are not bought for gold. The adorning and decking of the Sacraments, is the redemption of Captivity. Thus much saith St. Ambrose.

Saint Jerome commendeth Exuperius Bishop of Tolosa, that he carried the Sacrament of the Lord's body in a wicker basket, and the Sacrament of his blood in a glass, and so call covetousness out of the Church. And Eunomius Bishop and Martyr, as is recorded in the decrees, testifies, that in old time the Ministers used wooden, and not golden vessels. And Zephyrinus the fifth Bishop of Rome, made a decree, that they should use vessels of glass. Likewise were the vessels used in the Church in old time very plain and single, and nothing costly. And Rabanus at Lib. i. infra. large declareth, that this costly and manifold furniture of vessels of late used in the Church, was fetched from the Jewish village, and agreeeth with Aaron apparailling almost altogether. For the maintenance of the which Innocentius the Pope pronounced boldly, that all the custome of the old Law be not abolished, and we might in such apparel, of Christians the more willingly become Jewish. This is noted, not against Churches.

Churche and Temples, which are most necessary, and ought to have their due use and honour, as is in another Hymn ly for that purpose declared, not against the convenient cleanlines and ornaments thereof; but against the sumptuousness and abuses of the Temples and Churches. For it is a Church or Temple also that glittereth with no marke, Hither with no gold nor silver, glittereth with no pearls nor precious stones; but with plainness and frugality, signifying no proud doctrine nor people, but humble, frugal, and nothing esteeming earthly and outward things, but gloriounly decked with inward ornaments, according as the Prophet declareth, saying, The King's daughter is altogether lovely inwardly.

Now concerning excessive decking of images and idols, with painting, gilding, adorning, with precious dueres, pearl, and stone, what is it else, but for the further provocation and intemper to spiritual unionation, to deck spiritual harlots most costly and wantonly, which the idolatrous Church understandeth well enough. For he being indeed not only an harlot (as the Scripture calleth her) but also a tout, why this idolater harlot (for she is indeed of ancient years) and understanding her lack of natural and true beauty, and great loathfulness which of her self she bath, both (after the custom of such harlots) paint her self, and deck and tire her self with gold, pearl, stone, and all kind of precious jewels, that the thinging with the outward beauty and glory of them, may please the foolish phantasie of fond lorders, and so entice them to spiritual cognicion with her. Who, if they did her (I will not say naked) but in simple apparel, would abhor her, as the fairest and glossiest harlot that ever was seen: According as appeareth by the description of the gauntering of the great trumpet of all triumphs, the Mother of Whoredom, set forth by Saint John in his Revelation, who by her glory provoked the Princes of the Earth to commit whorishdom with her. Whereas on the contrary part, the true Church of God, as a chaste Matron, espoused (as the Scripture teacheth) to one Husband, our Saviour Jesus Christ, whom alone she is content only to please and serve, and looketh not to delight the eyes or phantasies of any other strange lorders or wroers is content with her natural ornamentation, not doubting, by such sincere simplicity best to please him, who can well skil of the difference between a painted village, and true natural beauty. And concerning such glorious gilding and decking of images, both God's word written in the tenth Chapter of the Prophet Jeremy, and Saint Hierons Commentaries upon the same, are most worthy to be noted. First, the words of the Scriptures be these, The workman with his Ax heaved the timber out of the wood with the work of his hands, he decked it with gold and silver, he joined it with nails and pins, and the stroke of an hammer, that it might hold together. They be made smooth as the Palm, and they cannot break: if they be borne they remoe, for they cannot go. Fear ye them not, for they can neither do evil nor good: Thus saith the Prophet. Upon which text, Saint Hieronym hath these words, This is the description of idols, which the Gentiles worship, their matter is bile and corruptible. And whereas the Artificer is mortal, the things he maketh must needs be corruptible: he decketh it with silver and gold, that with the glittering or shining of both metals, he may deceive the simple. Which error indeed hath passed over from the Gentiles, that we should judge
against peril of Idolatry.

...judge Religion to stand in riches. And by and by after he faith, They have the beauty of metals, and be beautified by the Art of Painting, but good or profish is there none in them. And shortly after again, They make great promises, and devise an image of vain worshipping of their own phantasies, they make great假装 to deceive every simple body, They dull and amaze the understanding of the unlearned, as it were with golden sentences, and eloquence, shining with the brightness of silver. And of their own devisers and makers are these images advanced and magnified in the which is no utility nor profit at all, and the worshipping of the which properly pertaineth to the Gentiles and Heathen, and such as know not God.

Thus far of Saint Jerome's words. Whereupon you may note as well his judgment of images themselves, as also of the painting, gilding, and decking of them: that it is an error which came from the Gentiles, that it perverted Religion to remain in riches, that it amazeth and deceiveth the simple and unlearned with golden sentences and silver-shining eloquence, and that it appertaineth properly to the Gentiles and Heathens, and such as know not God. Wherefore the having, painting, gilding, and decking of images, by Saint Jerome's judgment, is erroneous, seducing and bringing into error (especially the simple and unlearned) heathenishly, and void of the knowledge of God.

Surely the Prophet Daniel in the eleventh Chapter, declareth such sumptuous decking of images with gold, silver, and precious stones, to be a token of Antichrist's Kingdom, who (as the Prophet foretoldeth) shall worship God with such gorgeous things. Now usually such excessive adorning and decking of images, hath risen and been maintained, either of Offerings provoked by superstition and given in idolatry, of spoils, robberies, ulot, or goods otherwise unjustly gotten, whereof wicked men have given part to the Images of Saints (as they call them) that they might be pardoned of the whole: as of divers writings and old monuments concerning the cause and end of certain great gifts, may well appear. And indeed such mony so wickedly gotten, is most meet to be put to so wicked a use. And that which they take to be amended by the whole before God, is more abominable in his sight than both the wicked getting, and the more wicked spending of all the rest.

For how the Lord alloweth such gifts, he declareth evidently in the Prophet Isaiah, saying, I (faith the Lord) do love judgment, and I hate spoil and robbery offered in Sacrifice: which the very Gentiles understand. For Plato saith, That such men as suppose that God both pardon wicked men, if they give part of their spoils and rapine to him, take him to be like a Dog, that would be entreated and hired with part of the Meat, to suffer the Wolves to worry the Sheep. And in case the goods whorewith images be decked, were justly gotten, yet it is extreme madness, so foolishly and wickedly to belowe goods purchased by wisdom and truth. Of such lewdness Laclanous writeth thus, l. 1ib. 2. ins. cap. 4. Men do in vain deck images of the gods with gold, ivory and precious stone, as though they could take any pleasure in those things. For what use have they of precious gifts, which understand no feel no thing? Even the same that dead men have. For with like reason do they bury dead bodies, faced with spices and ointments, and clothed with precious vestures, and deck images, which neither felt nor knew when

when they were made, nor understand when they be honoured, for they get no sense and understanding by their consecration. Thus far Lactanius, and much more, too long here rehearse, declaring, that as little girls play with little Puppets, so be these decked images great puppets for old fools to play with. And that we may know what, not only men of our Religion, but Ethnicks also, judge of such decking of dead images, it is not unprofitable to hear what Seneca, a wise and excellent learned Senator of Rome, and Philosopher, saith concerning the foolishness of ancient and grave men, used in his time in worshipping and decking of images: We (saith Seneca) be not twice children (as the common saying is) but always children; but this is the difference, that we being elder, play the children; and in these plays they dyeing in before great and well decked puppets (so to be called) images, ointments, incense, and odours. To these puppets they offer up sacrifice, which have a mouth, but not the use of teeth. Upon these they put attire and precious apparel, which have no use of cloths. To these they gave gold and silver, which they receive it (meaning the images) lack, as well as they that have given it from them. And Seneca much commendeth Dionysius, King of Sicily, for his merciful veneration of such decked and jewelled puppets. But you will ask, what holds this appertain to our images, which is written against the idols of the Gentiles? Altogether surely. For what use or pleasure have our images of their decking and precious ornaments? Did our images understand when they were made? do we, when we be so trimmed and decked? Be not these things bestowed upon them, as much in vain, as upon dead men which have no sense? Wherefore it followeth, that there is like foolishness in decking of our images as great puppets for old fools, like children, to play the wicked play of idolatry, as was before among the Ethnicks and Gentiles. Our Churches stand full of such great puppets; wondrously decked and adorned. Garlands and Coronets be set on their heads, precious pearls hanging about their necks, their fingers shine with rings, set with precious stones, their dead and stiff bodies are clothed with garments studded with gold. You would believe that the images of our Ben-saints, were some Princes of Perseverance with their proud apparel, and the idols of our Women-saints, were wise and well trimmed Vesta, tempting their Paramours to wantonness: Whereby the Saints of God are not honoured, but most dishonoured, and their godliness, holiness, charity, contentment of riches, and of the beauty of the World, defaced and brought in doubt by such monstrous decking, most differing from their sober and godly lives. And because the whole Pageant must thoroughly be played, it is not enough thus to deck idols, but at the last come in the Priest themselves, likewise decked with gold and pearl, that they may be meet Servants for Lords and Ladies, and fit worshippers of such gods and goddesses. And with a solemn pace they pass forth before these golden puppets, and fall down to the ground on their marrow bones before these honourable idols, and then rising up again, offer up odours and incense unto them, to give the people an example of double idolatry, by worshipping not only the idol, but the gold also, and riches whereby it is garnished. Which things, the most part of our old Martyrs, rather than they would do, 01 once kneel, 01 offer up one crumb of incense before an image, suffered most cruel cruele and terrible deaths, as the Histories of them at large do declare. And here again their allegation out of Gregorius the Saint and Damascen, that Images be the Law-men's Books, and that Pictures are the Scripture of idiots and simple persons, is worthy to be considered. For as it hath been touched in divers places before, how they be Books teaching nothing but lies, as by Saint Paul in the first Chapter to the Romans evidently appeared, of the images of God: So what manner of Books and Scripture these painted and gilt images of Saints be unto the common people, note well I say you. For after that our Preachers shall have instructed and exposed the people to the following of the virtues of the Saints, as contempt of this world, poverty, sobriety, chastity, and such like virtues, which undoubtedly were in the Saints: Think you, as soon as they turn their faces from the Preacher, and look upon the graven Books and painted Scripture of the glorious gilt images and idols, all shining and glittering with metal and stone, and covered with precious vestures, or else with Chorea in Terence, behold a painted table, wherein is set forth by the Art of the Painter, an image with a nice and wanton apparel and countenance, more like to Venus or Flora, than Mary Magdalen, or if like to Mary Magdalen, it is when she played the Prophet, rather than when he wrought for her sins. When I say they turn about from the Preacher, to these books and pictures, and painted Scriptures: shall they not find them lying books? teaching other manner of lessons, of esteemings of riches, of pride, and vanity in apparel, of niceness and wantonness, and peradventure of whoredom, as Chorea of like picture was taught. And in Lucian, one learned of Venus Gnictia a lesson, too abominable here to be remembered. Be not there, think you, pretty Books and Scriptures for simple people, and especially for Wives and young Maidens to look in, read on, and learn such lessons of? What will they think either of the Preacher, who taught them contrary lessons of the Saints, and therefore by these cursed Doctors, are charged with a lie, or of the Saints themselves, if they believe these graven Books and painted Scriptures of them, who make the Saints, now reigning in Heaven with God, to their great dishonour, in apparel of such vanity, which they in their life time most abhorred? For what lessons of contempt of riches, and vanity of this World, can holy Books, to be furnished with gold, set with precious stones, covered with silk, teach? What lessons of sobriety and chastity, can our women learn of these pictured Scriptures, with their fine apparel and wanton looks? But away for shame with these coloured cloaks of idolatry, of the Books and Scriptures of images and pictures, to teach idiots, nay, to make idiots and black fools and beasts of Christians. Do men, I say you, when they have the same Books at home with them, run on Pilgrimage to look like Books at Rome, Compoftella, or Jerusalem, to be taught by them when they have the like to learn at home? Do men reverence some Books, and despise and set light by other of the same sort? Do men kneel before their Books, light Candles at noon time, burn incense, offer of Gold and Silver, and other Gifts to their Books? Do men either feign or believe Miracles to be wrought by their Books? I am sure that the new Testament of our Saviour Jesus Christ, containing the Word of Life, is a more lively, express and true image of our Saviour, than all carved, graven, molten, and painted images in the world.

would be, and yet none of all these things be done to that Book or Scripture of the Gospel of our Saviour, which be done to Images or Pictures, the Books and Scriptures of Laymen and Priests, as they call them. Wherefore call them what they list, it is most evident by their deeds that they make of them no other Books nor Scripture, than such as teach most filthy and horrid idolatry, as the images of such Books daily prove by continual practising the same. Books and Scriptures, in the which the devillish Schoolmaster, Satan, hath penned the flesh lessons of wicked idolatry, for his baselyr disciples and scholars to behold, read, and learn, to God's most high dishonour, and their most horrid damnation. Have not we been much bound, think you, to those which should have taught us the truth out of God's Book and his holy Scripture, that they have shut up that Book and Scripture from us, and none of us to bold as once to open it, or read in it, and instead thereof, to spread us abroad these godly, carnal, and gilded Books and painted Scriptures, to teach us such good and godly lessons? Have not they done well, after they ceased to stand in Pulpits themselves, and to teach the people committed to their instruction, keeping silence of God's word, and became dumb dogs (as the Prophet calleth them) to set up in their stead, on every pillar and corner of the Church, such godly doctours, as dumb, but more wicked than themselves be? We need not to complain of the jack of one dumb Parson, having to many dumb devilish Cicsars (I mean these idols and painted puppets) to teach in their stead. Now in the mean season, whilst the dumb and dead idols stand thus decked and clothed, contrary to God's Law and Commandment; the poor Christian people, the lively images of God, commanded us to tenderly by our Saviour Christ, as most dear to him, stand naked, shivering for cold, and their teeth chattering in their heads, and no man covered them, are pined with hunger and thirst, and no man giveth them a penny to refresh them, whereas pounds be ready at all times (contrary to God's will) to deck and trim dead stocks and stones, which neither feel cold, hunger, nor thirst.

Clemens hath a notable sentence concerning this matter, saying thus, That Serpent the Devil, both by the mouth of certain men utter these words. We for the honour of the invisible God, do worship visible images: which doubtless is most false. For if you will truly honour the Image of God, you shall by doing well to man, honour the true image of God, in him. For the image of God is in every man: But the likeness of God is not in every one, but in those only which have a godly heart and pure mind. If you will therefore truly honour the image of God, we do declare to you the truth, that ye do well to man, who is made after the image of God, that you give honour and reverence to him, and refresh the hungry with meat, the thirsty with drink, the naked with clothes, the sick with attendance, the stranger with lodging, the prisoners with necessaries; and this shall be accounted as truly bestowed upon God. And these things are so directly appertaining to Gods honour, that whatsoever both not this, shall seem to have reproached and done villany to the image of God. For what honour of God is this, to run to images of rock and stone, and to honour vain and dead images of God, and to despise man, in whom is the true image of God? And by and by after, ye faith, Understand ye therefore that this is the suggestion of the Serpent Satan, lurking within within you, which persuadeth you that you are godly, when you honour intenable and dead images, and that you be not ungodly, when you hurt or leave uncoursethe lively and reasonable Creatures. All these be the words of Clemens.

Note, I pray you, how this most ancient and learned Doctor, within one hundred years of our Saviour Christ's time, most plainly teacheth, that no service of God, or Religion acceptable to him, can be in honouring of dead images; but in courting of the poor, the lively images of God, according to Saint James, who faith, this is the pure and true Religion before God the Father, to succour fatherless and motherless children, and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself undefiled from this world.

True Religion then, and pleasing of God, standeth not in making set up, painting, gilding, cloathing and decking of dumb and dead images (which be but great puppets and babies for old tools in dotage, and wicked idolatry, to daily and play with) nor in killing of them, capping, kneeling, offering to them, incensing of them, setting up of candles, hanging up of legs, arms, or whole bodies of way before them, or praying, and asking of them, or of Saints, things belonging only to God to give. But all these things be vain and abominable, and most damnable before God. Wherefore all such do not only besow their money and labour in vain; but with their pains and cost purchase to themselves God's wrath and utter indignation, and everlasting damnation both of body and soul. For we have heard it evidently proved in these solemnities against idolatry, by God's word, the Doctors of the Church, Ecclesiastical Histories, Reason and Experience, that images have been and be worshipped, and so idolatry committed to them by infinite multitudes, to the great offence of God's Majesty, and danger of infinite souls, and that idolatry cannot possibly be separated from images set up in Churches and Temples, gilded and decked gloriously, and that therefore our images be indeed very idols, and to all the Prohibitions, Laws, Circles, Ceremonies of horrid Plagues, as well temporal as eternal, contained in the holy Scripture, concerning idols, and the Bakers and Painters, and Worshippers of them, appertain also to our images set up in Churches and Temples, and to the Bakers, Painters, and Worshippers of them. And all those names of abomination, which God's Word in holy Scriptures giveth to the idols of the Gentiles, apperttain to our images, being idols like to them, and having like idolatry committed unto them. And God's own mouth in the holy Scriptures calleth them Vanities, Lies, Deceits, Uncleanliness, Filthiness, Dung, Mischief and Abomination before the Lord. Wherefore God's horrible wrath, and our most dreadful danger cannot be avoided, without the destruction and utter abolishing of all such images and idols out of the Church and Temple of God, which to accomplish, God put in the minds of all Christian Princes. And in the mean time, let us take heed and be wise, O ye beloved of the Lord, and let us have no strange Gods, but one only God, who made us when we were nothing, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who redeemed us when we were lost, and with his holy Spirit who both sanctifie us. For this is life everlasting, to know him to be the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom he hath sent. Let us honour and worship God, and all true Chris-ian Religion.
him, and him let us worship and honour as he will himself, and hath declared by his word, that he will be honoured and worshipped, not in, nor by images of idols, which he hath most strictly forbidden, neither in kneeling, lighting of candles, burning of incense, offering up of gifts unto images and idols, to believe that we shall please him, for all these be abomination before God: but let us honour and worship God in spirit and truth, fearing and loving him above all things, trusting in him only, calling upon him, and praying to him only, praising and lauding of him only, and all the more in him, and for him. For such worshippers both our heavenly Father love, who is a most pure Spirit, and therefore will be worshipped in spirit and truth. And such worshippers were Abraham, Moses, David, Elias, Peter, Paul, John, and all other the holy patriarchs, prophets, apostles, martyrs, and all the true saints of God, who all, as the true friends of God, were enemies and destroyers of images and idols, as the enemies of God and his true religion. Wherefore take heed and be wise, ye beloved of the Lord, and that which others, contrary to God's word, do follow wickedly, and to their damnation, upon dead stocks and stones (no images, but enemies of God and his Saints) that belowe ye, as the faithful servants of God, according to God's word, mercifully upon poor men and women, fatherless children, widows, sick persons, strangers, prisoners, and such others that be in any necessity, that ye may at that great day of the Lord, hear that most blessed and comfortable saying of our Saviour Christ: Come ye blessed into the Kingdom of my Father, prepared for you before the beginning of the world. For I was hungry, and ye gave me meat; thirsty, and ye gave me drink; naked, and ye clothed me; houseless, and ye lodged me; in prison, and ye visited me; sick, and ye comforted me. For whatsoever ye have done for the poor, and needy in my name, and for my sake, that have ye done for me. To the which this heavenly Kingdom, God the Father of mercies bring us, for Jesus Christ's sake our only Saviour, Mediator, and Advocate, to whom with the holy Ghost, one immortal, invisible and most glorious God, be all honour and thanksgiving, and glory, world without end. Amen.
AN HOMILY
FOR
Repairing and keeping clean, and comely adorning of Churches.

It is a common custom used of all men, when they intend to have their friends or neighbours to come to their houses, to eat or drink with them, or to have any solemn assembly to treat and talk of any matter, they will have their houses, which they keep in continual reparations, to be clean and fine, lest they should be counted slothful, or little to regard their friends and neighbours. How much more ought the House of God, which we commonly call the Church, to be sufficiently repaired in all places, and to be honourably adorned and garnished, and to be kept clean and sweet, to the comfort of the people that shall resort thereunto.

It appeareth in the holy Scripture, how God's House, which was called his holy Temple, and was the Mother Church of all Jewry, fell sometimes into decay, and was oftentimes profaned and defiled, through the negligence and ungodliness of such as had the charge thereof. But when godly Kings and Governors were in place, their commandment was given forthwith, that the Church and Temple of God should be repaired, and the devotion of the people to be gathered for the reparation of the same. We read in the fourth Book of the Kings, 4 Kings 12, how that King Josiah, being a godly Prince, gave commandment to the Priests, to convert certain Offerings of the people towards the reparation and amendment of God's Temple.

Like commandment gave that most godly King Josias, concerning the reparation and re-edification of God's Temple, which in his time he found in sore decay. It hath pleased Almighty God, that these histories touching the re-levying and repairing of his holy Temple, should be written at large, to the end we should be taught thereby: First, that God is well pleased that his people should have a convenient place to resort unto, and to come together, to praise and magnify God's holy Name. And secondly, he is highly pleased with all those, which diligently and zealously go about to amend and restore such places as are appointed for the Congregation of God's people to resort unto, and wherein they humbly and joyfully render thanks to God for his bene, fits, and with one heart and voice praise his holy Name. Thirdly, God was sore displeased with his people, because they builded, decked, and

[Note: The text continues with further details about the importance of maintaining and adorning God's House or Church.]
The Sermon for Repairing

 Accordingly, they built up their own houses, and suffered God's house to be in ruin and decay, to be unoccupied and desolate. Therefore, God was sore grieved with them, and plagued them, as appeared in the Prophet's prophecy. Thus saith the Lord: Is it time for you to dwell in your own houses, and the Lord's house not regarded? For we have sown much, and harvested in new wine, our meat and our clothes have neither filled you, nor made you warm, and he that had her wages, put it in a bottomless purse. By these plagues which God laid upon his people for neglecting his temple, it may evidently appear that God will have his temple, his Church, the place where his Congregation shall resort to magnify him, well edified, well repaired, and well maintained. Some neither regarding godliness, nor the place of godly exercise, will say, the temple in the old Law was commanded to be built and repaired by God himself, because it had great promises annexed unto it, and because it was a figure, a Sacrament, or a signification of Christ, and of his Church. To this may be easily answered: First, that our Churches are not destitute of promises, as much as our Saviour Christ saith, Where two or three are gathered together in my Name, there am I in the midst among them. A great number therefore coming to Church together in the name of Christ, have there, that is to say in the Church, their God and Saviour Jesus Christ present among the Congregation of his faithful people, by his grace, by his labour and good works, according to his most assured and comfortable promises. Why then ought not Christian people to build them temples and Churches,habiting as great promises of the presence of God, as ever had Solomon for the material temple which he did build? As touching the other point, that Solomon's temple was a figure of Christ: we know that now in the time of the clear light of Christ Jesus the Son of God, all shadows, figures, and significations are utterly gone, all vain and unprofitable Ceremonies, both Jewish and Heathenish, fully abolished. And therefore our Churches are not set up for figures and significations of Melchisedec and Christ to come, but for other godly and necessary purposes, that is to say, That like as every man hath his own house to abide in, to refresh himself in, to rest in, with such like commodities: So Almighty God will have his House and Place whether the whole Parish and Congregation shall resort, which is called the Church and Temple of God, for that the Church, which is the company of God's people, both there assemble and come together to serve him. Not meaning hereby, that the Lord, whom the Heavens of heavens is not able to hold or contain, both dwell in the Church of Lime and Stone, made with many hands, as wholly and only contained there within, and no where else, so as to be never dwelt in Solomon's Temple. Moreover, the Church or Temple is counted and called holy, yet not of it self, but because God's people resorting thereunto are holy, and exercise themselves in holy and heavenly things. And to the intent ye may understand further, why Churches were built among Christian people, this was the greatest consideration, that God might have his place, and that God might have his time, duty to be honoured and served of the whole multitude in the Parish. First, there to hear and learn the blessed Word of God of the everlasting God. Secondly, that there the blessed Sacraments, which our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ hath enjoined and appointed, should be duly, reverently, and decently ministered. Thirdly, that there and keeping clean Churches.

there the whole multitude of Gods people in the Parish, should with one voice and heart call upon the Name of God, magnifie and praise the Name of God, render earnest and hearty thanks to our heavenly Father for his heap of benefits daily and plentifully poured upon us, not forgetting to bestowed our aims upon Gods poor, to the intent God may bless us the more richly. Thus ye may well perceive and understand wherefore Churches were built and set up amongst Christian people, and dedicated and appointed to these godly izes, and wholly exempted from all filthy, profane, and worldly izes. Wherefore all they that have little mind of devotion to repair and build Gods Temple, are to be counted people of much ungodliness, spurting against good order in Chrifts Church, despising the true honour of God, with evil examples, offending and hindering their neighbours otherwise well and godly disposed. The world thinketh it but a trifie to see their Church in ruine and decay. But who doth not lay to their helping hands, they sin against God and his holy Congregation. For if it had not been to neglect and slight the re-edifying and building up again of his Temple, God would not have been so much grieved, and so soon have plagued his people, because they builded and decked their own houses so gorgeously, and despised the House of God their Lord. It is sin and shame to see so many Churches, so ruinous, and so souly decayed, almost in every corner. If a mans private House wherein he dwellith, he decayed, he would never cease till it be restored up again. Yes, if his barn where he keepest his Cows be out of reparations, what diligence useth he to make it in perfect state again? If his stable for his Horses, yea, the stable for his Swine, he not able to hold out water and wind, how careful is he to do cost thereon? And shall we be so mindful of our common bale Houses, deputed to so vile employment, and be forgetful towards the House of God, wherein he treateth the woods of our eternal salvation, wherein he ministred the Sacraments and Mysteries of our Redemption? The fountain of our regeneration is there presented unto us, the partaking of the Body and Blood of our Saviour Christ, is there offered unto us: And shall we not esteem the place where heavenly things are handlen? Wherefore, if ye have any reverence to the service of God, if ye have any common honesty, if ye have any conscience in keeping of necessary and godly ordinances, keep your Churches in good repair, whereby ye shall not only please God, and deserve his manifold blessings, but also deserve the good report of all godly people.

The second point which appertaineth to the maintenance of Gods House, is to have it well adorned, and comely and clean kept. Which things may be the more easily reformed, when the Church is well repaired. For, like as men are well refreshed and comforted, when they find their houses habing all things in good order, and all corners clean and sweet; so when Gods house, the Church, is well adorned, with places convenient to sit in, with the Pulpit for the Preacher, with the Lords Table for the ministration of his holy Supper, with the Font to Chriken in, & also is kept clean, comely, and sweetly, the people are more desirous, and the more comforted to repect the same, and to carry there the whole time appointed them. With what earnestness, with what vehement zeal did our Saviour Christ drive the buyers & sellers out of the temple of God, Matt. 21, and hurled down the tables of the changes of money, and the seats of the Doare-sellers, and could not abide any man to carry a vessel through the temple? He told them that they had made his Father's House a den of thieves, partly through their superstition, hypocrisy, false worship, false doctrine, and infatuate covetousness, and partly through contempt, abusing that place with walking and talking, with worldly matters without all fear of God, and due reverence to that place. What dens of thieves the Churches of England have been made by the blasphemous buying and selling the most precious body and blood of Christ in the Mass, as the world was made to believe, at vigils, at months minds, at Ternals, in Abbeys and Chantries, beside other horrible abuses (God's holy name be blessed for ever) which we now see and understand.

All these abominations, they that supply the room of Christ have cleared and purged the Churches of England of taking away all such solemnities and solemnities, as through blind devotion and ignorance hath crept into the Church these many hundred years. Wherefore, O ye good Christian people, ye dearly beloved in Christ Jesus, ye that glory not in worldly and vain Religion, in phantastical adorning and decking, but rejoice in heart to see the glory of God truly set forth, and the Churches restored to their ancient and godly use, render your hearty thanks to the goodness of Almighty God, who hath in our days stirred up the hearts not only of his godly preachers and ministers, but also of his faithful and most Christian magistrates and governors, to lying such godly things to pass.

And especially as your Churches are cleared and swept from the filthy and superstitious filthiness with which they were defiled and disfigured: Do ye your parts, good people, to keep your Churches clean and clear, suffer them not to be defiled with rain and weather, with dung of Doves, and Dews, Stars, and Thoughts, and other filthiness, as it is foul and lamentable to behold in many places of this Country. It is the House of prayer, not the house of talking, of walking, of bawling, of ministrifile, of hawks, and dogs. Pray also not the displeasure and plagues of God, for defiling and abusing his holy House, as the wicked Jews did. But have God in your heart, be obedient to his bidding will, bind your selves every man and woman, to your power, toward the reparations and clean keeping of the Church, to the intent that ye may be partakers of God's manifold blessings, and that ye may be the better encouraged to resort to your Parish Church, there to learn your duty towards God and your neighbour, there to be present and partakers of Christ's holy Sacraments, there to render thanks to your heavenly Father for the manifold benefits which he daily poureth upon you, there to pray together, and to call upon God's holy Name, which be blessed world without end. Amen.
AN HOMILY OF Good Works. And first of Fasting.

HE life which we live in this world (good Christian people) is of the free benefit of God sent us, yet not to use it at our pleasure, after our own fleshly will; but to trade over the same in those Works which are becomimg them that are become new Creatures in Christ. These works the Apostle calleth Good works, laying, We are Gods workmanship, Ephes. 2, created in Christ Jesus to good works, which God hath ordained that we should walk in them. And yet his meaning is not by these words, to induce us, to have any alliance, or to put any confidence in our works, as by the merit and deserting of them to purchase to our selves and others remission of sin, and so consequently everlasting life, for that were mere blasphemy against Gods mercy, and great derogation to the blood-shedding of our Saviour Jesus Christ. For it is of the free grace and mercy of God, by the mediation of the blood of his Son Jesus Christ, without merit of deserving on our part, that our sins are forgiven us, that we are reconciled and brought again into his labour, and are made heirs of his heavenly Kingdom. Grace (saith S. Augustine) belonging to God, who doth call us, and then hath he good works, vouchsafed to us. Good works then being not forth grace; but are brought forth by grace. The wheel (saith he) turneth round, not to the end that it may be made round; but because it is first made round, therefore it turneth round. So, no man doth good works, to receive grace by his good works: but because he hath first received grace, therefore consequently he doth good works. And in another place he saith, Good works go not before in which shall afterward be justified, but good works do follow after when a man is first justified. S. Paul therefore teacheth, that we must do good works, first justified. S. Augustine: That we must do good works, because when we do them, we are thereby the more sure of our justification. Secondly, for that they are good declarations and testimonies of our justification. Thirdly, that others seeing our good works, may the rather by them be stirred up and excited to glorify our Father which is in Heaven. Let us therefore do back to do good works, seeing it is the will of God that we should walk in them, affording our selves that at the last day, every man shall receive of God for his labour done in true faith, a greater reward than his works have deserved. And because somewhat shall now be spoken of one particular good work, which commendation is both in the Law and in the Gospel: thus much is said in the beginning generally of all good works. First, to remove out of the way of the simple and unlearned, this dangerous stumbling block, that any man should go about to purchase or buy heaven with his works. Secondly, to take away (so much as may be) from envious minds, and slanderous tongues, all just occasion of slanderous speaking, as though good works were rejected. This good work which now shall be treated of, is fasting, which is found in the Scriptures to be of two sorts. The one outward, pertaining to the body, the other inward, in the heart and mind. This outward Fast, is an abstinence from meat, drink, and all natural food, yea, from all delicious pleasures and recreations worldly. When this outward Fast pertained to one particular man, or to a few, and not the whole number of the people, for causes which hereafter shall be declared, then it is called a private Fast: But when the whole multitude of men, women and children, in a Townships or City, yea, though a whole Country, do fast, it is called a publick fast. Such was that fast which the whole multitude of the children of Israel were commanded to keep the tenth day of the seventh month, because Almighty God appointed that day to be a cleansing day, a day of atonement, a time of reconciliation, a day wherein the people were cleansed from their sins. The order and manner how it was done, is written in the xvi. and xix. Chapters of Leviticus. That day the people did utter lament, mourn, weep, and bewail their former sins. And whatsoever upon that day did not humble his soul, bewailing his sins, as is laid, abstaining from all bodily food, until the evening, that soul (saith the Almighty God) should be destroyed from among his people. We do not read that Moses ordained, by order of Law, any days of publick fast throughout the whole year, more than that one day. The Jews notwithstanding had more times of common fasting, which the Prophet Zachary recited to be the fast of the fourth, the fast of the fifth, the fast of the seventh, and the fast of the tenth month. But for that it appeared not in the Law when they were instituted, it is to be judged, that those other times of fasting, more than the fast of the seventh month, were ordained among the Jews by the appointment of their Governors, rather of devotion, than by an express commandment given from God. Upon the ordinance of this general fast, good men took occasion to appoint to themselves private fasts, at such times as they did either earnestly lament and bewail their sinful lives, or did advise themselves to more fervent prayer, that it might please God to turn his wrath from them, when either they were admonished and brought to the consideration thereof by the preaching of the Prophets, or otherwise when they saw present danger to hang over their heads. This lowliness of heart, joyed with fasting, they uttered sometimes by their outward behaviour and gesture of body, putting on sackcloth, sprinkling themselves with ashes and dust, and sitting or lying upon the earth. For when good men feel in themselves the heavy burden of sin, see damnation to be the reward of it, and behold with the eye of their mind the horror of hell, they tremble they quake, and are inwardly touched with lowliness of heart for their offences, and cannot but accuse themselves and open these their grief unto Almighty God, and call unto him for mercy. This being done seriously, their mind is so occupied, partly with sorrow and heaviness, partly with an earnest desire to be delivered from this danger of hell and damnation.

of Fasting, &c. 167

damnation, that all desire of meat and drink is laid aside, and loathsomeness of all worldly things and pleasures cometh in place, so that nothing then liketh them more than to weep, to lament, to mourn, and both with words and behaviour of body, to show themselves weary of this life. Thus did David fall, when he made intercession to Almighty God for the Chilis life, begotten in adultery of Bathsheba, Uriah’s wife.
King Achab fasted after this sort, when it repented him of murdering of Naboth, bewailing his own sinful doings. Such was the Ninevites fast, brought to repentance by Jonas preaching. When forty thousand of the Israelites were slain in battle against the Benjamites, the Scripture saith, All the Children of Israel, and the whole multitude of the people went to Bethel, and there weeping before the Lord, and fasted all that day till night. So did Daniel, Hester, Nehemias, and many others in the Judges Did Testament fast. But if any man will say, it is true, so they fasted indeed, but we are not now under the yoke of the Law, we are set at liberty by the freedom of the Gospel: therefore those rites and customs of the old law bind not us, except it can be showed by the Scriptures of the new Testament, or by examples out of the same, that fasting now under the Gospel, is a restraint of meat, drink, and all bodily food and pleasures from the body, as before. First, that we ought to fast, is a truth more manifest, than that it should here need to be proved, the Scriptures which teach the same, are evident. The doubt therefore is, whether when we fast, we ought to withhold from our bodies all meat and drink during the time of our fast, or no? That we ought so to do, may be well gathered upon a question moved by the Pharisees to Christ, and by his anwer again to the same. Why (say they) doth John’s disciples fast often, Luke 7: and yea, and we likewise: but thy disciples eat and drink, and fast not at all. In this smooth question, they couched up subtly this argument or rea-tion: Whoso fasteth not that man is not of God. For fasting and prayer are works both commended and commanded of God in the Scriptures; and all good men, from Moses till this time, as well the Prophets as others, have exercised themselves in these works. John also and his Disciples at this day do fast oft, and pray much, and do as we the Pharisees in like manner: But thy Disciples fast not at all, which if thou wilt deny, we can easily prove it. For whosoever eateth and drinketh, fasteth not. Thy Disciples eat and drink, therefore they fast not. Of this we conclude (say they) necessarily, that neither art thou, nor yet thy Disciples, of God. Christ maketh answer, saying, Can ye make that the children of the wedding shall fast, while the bridegroom is with them?
The days shall come when the bridegroom shall be taken from them: In those days shall they fast. Our Saviour Christ, like a good Father, defendeth the innocency of his Disciples against the malice of the arrogant Pharisees, and proveth that his Disciples are not guilty of transgressg any jot of God’s Law, although as then they fasted, and in his anwer reproved the Pharisees of Superstition and Ignorance. Superstition, because they put a Religion in their doings, and attributed holiness to the outward work wrought, not regarding to what end fasting is ordained. Of ignorance, that they could not discern between time and time. They knew not that there is a time of rejoicing and mirth, and a time again of lamentation and mourning, which both he teacheth in his anwer, as shall be touched more largely hereafter, when we shall shew what time is most fit to fast in.
The First part of the Sermon

But here, beloved, let us note, that our Saviour Christ, in making his answer to their question, denied not, but confessed that his Disciples fasted not, and therefore agreed to the Pharisees in this, as unto a manifest truth; that who so eateth and drinketh, fasteth not. Fasting there-then by Christ's lesion, is a withholding of meat, drink, and all natural food from the body, for the determined time of fasting. And that it was used in the Primitive Church, appears most evident by the Chalcedonian Council, one of the four first general Councils. The Fathers assembled there, to the number of 630, considering with themselves how acceptable a thing fasting is to God, when it is used according to his word: Again, having before their eyes all the great abuses of the same custom among the Church at those days, through the negligence of them which should have taught the people the right use thereof, and by vain glosses, devised of men: to reform the said abuses, and to restore this to good and godly a work, to the true use thereof, decreed in that Council, that every person as well in his private as publick fast, should continue all the day without meat and drink, till after the Evening prayer. And whatsoever did eat or drink before the Evening prayer was ended, should be accounted and reputed not to consider the purity of his fast. This Council teaches us evidently how fasting was used in the Primitive Church, as by words it cannot be more plainly expressed.

Fasting then, by the decrees of these six hundred and thirty Fathers, having their determination in this matter upon the sacred Scriptures, and long continued usage or practice, both of the Prophets and other godly persons, before the coming of Christ, and also of the Apostles and other devout men in the New Testament, is a withholding of meat, drink, and all natural food from the body, for the determined time of fasting. Thus much is spoken hitherto, to make plain unto you what fasting is. Now herewith shall be shewed the true and right use of fasting.

Good works are not all of one sort. For some are of themselves, and of their own proper nature always good: as to love God above all things, to love thy Neighbour as thyself, to honour thy Father and Mother, to honour the higher powers, to give to every man that which is his due, and such like. Other works there be, which considered in themselves, without further respect, are of their own nature merily indifferent, that is, neither good nor evil, but take their denomination of the use or end wherein they serve. Which works having a good end, are called Good works, and are so indeed: but yet that comes not of themselves, but of the good end whereunto they are referred. On the other side, if the end that they serve unto be evil, it cannot then otherwise be, but that they must needs be evil also. Of this sort of works, is fasting, which if it fell is a thing merily indifferent: but it is made better or worse by the end that it refereth unto. For when it refereth a good end, it is a good work; but the end being evil, the work it self is also evil. To fast then with this persuasion of mind, that our fasting, and our good works, can make us perfect and just men, and finally, bring us to heaven, is a debilish persuasion, and that fast is to far off from pleasing of God, that it extreath his mercy, and is altogether derogatory to the merits of Christ's death, and his precious blood-bleeding. This both the parable of the Pharisee and the Publican teach. Two men (saith Christ) went up together into the Temple to pray, the one a Pharisee, the other a publican: the pharisee stood and prayed thus with himself, I thank thee, O God, that I am not as other men are, extortioners, unjust, adulterers, and as this publican is, I fast twice in the week, I give tithes of all that I possess. The publican stood afar off, and would not lift up his eyes to heaven, but smote his breast, and said, God be merciful to me a sinner. In the person of this pharisee, our saviour Christ lettereth out to the eye, and to the judgment of the world, a perfect, just, and righteous man, such as one as is not spotted with those vices that men commonly are infected with, extortion, blyster, polluting and pilling their neighbour, robbers and spoilers of commonwealths, crafty, and subtle in chopping and changing, using false weights, and detestable perjury in their buying and selling, sophisters, adulterers, and vicious liars. The pharisee was no such man, neither guilty in any such like notorious crime. But where other transgressed by leading things undone, which yet the law required: this man did more than was requisite by the law. For he fasted twice in the week, and gave tithes of all that he had. What could the sabbath then justly blame in this man? Ye, what outward thing more could be desired to be in him, to make him a more perfect and a more just man? Truly, nothing by many judgments: and yet our saviour Christ preferred the poor publican without fasting, before him with his fast. The cause why he doth so, is manifest. For the publican having no good works at all to trust unto, yielded up himself unto God, confessing his sins, and hoped certainly to be loved by God's free mercy only. The pharisee gloated, and trusted so much to his works, that he thought himself sure enough without mercy, and that he should come to heaven by his fasting, and other deeds. To this end searcheth that parable. For it is spoken to them that trusted in themselves, that they were righteous, and despised others. Now because the pharisee directed his works to an evil end, seeking by them justification, which indeed is the proper work of God without our merits, his fasting twice in the week, and all his other works, though they were never to many, and seemed to the world never to good and holy, yet in very deed before God they are altogether evil and abominable. The mark also that the pharisees shoot at with their fast, is, to appear holy in the eye of the world, and so to win commendation and praise of men. But our saviour Christ saith of them, they have their reward, that is, they have praise and commendation of men, but of God they have none at all. For whatsoever tendeth to an evil end, is it self, by that evil end, made evil also. Again, so long as we keep ungodliness in our hearts, and suffer wicked thoughts to tarry there, though we fast as oft as did either S. Paul of John Baptist, and keep it as strictly as did the Ninivites: yet shall it be not only unpossessable to us, but also a thing that greatly displeaseth Almighty God. For he saith, that his soul abhorreth and hateth such fastings, yes, they are a burden unto him, and he is weary of bearing them. And therefore he weigheth most sharply against them, saying by the mouth of the prophet Isaiah, Behold, when you fast, your fast remaineth still, for ye do no less violence to your debters. Lo, ye fast to strife and debate, and to strike the face with the salt of wickedness. Now ye shall not fast thus, that you may make your voice to be heard above. Think ye this fast pleaseth me, that a man should chasten himself for a day? Would that he called a fast, or a day that pleaseth the Lord? Now dearly beloved, seeing that Almighty God alloweth not our fast for the works fake, but chiefly respecteth our heart, how it is affected, and thereafter doth our fast either good or evil, by the end that it respecteth: it is our part to rent our hearts, and not our garments, as we are advertised by the Prophet Joel, that is, our sorrow and mourning must be inward in heart, and not in outward show only, yea, it is requisite that first be all things, we cleanse our hearts from sin, and then direct our fast to such an end as God will allow to be good.

There be three ends whereunto if our fast be directed, it is then a work profitable to us, and accepted of God.

The first, is, to chastise the flesh, that it be not too wanton, but tamed and brought in submission to the spirit. This respect had Saint Paul in his fast, when he said, I chastise my body, and bring it into subjection, lest by any means it should combat against me, that when I have preached to others, I myself be found a castaway.

The second, that the spirit may be more earnest and fervent to prayer.

To this end fasted the Prophets and Teachers that were at Antioch, before they sent forth Paul and Barnabas to preach the Gospel. The same two Apostles fasted for the like purpose, when they commended to God, by their earnest prayers, the Congregations that were at Antioch, Phidias, Leonium, and Lystra, as we read in the Acts of the Apostles.

The third, that our fast be a testimony and witness with us before God, of our humble submission to his high Majesty, when we confess and acknowledge our sins unto him, and are inwardly touched with sorrowfulness of heart, bewailing the same in the affliction of our bodies. These are the three ends, or right uses of fasting. The first belonging most properly to private fasts: the other two are common, so well to publick fasts, as to private: and thus much for the use of fasting. Lord have mercy upon us, and give us grace, that while we live in this miserable world, we may through thy help bring forth this, and such other fruits of the spirit, commended and commanded in thy holy word, to the glory of thy Name, and to our comfort, that after the race of this wretched life, we may live everlastingly with thee in thy heav'nly Kingdom, not for the merits and worthiness of our works, but for thy merites sake, and the merits of thy dear Son Jesus Christ, to whom with thee and the holy Ghost, be all laud, honour, and glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

In the former Homily (beloved) was shewed, that among the people of the Jews fasting as it was commanded them from God by Moses, was to abstain the whole day, from morning till night, from meat, drink, and all manner of food, that nouriseth the body, and that whose taken ought before the evening, on the day appointed to fasting, was accounted among them a breaker of his fast. Which order, though it seem strange to some in these our daies, because it hath not been so generally used in this Realm of many yeares past: yet that it was so among Gods people people (I mean the Jews) whom before the coming of our Saviour Christ, God did blesse to chuse unto himself, a peculiar people above all other nations of the earth, and that our Saviour Christ so understood it, and the Apostles after Christ's ascension did so use it, was there sufficiently proved by the testimonies and examples of the holy Scriptures, as well of the new Testament, as of the old. The true use of fasting was there also shewed. In this second part of this Homily shall be shewed, that no constitution or Law made by man, for things which of their own proper nature be mere indifferent, can bind the conscience of Christian men to a perpetual observance and keeping thereof, but that the higher powers have full liberty to alter and change every such law and ordinance, either Ecclesiastical or Political, when time and place shall require. But first an answer shall be made to a question that some may make, demanding what judgment we ought to have of such abstinencies as are appointed by publick Order and Laws made by Princes, and by the authority of the Magistrates, upon policy, not respecting any Religion at all in the same. As when any Realm in consideration of the maintaining of Fissher-towns bordering upon the Seas, and for the increase of Fissher-men, of whom do lying Harbours go upon the Sea, to the furnishing of the Navy of the Realm, whereby not only Commodities of other Countries may be transported, but also may be a necessary defence to resist the invasion of the adversary. For the better understanding of this question, it is necessary that we make a difference between the policies of Princes, made for the ordering of their Commonweals, in provision of things serving to the most sure defence of their Subjects and Countries, and between Ecclesiastical Policies, in prescribing such works, by which, as by secondary means, God's wrath may be pacified, and his mercy purchased. Positive laws made by Princes, for consideration of their policy, not repugnant unto God's Law, ought of all Christian Subjects with reverence of the Magistrate to be obeyed, not only for fear of punishment, but also (as the Apostle faith) for conscience sake. Conscience, I say, not of the thing which of its own nature is indifferent, but of our obedience, which by the Law of God we owe unto the Magistrate, as unto God's Minister. By which positive Laws, though we Subjects for certain times and days appointed, be restrained from some kinds of meats and drink, which God by his holy Word hath left free to be taken and used of all men with thanksgiving in all places, and at all times: yet for that such Laws of Princes and other Magistrates are not made to put holiness in one kind of meat and drink more than another, to make one day more holy than another, but are grounded merely upon policy, all Subjects are bound in conscience to keep them by God's Commandment, who by the Apostle willsteth all without exception, to submit themselves unto the authority of the higher Powers. And in this point concerning our duties which be here dwelling in England, environed with the Sea, as we be, we have great occasion in reason to take the commodities of the water, which Almighty God by his divine Providence hath laid so nigh unto us, whereby the increase of victuals upon the land may the better be spared and cherished, to the sooner reducing of victuals to a more moderate price, to the better sustenance of the poor. And doubtless he seemeth to be too dainty an Englishman, who considering the great commodities which may ensue, will not forbear some piece of his licentious appetite upon the ordinance of his Prince, with the content of the wife of the Realm. What good English heart would not wish that the old ancient glory should return to the Realm, wherein it hath with great commendations excelled before our days, in the furniture of the Holy of the same? What will more daunt the hearts of the Adversaries, than to see us well fenced and armed on the Sea, as we be reported to be on the Land? If the Prince requested our obedience to observe one day from six more than we do, and to be contented with one meal in the same day, should not our own commodity thereby persuade us to subjection? But know that two meals be permitted on that day to be used, which sometime our Elders in very great numbers in the Realm did use with one only spare meal, and that in fish only: shall we think it to be a burden that is preferred?

Furthermore, consider the decay of the Towns nigh the Seas, which should be most ready by the number of the people there to repulse the enemy, and we which dwell further off upon the land, having them as our pincers to defend us, should be the more in safety. If they be our neighbours, why should we not wish them to prosper? If they be our defence as rigidly as hard to repel the enemy, to keep out the rage of the Seas which else would break in upon our fair pastures, why should we not cherish them? Neither do we urge that in the Ecclesiastical policy, prefer-ing a form of fasting, to humble our selves in the sight of Almighty God, that that order which was used among the Jews, and practised by Christ's Apostles after his attention, is of such force and necessity, that that only ought to be used among Christians, and none other, for that were to bind Gods people unto the yoke and burden of Moses' his policy, yea, it were the very way to bring us which are set at liberty by the freedom of Christ's Gospel, into the bondage of the Law again, which God forbid that any man should attempt or purpose. But to this end it is truth, to know how far the order of fasting now used in the Church at this day, differs from that which then was used. Gods Church ought not, neither may it be so tried to that or any other order now made, or hereafter to be made and devised by the authority of man, but that it may lawfully, for just causes, alter, change, or mitigate those Ecclesiastical decrees and orders, yea, receive wholly from them; and break them, when they tend either to superstition, or to impility, when they draw the people from God, rather than work any edification in them. This authority Christ himself used, and left it to his Church.
He used it, I say, for the order or decree made by the Elders for washing after times, which was diligently observed of the Jews; yet tending to superstition, our Saviour Christ altered and changed the same in his Church, into a profitable Sacrament, the Sacrament of our regeneration of new birth. This authority to mitigate laws and decrees Ecclesiastical, the Apostles practised, when they, writing from Jerusalem unto the Congregation that was at Antioch, signified unto them that they would not lay any further burden upon them, but these necessaries: that is, that they should abstain from things offered unto idols, from blood, from that which is strangled, and from fornication; notwithstanding that Moses Law required many other observances. This authority to change the orders, decrees, and constitutions of the Church was after the Apostles time used of the Fathers about the manner of fasting, as it appears in the Tripartite History, where it is thus written, Touching fasting,
of Fasting.

Fasting, we find that it was diversely used in divers places by divers men. For they at Rome fast three weeks together before Easter, saving upon the Saturdays and Sundays, which fast they call Lent. And after a few lines in the same place it followeth: They have not all one uniform order in fasting. For some do fast and abstain both from fish and flesh. Some when they fast, eat nothing but fish. Others there are, which when they fast, eat of all water-courses, as of fish, grounding themselves upon Moses, that such fouls have their substance of the water, as the fishes have. Some others when they fast, will neither eat herbs nor eggs. Some fasters there are, that eat nothing but dry bread. Others when they fast, eat nothing at all, no not so much as dry bread. Some fast from all manner of food till night, and then eat, without making any choice or difference of meats. And a thousand such like divers kinds of fasting may be found in divers places of the world, of divers men diversly used. And for all this great diversity in fasting, yet charity the very true bond of Christian peace was not broken, neither did the diversity of fasting break at any time their agreement and concord in faith. To abstain sometimes from certain meats, not because the meats are evil, but because they are not necessary, this abstraction (Sain Augustine) is not evil. And to refrain the use of meats when necessity and time shall require, this (faith he) doth properly pertain to Christian men.

Thus ye have heard, good people, first that Christian Subjects are bound even in conscience to obey Princes Laws, which are not repugnant to the Laws of God. Ye have also heard that Christ's Church is not to be bound to observe any Order, Law, or Decree made by man, to prescribe a form in Religion: but that the Church hath full power and authority from God, to change and alter the same, when need shall require, which hath been shewed to you by the example of our Saviour Christ, by the practice of the Apostles, and of the Fathers since that time. Now shall be shewed briefly what time is meet for fasting, for all times be not for all things; but as the wise man faith, All things have their times. There is a time to weep, and a time again to laugh, a time to mourn, and a time to rejoice. Our Saviour Christ excited his disciples, and reproved the Pharisees, because they neither regarded the use of fasting, not observing what time was meet for the same. Which both he teacheth in his answer, saying, The children of the marriage cannot mourn, while the bridegroom is with them. Their question was of fasting, his answer is of mourning, signifying unto them plainly that the outward fast of the body, is no fast before God, except it be accompanied with the inward fast, which is a mourning and a lamentation of the heart, as is before declared. Concerning the time of fasting, he faith, The dotes will come, when the bridegroom shall be taken from them, in those dotes they shall fast. By this it is manifest, that it is no time of fasting while the marriage lasts, and the bridegroom is there present. But when the marriage is ended, and the bridegroom gone, then it is a meet time to fast. Now to make plain unto you what is the sense and meaning of these words, We are at the marriage, and again, The bridegroom is taken from us: Ye shall note, that so long as God revealed his mercy unto us, and gave us of his benefits, either spiritual or corporal, we are laid to be with the bridegroom at the marriage. So was that good old father Jacob at the marriage, when he understood that his Son Joseph was alive.

alive, and ruled all Egypt under King Pharaoh. So was David in the marriage with the bridegroom when he had gotten the victory of great Goliath, and had smitten off his head. Judith, and all the people of Bethulia, were the children of the wedding, and had the bridegroom with them, when God had by the hand of a woman slain Holofernes, the grand Captain of the Assyrians, and discomfited all their enemies. Thus were the Apostles the children of the marriage while Christ was corporally present with them, and defended them from all dangers, both spiritual and corporal. But the marriage is said then to be ended, and the bridegroom to be gone, when Almighty God invited us with affliction, and seemeth to leave us in the midst of a number of adversities. So God sometimes striketh private men privately with sundry adversities, as trouble of mind, loss of friends, loss of goods, long and dangerous sicknesses, etc., to see if a fit time for that man to humble himself to Almighty God by fasting, and to mourn and bewail his sins with a sorrowful heart, and to pray unfeignedly, saying with the Prophet David, "Turn away thy face, O Lord, from my sins, and blot out of thy remembrance all mine offenses. Again, When God shall afflict a whole nation, Country with wars, with Famine, with Pestilence, with strange Diseases, and unknown Sicknesses, and other such like calamities: then is it time for all states and sorts of people, high and low, men, women, and children, to humble themselves by fasting, and bewail their sinful living before God, and pray with one common voice, saying thus, or some other such like prayer. Be favourable, O Lord, be favourable unto thy people, which turn unto thee, in weeping, fasting, and praying, spare thy people whom thou hast redeemed with thy precious blood, and suffer not thine inheritance to be destroyed and brought to confusion. Fasting thus used with prayer, is of great efficacy, and weighteth much with God. So the Angel Raphael told Tobias. It also appeareth by that which our Saviour Christ answered to his Disciples, demanding of him why they could not cast forth the evil Spirit out of him, that was brought unto them. This kind (faith he) is not cast out but by fasting and prayer. How available fasting is, how much it weighteth with God, and what it is able to obtain at his hand, cannot better be set forth, than by opening unto you, and laying before you some of those notable things that have been brought to pass by it. Fasting was one of the means whereby Almighty God was occasioned to alter the thing which he had purposed concerning Ahab, for murdering the innocent man Naboth, to possess his Vineyard. God spake unto Elias, saying, Go thy way and lay unto Ahab, hast thou killed, and also gotten possession? Thus saith the Lord, In the place where Dogs licked the blood of Naboth, shall Dogs even lick thy blood also. Behold, I will bring evil upon thee, and will take away the Posterity: Psa, the Dogs shall eat him of Ahab's stock that dieth in the City, and him that dieth in the field shall the Fowls of the air eat. This punishment had Almighty God determined for Ahab in this World, and to destroy all the male-kind that was begotten of Ahab's body; besides that punishment which should have happened unto him in the world to come. When Ahab heard this, he rent his clothes, and put sackcloth upon him and fasted, and lay in sackcloth, and went barefooted. Then the word of the Lord came to Elias, saying, lest thou bow down Ahab is humbled before me? Because he submitted himself before me, I will nothing that evil

evil in his daies, but in his sons daies will I lay it upon his house. Although Ahab, through the wicked counsel of Jezebel his wife, had committed shamefull murder, and against all rite disinherited and dispossessed over Naboth's stock of that vineyard yet upon his humble submission in heart unto God, which he declared outwardly by putting on sackcloth and fasting, God changed his sentence, so that the punishment which he had determined, fell not upon Ahab's house in his time, but was deferred unto the daies of Joram his son. Here we may see of what force our outward fast is, when it is accompanied with the inward fast of the mind, which is (as is said) a forrowfulness of heart, detesting and bewailing our sinful doings. The like is to be seen in the Ninevites: For when God had determined to destroy the whole City of Nineve, and the time which he had appointed, was even now at hand, he sent the Prophet Jonas to lay upon them yet forty days, and Nineve shall be overthrown. The people by and by believed God, and gare themselves to fasting, yea, the king by the advice of his council, caused to be proclaimed, saying, Let neither man nor beast, bullock nor sheep taste any thing, neither seed nor drink water: But let man and beast put on sackcloth, and cry mightily unto God, yea, let every man turn from his evil way, and from the wickedness that is in their hands. This can tell us what God will turn and repent, and turn away from his fierce wrath, that we perish not. And upon this their hearty repentance, thus declared outwardly with fasting, renting of their clothes, putting on sackcloth, and sighing themselves with dust and ashes, the Scripture faith, God saw their works that they turned from their evil ways, and God repented of the evil that he had loved they would do unto them, and he did It not. Now beloved, ye have heard first what fasting is, as well that which is outward in the body, as that which is inward in the heart. Ye have heard also that there are three ends of purposes, whereunto our outward fasts be directed, it is a good work that God is pleased with. Thirdly hath been declared, what time is most meet for fasts, either privately or publicly. Last of all, what things fasting hath obtained of God, by the examples of Ahab and the Ninevites. Let us therefore, dear beloved, fear not there are many more caules of fasting and mourning in these our daies, than have been of many years heretofore in any one age, endeavour our selves both inwardly in our hearts, and also outwardly with our bodies, diligently to exercise this godly exercise of fasting, in such sort and manner, as the holy Prophets, the Apostles, and divers other devout persons for their time used the same. God is now the same, that he was then, God that loveth righteousness, and that hateth iniquity, God which will not the death of a sinner, but rather that he turn from his wickedness and live, God that hath promised to turn to us, if we refuse not to turn to him; yea, if we turn our evil works from before his eyes, cease to do evil, learn to do well, seek to do right, relieve the oppressed, be a right Judge to the fatherless, defend the widow, break our head to the hungry, bying the poor that wander into our house, cloath the naked, and despise not our brother which is our own flesh: then shalt thou call (saith the Prophet) and the Lord shall answer, thou shalt cry, and he shall say, here am I: Yea, God which heard Ahab and the Ninevites, and spared them, will also hear our prayers, and spare us so, that we after their example, will unfeignedly turn unto him: yea, he will Relieve us, with his heavenly benedictions.

Violating the time that we have to tarry in this world, and after the race of this mortal life, he will bring us to his heavenly Kingdom, where we shall reign in everlasting blessedness with our Saviour Christ, to whom with the Father and the Holy Ghost, be all honour and glory for ever and ever. Amen.

AN HOMILY AGAINST GLUTTONY AND DRUNKENNESS.

Shave heard in the former Sermon, wellbeloved, the description and the virtue of fasting, with the true use of the same. Now ye shall have how foul a thing Gluttony and Drunkenness is before God, the rather to move you to use fasting the more diligently. Understand ye therefore, that Almighty God (to the end that we might keep our selves undefiled and serve him in holiness and righteousness, according to his word) hath charged in his Scriptures so many as look for the glorious appearing of our Saviour Christ, to lead their lives in all sobriety, modesty, and temperance. Whereby we may learn how necessary it is for every Christian that will not be found unready at the coming of our Saviour Christ, to live sober-minded in this present world, especially as otherwise being unready, he cannot enter with Christ into glory: and being unwarmed in this behalf, he must needs be in continual danger of that cruel adversary the roaring Lion, against whom the Apostle Peter warneth us to prepare our selves in continual sobriety, that we may rest, being steadfast in faith. To the intent therefore that this soberness may be used in all our behaviour, it shall be expedient for us to declare unto you how much all kind of excess offendeth the Majesty of Almighty God, and how grievously he punisheth the immoderate abuse of those his creatures which he ordineth to the maintenance of this our needy life, as meats, drinks, and apparel. And again, to show the noxious diseases and great mischiefs that commonly do follow them that immoderately give themselves to be carried headlong with such pleasures as are joined either with vainglory and overlarge fare, or else with costly and sumptuous apparel.

And first, that ye may perceive how detestable and hateful all excess in eating and drinking is before the face of Almighty God, ye shall call to mind what is written by Saint Paul to the Galatians, where he numbereth gluttony and drunkenness among those horrible crimes, with which (as he saith) no man should inherit the kingdom of heaven.
Gluttony and Drunkenness.

He recketh them among the deeds of the flesh, and couples them with idolatry, whoredom, and murder, which are the greatest offences that can be named among men. For the first spoileth God of his honour, the second defiles his holy Temple, that is to wit, our own bodies, the third maketh us companions of Cain in the slaughter of our brethren, and who so committeth them, as Saint Paul saith, cannot inherit the Kingdom of God. Certainly, that sin is very odious and loathed before the face of God, which causeth him to turn his favourable countenance so far from us, that he should clean bar us out of the doors, and disinherit us of his heavenly Kingdom. But he so much abhorreth all beastly banqueting, that by his Son our Saviour Christ in the Gospel, he declareth his terrible indignation against all belly gods, in that he pronounceth them accursed, saying, ‘Who be to you that are full, so ye shall hunger. And by the Prophet Isaiah he saith, ‘You be to you that arise early to give your selves to drunkenness and set all your minds to so drunken, that you sit dulling thereat until it be night. The Harp, the Lute, the Salme, and plenty of Wine are at your Feast, but the works of the Lord ye do not behold, neither consider the works of his hands. Who be unto you that are strong to drink wine, and are mighty to advance drunkenness.’ Here the Prophet plainly teacheth, that fasting and banqueting make men forgetful of their duty towards God, when they give themselves to all kinds of pleasures, not considering nor regarding the works of the Lord, who hath created meats and drinks, as Saint Paul saith, to be received thankfully of them that believe and know the truth. So that the beholding of these creatures (being the handy work of Almighty God) might teach us to use them thankfully as God hath ordained. Therefore they are without excuse before God, which either selfishly feed themselves, not regarding the sanctification which is by the word of God and power, or else unthankfully abuse the good Creatures of God by surfeiting and drunkenness, as much as God’s Ordinances in his Creatures plainly forbid it. They that give themselves therefore to bibbing and banqueting, being without all consideration of God’s judgments, are suddenly appeased in the day of vengeance. Therefore Christ faith to his disciples, ‘Take heed to your selves, lest at any time your hearts be overweighed with surfeiting and drunkenness, and cares of this world, and so that day come on you unawares. Whosoever then shall take warning at Christ, let him take heed to himself, lest his heart being overwhelmed by surfeiting, and drowned in drunkenness, he be taken unawares with that unholy servant, which thinking not on his Master’s coming, began to smite his fellow-servants, and to eat and to drink, and to be drunken, and to be suddenly taken, hath his just reward with unbelieving hypocrites, that use to drink deeply, and to feed at full (swallowing themselves in all kind of wickedness) are brought asleep in that numbing forgetfulness of God’s holy will and commandments. Therefore Almighty God crieth by the Prophet Joel: ‘Awake ye drunkards, weep and howl; all ye drinkers of wine, because the new wine shall be pulled from your mouth. Here the Lord terribly threateth to withdraw his benefits from such as abuse them, and to pull the cup from the mouths of drunkards. Here we may learn, not to sleep in drunkenness and surfeiting, lest God deprive us of the use of his creatures, when we unkindly abuse them. For certainly the Lord our God will not only take away his benefits when they are unthank.
The Sermon against

unthankfully abused; but also in his wrath and heavy displeasure take vengeance on such as immoderately abuse them. If our first Parents Adam and Eve had not obeyed their greedy appetite in eating the forbidden fruit, neither had they lost the fruition of God's benefits which they then enjoyed in Paradise, neither had they brought to many mischiefs both to themselves, and to all their posterity. But when they passed the bounds that God had appointed them, as unworthy of God's benefits, they were expelled and driven out of Paradise, they may no longer eat the fruits of that Garden, which by excess they had so much abused. As transgressors of God's Commandment, they and their posterity are brought to a perpetual shame and confusion, and as accursed of God, they must now sweat for their living, which before had abundance at their pleasure. Even so, if we in eating and drinking exceed, when God of his large liberality bendeth plenty, he will soon change plenty into scarceness. And whereas we glori in lusts, he will make us empty, and confound us with penury, yea, we shall be compelled to labour and travel with pain, in seeking for that which we sometime enjoyed at ease. Thus the Lord will not leave them unpunished, who not regarding his works, follow the lusts and appetites of their own hearts. The Patriarch Noah, whom the Apostle calleth the preacher of righteousness, a man exceedingly in God's favour, is in holy Scripture made an example, whereby we may learn to avoid drunkenness. For when he had poured in wine more than was convenient, in filthy manner he lay naked in his tent, his privities discovered. And whereas sometime he was so much esteemed, he is now become a laughing-stock to his wicked Son Cham, a small grief to Sen and Japhet his other two Sons, which were ashamed of their Fathers beastly behaviour. Here we may note that drunkenness bringeth with it shame and derision, so that it never escapes unpunished. Lot in like manner, being overcome with wine, committed abominable incest with his own daughters. So will Almighty God give over drunkards, to the shameful lusts of their own hearts. Here is Lot by drinking fallen so far beneath himself, that he kneweth not his own daughters. Who would have thought that an old man in that heavy case, having lost his wife and all that he had, which he had even now lost for God's vengeance in fearful manner declared on the five Cities for their vicious living, should be so far past the remembrance of his duty? But men overcome with drinking, are altogether mad, as Seneca faileth. He was deceived by his daughters; but now many deceive themselves, never thinking that God by his terrible punishments will be avenged on them that offend by excess. It is no small plague that Lot purchased by his drunkenness. For he had population most filthy with his own Daughters, which conceived thereby, to that matter so brought to light, it can no longer be hid. Two incestuous Children are born, Amnon and Moab, of whom came two Nations, the Ammonites and Moabites, abhorred of God, and cruel adversaries to his people the Israelites. Lot Lot hath gotten to himself by drinking, sorrow and care, with perpetual infamy and reproach unto the world's end. If God spared not his servant Lot, being otherwise a godly man, nephew unto Abraham, one that entertained the Angels of God: What will he do to these beastly belly flapers, which walk of all godliness or vertuous behaviour, not once, but continually day and night, give themselves wholly to drinking and banquetting? But let us yet further behold the terrible examples of God's indignation as greedily follow their unfruitful lusts. Ammon, the Son of David, feasting himself with his brother Abishalom, cruelly murdered of his own brother. Holofernes, a vainglorious and mighty Captain, being drunk overwhelmed with wine, had his head struck off from his shoulders by that silly woman Judith. Simon the High Priest, and his two Sons, Matthias and Judas, being entertained at Ptolemy the son of Abobus, who had before married Simon's daughter, after much eating and drinking were rapaciously murdered of their own kinsman. If the Israelites had not given themselves to belly cheer, they had never so often fallen to Ptolemy. Neither would we at this day be addicted to superstition, were it not that we so much esteemed the filling of our bellies. The Israelites, when they feasted Moses, sat down to eat and drink, and 1 Cor. 10.

came again to play, as the Scripture reports: Therefore seeking to serve their bellies, they forsook the service of the Lord their God. So are we drawn to content unto wickedness, when our hearts are overwhelmed by drunkenness and feasting. So Herod letting his mind on Matt. 14.

banqueting, was content to grant, that the holy man of God, John Baptist, should be beheaded at the request of his Whores daughter. Had not the rich glutton been so greedily given to the pampering of his belly, he would never have been so merciless to the poor? Lazarus, neither had he felt the torments of the unquenchable fire. What was the cause that God so horribly punished Sodom and Gomorra? was it not Ezek. 16.

their proud banqueting and continual idlenes which caused them to be so lewd of life, and so merciless towards the poor? What halt we now think of the horrible excess, whereby so many have perished, and been brought to destruction? The great Alexander after that he had conquered the whole World, was himself overcome by drunkenness, insomuch that being drunken, he slew his faithful friend Citius, whereas when he was sober, he was so much ashamed, that for anguish of heart, he wished death. Yet notwithstanding, after this he left not his banqueting, but in one night swilled in so much wine, that he fell into a Fever, and when as by no means he would abstain from wine, within few days after in miserable lust he ended his life. The Conqueror of the whole World is made a slave by excess, and become so mad that he murdered his dear friend, he is plagued with fowls, shame, and grief of heart for his intemperance, yet can he not leave it, he is kept in captivity, and by which sometime had subdued many, is become a subject to the vile belly. So are drunkards and gluttons altogether without power of themselves, and the more they drink, the more they war, one banquet provoketh another, they study to fill their greedy stomachs. Therefore it is commonly said, A drunken man is always dry, and A gluttons gut is never filled. Unsatiable truly are the affections and lusts of man's heart, and therefore we must learn to abridge them with the fear of God, so that we yield not our own lusts, lest we kindle God's indignation against our lives, when we seek to satisfy our beastly appetite. Saint Paul teacheth us, Whether we eat, or drink, or whatsoever we do, to do it all to the glory of God. Where he appointed, as it were by a measure, how much a man may eat and drink: that is to wit, so much that the mind be not made sluggish by cramming in meat, and poying in drink, so that it cannot lift up itself to the glory and praise of God. Whosoever he be then, that by eating eating and drinking maketh himself unfit to serve God, let him not think to escape unpunished.

Ye have heard how much Almighty God detesteth the abuse of his Creatures, as he himself declareth, aforesaid his holy Word, as also by the fearful examples of his just judgment. How if neither the Word of God can restrain our raging lusts and greedy appetites, neither the manifest examples of God's vengeance beat us from riotous and excessive eating and drinking, let us yet consider the manifold mischiefs that proceed thereof, so shall we know the tree by the fruits. It hurseth the body, it infecteth the mind, it wasteth the substance, and is no place to the neighbours. But who is able to escape the manifold dangers and inconveniences that follow of intemperate Diet? Yet cometh sudden death by banqueting, sometimes the Members are disolved, and so the whole Body is brought into a miserable state. He that eateth and drinketh unmeasurably, kindleth oft times such an unnatural heat in his body, that his appetite is provoked thereby to defile more than it should, or else it overcometh his stomach, and filleth all the body full of sluggishness, makes it unable and unfit to serve either God or Man, not nourishing the body, but hurting it; and last of all, bringeth many kinds of incurable Diseases, whereof ensuch sometimes desperate Death. But what should I need to say any more in this behalf? For except God bids our Heats, and giveth them strength to feed us; again, except God giveth strength to Nature to digest, so that we may take post by them, either shall we bitterly domineer them up again, or else shall they beinking in our bodies, as in a lostsome sink or channel, and so diversely infect the whole body. And surely the blessing of God is so far from such as use riotous banqueting, that in their faces be sometimes seen the express tokens of this intemperancy: as Solomon notes in his Proverbs, To whom is woe (faith he) to whom is sorrow? to whom is strife? to whom is bawling? to whom are wounds without cause? and for whom is the reducet of eyes? even to whom that tarry long at the wine. Mark (I beseech you) the terrible tokens of God's indignation: Woe, and sorrow, strife, and bawling, wounds without cause, disfigured face, and reducet of eyes are to be looked for, when men let themselves to excess and gymanistle, devising all means to increase their greedy appetites by tempering the wine, and twixting it in such sort, that it may be more delectable and pleasant unto them. It were expedient that such delicate persons should be ruled by Solomon, who in consideration of the aforesaid inconveniences, forbiddeth the very sight of wine. Look not upon the wine (faith he) when it is red, and when it setteth his colour in the cup, or goeth down pleasantly: for in the end thereof it will bite like a Serpent, and hurt like a Cockatrice. Thrice eyes shall look upon strange women, and thine heart shall speak fond things, and thou shalt be as one that steepeth in the midst of the Sea, and as he that steepeth on the top of the Cliff. They have stunken me (they that lay) but I was not sick, they have beaten me, but I felt it not, therefore will I seek it yet all. Certainly that must needs be very hurtful which biteth and infecteth like a poisoned Serpent, whereby men are brought to filthy excretion, which causeth the heart to devises mischiefs. He doubtles is in great danger that steepeth in the midst of the Sea, for soon he is overwhelmed with waves. He is like to fall suddenly that steepeth Gluttony and Drunkenness.

Niceth in the top of the Past. And likewise he hath lost his senses that cannot feel when he is stung, that knoweth not when he is beaten. So, surfeiting and drunkenness bites the belly, and causeth continual gnawing in the stomach, bringeth men to whose damom and lewdness of heart, with dangers unspeakable: so that men are bereaved and robbed of their senses, and are altogether without power of themselves, who see not now the miserable estate wherein men are brought, by these soul-slaying monsters. Gluttony and Drunkenness: the body is so much disquieted by them, that as Jesus the Son of Sardan affirmed, the intractable feeder never sleeps quietly, such an unreasonable heat is kindled, whereof ensueth continual ache and pain to the whole body. And no less truly the mind is also annoyed by surfeiting banquets: for sometimes men are stung with frenzy of mind, and are brought in like manner to meet madmen, some are witty and blockish, that they become altogether void of understanding. It is an horrible thing that any man should maintain himself in any member: but for a man of his own accord to bereave himself of his wife, is a mischief intolerable. The Prophet Osee in the fourth Chapter, saith, that wine and drunkenness take away the heart. Alas then, that any man should plead unto that, whereby he might bereave himself of the possession of his own heart. Wine and women lead vile men out of the way, and bring men of understanding to reproach and shame, saith Jesus the Son of Sardan. Psa. He asketh what is the life of man that is overcome with drunkenness. Wine drunken with exceed, maketh bitterness of mind, and causeth swerving and strife. In Pagistrates it causeth cruelty instead of Justice, as the wise Philosopher Plato perceived right well, when he affirmed that a drunken man hath a tympanous heart, and therefore will rule at his pleasure, contrary to right and reason. And certainly drunkenness maketh men forget both law and equity, which caused King Solomon so strictly to charge that no wine should be given unto Prov. 31. Rulers, lest peradventure by drinking, they forget what the law appoincth them, and so change the judgment of all the children of the poor. Therefore among all sorts of men, excessive drinking is most intolerable in a Pagistrate or man of Authority, as Plato saith: For a drunken man knoweth not where he is himself. If then a man of Authority should be a drunken man, alas, how might he be a guide unto other men, standing in need of a Governor himself? Besides this, a drunken man can keep nothing secret: many loud, foolish, and filthy words are spoken when men are at these banquets. Drunkenness (as Seneca affectionately) doth discover all wickedness, and bringeth it to light, it removeth all shamefastness, and increaseth all mischief. The proud man being drunken, uttereth his pride, the cruel man his cruelty, and the envious man his envy, so that no vice can be hid in a drunken. Moreover, in that he knoweth not himself, he stumbleth and staggereth in his speech, staggereth to and fro in his walking, beholding nothing steadfastly with his staring eyes, believeth that the house runneth round about him. It is evident that the mind is brought clean out of frame by excessive drinking, so that whatsoever is described by wine or strong drink, becometh, as Solomon saith, a mocker, or a madman, so that he can never be wise. If any man think that he may drink much wine, and yet be well in his wits, he may as well suppose, as Seneca saith, that when he hath drunken poison, he shall not die. For wheresoever excessive drink, For wherefover excessive drinking is, there must needs follow perturbation of mind, and where the belly is stuffed with bawdy fare, there the mind is oppressed with thoughtful sluggishness. A full belly maketh a gross understanding, saith S. Bernard, and much meat maketh a weak mind. But alas, now adays men pafs little either for body or mind: so they have worldly wealth and riches abundant to satisfy their unmeasurable lusts, they care not what they do. They are not ashamed to show their drunken faces, and to play the mad man openly. They think themselves in good case, and that all is well with them if they be not pinched by lack and poverty. Left any of us therefore might take occasion to flatter himself in this beastly kind of excess, by the abundance of riches, let us call to mind what Solomon wittily in the xxi. of his Proverbs, He that loveth wine and fat fare, shall never be rich, saith he. And in the xxxiii. Chapter, he maketh a vehement exhortation on this wise, Keep not company with drunkards and gluttons, for the glutton and drunkard shall come to poverty.

He that danceth his Patrimony through his throat, and eateth and drinketh more in one hour, or in one day, than he is able to earn in a whole week, must needs be an unthrift, and come to beggary. But some will say, what need any to find fault with this? He danceth no man but himself, he is no mans foe but his own. Indeed I know this is commonly spoken in defence of these beastly belly-gods, but it is easy to see how hurtful they are, not only to themselves, but also to the Commonwealth by their example. Every one that meeteth them is troubled with yawning and contentious language, and oft times raging in beastly lusts, like high-fed Prophets, they neigh on their neighbours' riches, as Jeremy faith, and deride their children and daughters. Their example is evil to them among whom they dwell, they are an occasion of offence to many, and whilst they waste their substance in banqueting, their own household is not provided of things necessary, their wives and their children are chillly treated, they have not whereby to relieve their poor neighbours in time of necessity, as they might have, if they lived soberly. They are unpoissible to the Commonwealth. For a drunkard is neither fit to rule, nor to be ruled. They are a scandal to the Church or Congregation of Christ, and therefore S. Paul both excommunicate them among whoresmongers, idolaters, covetous persons, and extorters, forbidding Christians to eat with any such. Let us therefore, good people, eschew every one of us, all intemperancy, let us lose covetous and moderate diet, off give our selves to abstinence and fasting, whereby the mind of man is most lifted up to God, more ready to all godly exercises, as prayer, hearing and reading God's word, to his spiritual comfort. Finally, whosoever regarded the health and safety of his own body, or witheth alwayes to be well in his looks, or desirth quietness of mind, and abhorreth fury and madness, he that would be rich, and escape poverty, he that is willing to live without the hurt of his neighbour, a postible member of the Commonwealth, a Christian without scandal of Christ and his Church, let him abate all riotous and excessive banqueting, let him learn to keep such measure as behoveth him that professeth true godliness, let him follow S. Paul's rule, and so eat and drink, to the glory and praise of God, who hath created all things to be soberly used with thanksgiving, to whom be all honour and glory for ever. Amen.

Hereas ye have therefore been excited and stirr'd to use temperance of meats and drinks, and to avoid the excess thereof; many wares hurtful to the state of the Commonwealth, and so obvious before Almighty God, being the author and giver of such Creatures, to comfort and stabiliz our frail nature with thanks unto him, and not by abusing of them to provoke his liberality to severe punishing of that disorder. In like manner it is convenient, that ye be admonished of another soul and chargeable excess: I mean, of apparel, at these vales to gorgeous, that neither Almighty God by his Word can say our proud curiosity in the same, neither yet godly and necessary Laws, made by our Princes, and oft repeated with the penalties, can hide this detestable abuse, whereby both God is openly contemned, and the Princes Laws manifestly dis obeyed, to the great peril of the Realm. Wherefore, that soberly also in this excess may be elyed among us. I shall declare unto you, both the moderate use of apparel, approved by God in his holy Word, and also the abuses thereof, which he forbidden and disallowed, as it may appear by the inconveniences which daily increase, by the just judgment of God, where the measure is not kept, which he himself hath appointed. If we consider the end and purpose whereunto Almighty God hath ordained his Creatures, we shall easily perceive that he alloweth us apparel, not only for necessities, but also for honest comeliness. Even as in herbs, trees, and lively fruits, we have not only divers necessary uses, but also the pleasant sight and sweet smell, to delight us withal, wherein we may behold the singular love of God towards mankind, in that he hath provided both to relieve our necessities, and also to refresh our senses with an honest and moderate recreation. Therefore David in the hundred and fourth Psalm, confessing Gods careful Providence, saith that God not only abolished things necessary for men, as herbs and other meats, but also such things as may rejoice and comfort, as wine to make glad the heart, oyls and ointments to make the face to shine. So that they are altogether past the limits of humanity, who yielding only to necessity, forbid the lawful fruition of Gods benedictions.

...one we may not be led, if we give ear to S. Paul, writing to the Colosians, willing them not to hearken unto such men as shall say, Touch not, Taste not, Handle not,Superstitiously breaching them of the fructification of God's Creatures. And no less truly ought we to beware, lest under pretence of Christian Liberty, we take licence to do what we list, advancing our selves in sumptuous apparel, and delighting others, preparing our selves in fine babery, to wanton, loud, and unchaste behaviour. To avoid the avoiding whereof, it behovedeth us to be mindful of our Lessons, taught in holy Scripture, whereby we shall learn to temper our selves, and to restrain our immoderate affections, to that measure which God hath appointed. The first is, that we make not provision for the flesh, to accomplish the lusts thereof, with costly apparel, as that Barlot did of whom Solomon speaketh, Proverbs the leaveth, which perfumed her bed, and deckt it with costly ornaments of Egypt, to the fulfilling of her lewd lust: but rather ought we to moderate temperance to cut off all occasions, whereby the flesh might get the victory. The second is written by Saint Paul, in the seventh Chapter of his first Epistle to the Corinthians, where he teacheth us to use this world, as though we used it not. Whereby he cutteth away not only all ambition, pride, and vain pomp in apparel: but also all inordinate care and affection, which with-draueth us from the contemplation of heavenly things, and consideration of our duty towards God. They that are much occupied in eating for things pertaining to the body, are most commonly negligent and careless in matters concerning the soul. Therefore our Savioour Christ willst us not to take thought what we shall eat, or what we shall drink, or wherewith we shall be clothed, but rather to seek the Kingdom of God, and the righteousness thereof. Whereby we may learn to beware, lest we use those things to our hinderance, which God hath ordained for our comfort and furtherance, towards his Kingdom. The third is, that we take in good part our estate and condition, and content our selves with that which God sendeth, whether it be much or little. He that is ashamed of base and simple attire, will be proud of gorgeous apparel, if he may get it. We must learn therefore of the Apostle S. Paul both to use plenty, and also to suffer penury, remembering that we must yield accounts of those things which we have received unto him who abodoreth all excess, pride, ostentation, and vanity, who also utterly condemneth and disalloweth whatsoever droweth us from our duty towards God, or diminisheth our charity towards our Neighbours and Children, whom we ought to love as our selves. The fourth and last Rule is, that every man behold and consider his own vocation, in as much as God hath appointed every man his degree and office, within the limits whereof it behovedeth him to keep himself. Therefore all may not look to wear like apparel, but every one according to his degree, as God hath placed him. Which, if it were observed, many one doubteles would be compelled to wear a russet coat, which now ruffeth in slips and velvets, spending more by the year in sumptuous apparel, than their Fathers received for their whole Revenue of their Lands. But alas, now adais how many we behold occupied wholly in pampering the flesh, taking no care at all, but only how to deck themselves, setting their affection altogether on worldly babery, abusing God's goodness when he sendeth plenty, to satisfie their wanton lusts, having no regard to the degree wherein God hath placed them. The Israelites were contented with such apparel as God gave them; although it were bate and simple. And God blessed them, that their shoes and clothes lasted them forty years, yea, and those clothes which their fathers had worn, their children were contented to use afterwards. But we are never contented, and therefore we prosper not, so that most commonly be that ruffishly in his rables, in his fine furred gown, copied sippers, trim buskins, and warm mittons, is more ready to chill for cold, than the poor labouring man, which can abide in the field all the day long, when the North-wind blows, with a few beggerly cloths about him. We are both to wear such as our fathers had left us, we think not that sufficient or good enough for us. We must have one gown for the day, another for the night, one long, another short, one for Winter, another for Summer, one thoroughly, another but faced, one for the working-day, another for the holy-day, one of this colour, another of that colour, one of Cloath, another of Silk or Damask. We must have change of apparel, one afaze dinner, and another after, one of the Spanish fashion, another Dutch: and to be brief, never content with sufficient. Our Saviour

Matt. 10. Christ had his Disciples they should not have two Coats: but the most men, far unlike to his Scholars, have their presses to full of apparel, that many know not how many sorts they have. Which thing caused Saint James to pronounce this terrible curse against such wealthy world-James 5. lings, Go to ye rich men, weep and howl on your unheschbled that shall come upon you, riches are corrupt, and your garments are moth-eaten, ye have lived on pleasure on the Earth, and in wantonness, ye have nourished your hearts, as in the day of slaughter. Pshaw, I beseech you, Saint James calleth them miserable, notwithstanding their riches and plenty of apparel, so as much as they pamper their Bodies to their own destruction. What was the rich Glutton the better for Luke 16. his fine fare and costly apparel? Did not he nourish himself to be tormented in Hell fire? Let us learn therefore to content our selves, having good and sufficient, as Saint Paul teacheth, lest desiring to be enriched with abundance, we fall into temptations, snares, and many noyson lurks, which drown men in perdition and destruction. Certainly, such as delight in gorgeous apparel, are commonly puffed up with pride, and filled with divers vanities. So were the Daughters of Zion and people of Jerusalem, whom Isaiah the Prophet threatened, because they walked with stretched-out necks and wandering eyes, mingling as they went, and nicely treading with their feet, that Almighty God would make their heads bald, and discover their secret shame. In that day, saith he, shall the Lord take away the ornament of the sippers, and the cauls, and the round attires, and the sweet balls, and the bracelets, and the attires of the head, and the flaps, and the head-bands, and the tablets, and the ear-rings, the rings, and the muslins, the costly apparel, and the vails, and winups, and the creasing pin, and the glasses, and the fine linen, and the hoods, and the lorns. So that Almighty God would not suffer his benefits to be vainly and wantonly abused, nor on of that people whom he most tenderly loved, and had chosen to himself before all other. No less truly is the vanity that is used among us in these days. For the proud and haughty Romach of the Daughters of England, are so maintained with divers disfigured sorts of costly apparel, that as Terrellian, an ancient Father, saith, there were...
is left no difference in apparel between an honest Paramon and a common Strumpet. Pesa, many men are become to esseminate, that they care not what they spend in dressing themselves, ever defacing new types, and inventing new fashions. Therefore a certain man that would picture every Country-man in his accustomed Apparel, when he had painted other Nations, he pictured the English man all naked, and gave him clothes under his arm, and bad him make it himself as he thought best, for he changed his fashion so often, that he knew not how to make it. Thus with our phantastical devices, we make our selves laugh into being to other Nations; while one spendeth his Patrimony upon pouces and cuts, another bestoweth more on a dancing shirt, than might justice to buy him honest and comely apparel for his whole body. Some hang their rebuates about their necks, rutting in their ruffs, and many a one Jeopardeth his best joy, to maintain himself in luscious apparel. And every man, nothing considering his estate and condition, seeketh to excel other in costly attire. Whereby it cometh to pacts, that in abundance and plenty of all things, we yet complain of want and penury, while one man spendeth that which might serve a multitude, and no man distributeth of the abundance which he hath received, and all men excessively waste that which should serve to supply the necessities of others. There hath been very good provision made against such abuses, by divers good and wholesome Laws, which if they were practised as they ought to be of all true Subjects, they might in some part serve to diminish this raging and riotous excess in apparel. But alas, there appears amongst us little fear and obedience, either of God, or Man. Therefore must we needs look for God's fearful vengeance from Heaven, to overthrow our presumption and pride, as he overthrew Herod, whom in his Royal Apparell, feasting God, was smitten of an Angel, and eaten up of Worms. By which terrible example, God hath taught us that we are but Worms meat, although we pamper our selves never to much in gorgeous Apparel.

Eccles.ii. Here we may learn that which Jesus the Son of Syrah taught, not to be proud of clothing and apparel, neither to erect our selves in the day of honour, because the works of the Lord are wonderful, and glorious, secret, and unknown, teaching us with humbleness of mind, every one to be mindful of the vocation whereunto God hath called him. Let Christians therefore endeavour themselves to quench the care of pleasing the flesh, let us use the benefits of God in this World, in such wise, that we be not too much occupied in providing for the body. Let us content our selves quietly with that which God lendseth, be it never so little. And if it please him to lend plenty, let us not war proud thereof, but let us use it moderately, as well to our own comfort, as to the relief of such as stand in necessity. Ye that in abundance and plenty of apparel bestow his face from him that is naked, despise his own flesh, as Isaiah the Prophet faith. Let us learn to know our selves, and not to dislike others, let us remember that we stand all before the Majesty of Almighty God, who shall judge us by his holy word, wherein he forbiddest excesses, not only to men, but also to women. So that none can excuse themselves, of what estate or condition soever they be. Let us therefore present our selves before his throne, as Terrilian exhorteth with the ornamente which the Apostle speakeoth of, Ephesians the third Chapter, having our"
excess of Apparel.

saints get about with verity, having the breast-plate of righteousness, and shod with shoes prepared by the Gospel of peace. Let us take unto us simplicity, chastity, and constinency, submitting our necks to the sweet yoke of Christ. Let women be subject to their husbands, and they are sufficiently attired, faith Tertullian. The wife of one Philo an heathen Philosopher, being demanded why she wore no gold; she answered, that she thought her husbands vertues sufficient ornaments. How much more ought Christian women, instructed by the word of God, to content themselves in their husbands; yea, how much more ought every Christian to content himself in his Saviour Christ, thinking himself sufficiently garnished with his heavenly vertues: But it will be here objected and laid of some nice and vain women, that all which we do in painting our faces, in dying our hair, in adorning our bodies, in deckling us with gap apparel, is to please our husbands, to delight his eyes, and to retain his love toward us. D vain excuse, and most shamefull answer, to the reproof of thy husband. What couldst thou more lay to ter out his foolishness, than to charge him to be pleased and delighted with the Devil's attire? Who can paint her face and curl her hair, and change it into an unnatural colour, but therein both work reproach to her maker, who made her? As though she could make her self more comely than God hath appointed the measure of her beauty. What do these women, but go about to reform that which God hath made? not knowing that all things natural are the work of God. and things disguised and unnatural are the works of the Devil. And as though a wife and Christian husband should delight to see his wife in such painted and furnished visages, which common Harlots most dote, to train therewith their lovers to naughtiness; or, as though an honest woman could delight to be like an Harlot for pleasing of her husband. Nay, these be but vain excuses of such as go about to please rather others than their husbands. And such attires be but to provoke her to shew her self abroad, to entice others: a worthy matter. She must keep debate with her husband to maintain such apparel, whereby she is the worse husband, the lessema at home to see to her charge, and to neglect his thrift, by giving great provocation to her household to waste and wantonness, while she must wander abroad to shew her own vanity, and her husbands foolishness. By which her pride, the streith up much envy of others which be as paimtly sighted as she is. She doth but deserve mockes and scorcs, to set out all her commendation in Jewish and Chnistian apparel, and yet brag of her Christianity. She doth but waste supelclusely her husbands flock by such lampu.trousness, and sometimes she is the cause of much bybery, excation, and deceit, in her husbands dealings, that he may be the more gorgeously set out to the sight of the vain world, to please the Devil's eyes, and not Gods, who giveth to every creature sufficient and moderate comeliness, where with we should be contented if we were of God. What other thing doth thou by thine means, but provokest others to tempt thee, to deceive thy soul, by the bait of thy pomp and pride? What else doth thou, but setteth out thy pride, and makest of the unadorned apparel of thy body, the Devil's net, to catch the souls of them which behold thee? O thou woman, not a Chistian, but worse than a Papinian, thou minister of the Devil: Why pamperedst thou that carion flesh so high, which sometimes doth stink and rot on the Earth as thou goest? Howsoever thou persuastest thy self, yet cannot thy beastliness be be hidden or overcome with thy smells and labours, which do rather deform and mis-shape thee, than beautify thee. What meant Solomon to say, of such trimmings of vain women, when he said, A fair woman, without good manners and conditions, is like a Bow which hath a ring of gold upon her front; but that the more thou garnish thyself with these outward baubles, the less thou carest for the inward garnishing of thy mind, and so dost but deform thy self by such array, and not beautify thy self? Fear, hear, what Christ's holy Apostles do write, Let not the outward apparel of women (with S. Peter) be decked with the building of hair, with winding on of gold, or goodly clothing: but let the mind and the conscience, which is not seen with the eyes, be pure and sincere, that is, with he, an acceptable and an excellent thing before God. For to the old ancient holy women attired themselves, and were obedient to their husbands. And S. Paul saith, that women should apparel themselves with shamefacedness and decency, and not with braids of their hair, or gold, or pearl, or precious clothes, but as women should do, which will expel goodliness by their good outward works. If ye will not keep the Apostles' Precepts, at the least let us hear what Pagans, which were ignorant of Christ, have said in this matter: Democritus saith, The ornament of a woman, sandali in seemly speech and apparel. Sophocles saith, that the ornament of such apparel thus, It is not an ornament. Thou fool, but a shame and a manifest shew of thy folly. Socrates saith, that that is a garnishing to a woman, which declareth out her honesty. The Grecians use it in a Proverb, It is not gold or pearl which is a beauty to a woman, but good conditions.

And Aristophanes biddeth that a woman should use less apparel than the man doth both iner. For it is not the goodliness of apparel, nor the excellence of beauty, nor the abundance of gold, that maketh a woman to be esteemed, but modesty and diligence to live honestly in all things. This purposing vanity is now grown to such, that there is no shame taken of it. We read in Histories, that when King Dianysius sent to the women of Lacedemon rich robes, they answered and said, that they shall do us more shame than honour; and therefore refused them. The women in Rome in old time abhorred that gay apparel which King Pyrrhus sent to them, and none were so greedy and vain to accept them. And a Law was openly made of the Senate, and a long time observed, that no woman should wear over half an ounce of gold, nor should wear clothes of divers colours. But peradventure some dainty Dame will say and answer me, That they must do something to show their birth and blood, to show their husbands riches: as though nobility were chiefly seen by these things, which be common to those which are most vile, as though the husband's riches were not better bestowed than in such superfluities, as though when thou wast christened, thou didst not renounce the pride of this world; and the pomp of the flesh. I speak not against convenient apparel for every state agreeable: but against the superfluities, against the vain delight to covet such vanities, to devise new fashions to feed thy pride with, to spend so much upon the raiments, that thou and thy husband are compelled to rob the poor, to maintain thy selfliness. Hear how that noble, holy woman Queen Helen, letth out these nosey ornaments (as they be called) when (in respect of saving God's people) she was compelled to put on such glorious apparel, knowing that it was a fit able to blind the eyes of carnal fools. Thus she prayed, excess of Apparel.

Thou knowest, O Lord, the necessity which I am driven to, to put on this apparel, and that I abhor this sign of pride and of this glory which I bear on my head, and that I despise it as a filthy cloth, and that I wear it not when I am alone. Again, by what means was Holophernes deceived by the glittering array of apparel which that holy woman Judith did put on her; not as delighting in them, nor seeking vain voluptuous pleasure by them, but by the desire of pure necessity by God's dispensation, using this vanity to overcome the vain eyes of God's enemy. Such desire was in those noble women, being very loth and unwilling otherwise to wear such sumptuous apparel, by the which others should be caused to forget themselves. These be commended in Scripture for abhorring such vanities, which by contrariety and great necessity, against their heart's desire, they were compelled to wear them for a time. And shall such women be worthy commendations, which neither be comparable with these women above said in nobility, nor comparable to them in their good zeal to God and his people, whose daily delight and seeking is to flourish in such gay clothes and changes, never satisfied, not regarding who armed them for their apparel, so they may come by it? O vain men, which be subjects to their vines in their inordinate affections! O vain women, to procure so much hurt to themselves, by the which they come the sooner to misery in this world, and in the mean time be abhorred of God, hated and scorned of wise men, and in the end, like to be joined with such, who in hell, too late repenting themselves, shall openly complain with these words: What hath our pride procured us? or what profit hath the pomp of riches bought us? All these things are passed away like a shadow. As for virtue, we did never the less any sign thereof: And thus we are committed in our wickedness. If thou saist that the Custom is to be followed, and the use of the World doth compel thee to such curiosity; then I ask of thee, whose Custom should be followed? Wise men's manners, or fools? If thou sayest the wise; then I say, follow them. But fools custom, who would follow but fools? Consider that the Custom of wise men, ought to be allowed for a custom. Now if any lewd Custom be used, be thou the first to break it, labour to diminish it and lay it down: and more laud before God, and more commendation shall thou win by it, than by all the glory of such superfluity.

Thus ye have heard declared unto you, what God requireth by his Word concerning the moderate use of his Creatures. Let us learn to use them moderately as he hath appointed. Almighty God hath taught us what end and purpose we should use our apparel. Let us therefore learn to use our selves in the use thereof, as becometh Christians, always shaking our selves thankful to our heavenly Father for his great and merciful benefits, who giveth unto us our daily Bread, that is to say, all things necessary for our needy life: unto whom we shall render accounts for all his benefits, at the glorious appearing of our Saviour Christ: To whom with the Father, and the Holy Ghost, be all honor, praise, and glory, for ever and ever, Amen.
There is nothing in all mans life (wellbeloved in our Saviour Christ) so needful to be spoken of, and daily to be called upon, as hearty, zealous, and devout Prayer, the necessity whereof is so great, that without it nothing may be well obtained at GOD'S hand. For as the apostle James saith, Every good and perfect gift cometh from above, and proceedeth from the Father of Lights, who is also said to be rich and liberal towards all them that call upon him, not because he either will not, or cannot give without asking, but because he hath appointed Prayer as an ordinary means between him and us. There is no doubt but he always knoweth what we have need of, and is always most ready to give abundance of those things that we lack.

Yet to the intent we might acknowledge him to be the Giver of all good things, and behave our selves thankfully towards him in that behalf, loving, fearing, and worshiping him sincerely and truly, as we ought to do, he hath profittably and wisely ordained, that in time of necessity we should humble our selves in his sight, pour out the secrets of our heart before him, and crave help at his hands, with continual, earnest, and devout Prayer. By the mouth of his holy Prophet David, be faith on this wise: Call upon me in the days of thy trouble, and I will deliver thee. Likewise in the Gospel by the mouth of his wellbeloved Son Christ, be faith. Ask, and it shall be given you; knock, and it shall be opened; for whosoever asketh receiveth, whosoever knocketh, findeth; and to him that knocketh, it shall be opened. St. Paul also most agreeably consenting herunto, wifieth men to pray everywhere, and to continue therein with thanksgiving. Neither doth the blessed Apostle St. James in this point any thing differ, but earnestly exhorting all men to diligent Prayer, saith, If any man lack wisdom, let him ask it of GOD, which giveth liberally to all men, and reproacheth concerning Prayer.

Proacheth no man. Also in another place, Pray one for another (that ye may be healed: For the righteous man's prayer availeth much, if it be fervent. What other thing are we taught by these and such other places, but only this, that Almighty God, notwithstanding his heavenly wisdom and foreknowledge, will be prayed unto, that he will be called upon, that he will have us no lesss willing on our part to ask, than he on his part is willing to give? Therefore most fond and foolish is the opinion and reason of those men, which therefore think all prayer to be superfluous and vain, because God searcheth the heart and the reins, and knoweth the meaning of the spirit before we ask. For if this needy and carnal reason were sufficient to disdain prayer, then why did our Saviour Christ so often cry to his Disciples, Watch and pray? why did he prescribe them a form of prayer, saying, When ye pray, pray after this sort, Our Father which art in heaven, &c. Why did he pray so often and so earnestly himself before his Passion? Finally, why did the Apostles immediately after his attention gather themselves together into one federal place, and there continue a long time in prayer? Either they must commend Christ and his Apostles of extremest folly, or else they must needs grant that prayer is a thing most necessary for all men, at all times, and in all places. Sure it is, that there is nothing more expedient or needful for mankind in all the world than prayer. Pray always (faith St. Paul) with all manner of prayer and supplication, and watch therefore with all diligence. Also in another place he will use us to pray continually, without any intermission or ceasing, meaning thereby that we ought never to slack or faint in prayer, but to continue therein to our lives end. A number of other such places might here be alleged of like effect, I mean, to declare the great necessity and use of prayer: but what need many proofs in a plain matter? seeing there is no man so ignorant but he knoweth, no man so blind but he seeth, that prayer is a thing most needful in all states and degrees of men. For only by the help hereof, we attain to those heavenly and everlasting Creatures, which God our heavenly Father hath referred and laid up for his children in his dear and well-beloved Son Jesus Christ, with this Covenant and Promise most abundantly confirmed and sealed unto us, that if we ask, we shall receive.

Therefore the great necessity of prayer being sufficiently known, that our minds and hearts may be the more provoked and stirred thereto unto let us briefly consider what wonderful strength and power it hath to bring strange and mighty things to pass. We read in the Book of Exodus, that Josua fighting against the Amalekites, did conquer and overcome them, not so much by virtue of his own strength, as by the earnest and continual prayer of Moses, who, as long as he held up his hands to God so long did Israel prevail, but when he fainted, and let his hands down, then did Amalek and his people prevail: Insomuch that Aaron and Hur, being in the mount with him, were fain to stay up his hands until the going down of the Sun, otherwise had the people of God that day been utterly discomfited, and put to flight. Also we read in another place of Josua himself, how he at the besieging of Gibeon, making his humble petition to Almighty God, caufed the sun and the moon to stay their course, and to stand still in the midst of heaven for the space of a whole day, until such time as the people were sufficiently avenged upon their enemies.

And
And was not Jehosaphat's prayer of great force and strength, when GOD at his request caused his enemies to fall out among themselves, and wilfully to destroy one another? Who can marvel enough at the effect and virtue of Elias prayer: He brings a man subject to affections as we are, to pay the Lord that it might not rain, and there fell no rain upon the Earth for the space of three years and six months. Again, he prayed that it might rain, and there fell great plenty, so that the Earth brought forth her increas most abundantly.

It was too long to tell of Judith, Esther, Susanna, and of divers other godly men and women, how greatly they prevailed in all their doings, by giving their minds earnestly and devoutly to prayer. Let it be sufficient at this time to conclude with the sayings of Augustine and Chrysostom, whereas the one calleth Prayer the Key of Heaven, the other plainly affirment, that there is nothing in all the World more strong than a man that giveth himself to fervent prayer.

Now then, Dear Beloved, seeing Prayer is so needful a thing, and of so great strength before GOD, let us, according as we are taught by the example of Christ and his Apostles, be earnest and diligent in calling on the name of the Lord. Let us never faint, never slack, never give over, but let us daily and hourly, early and late, in season and out of season, be occupied in godly Meditations and Prayers. What if we obtain not our Petitions at the first: yet let us not be discouraged, but let us continually cry and call upon GOD: he will surely hear us at length, if for no other cause yet for very importunities sake. Remember the parable of the unjust Judge, and the poor Widow, how the by her importunate means caused him to do her justice against her adversary, although otherwise he feared neither GOD nor man. Shall not GOD much more avenge his Chief (that is our Saviour Christ) which cry unto him day and night? Thus he taught his Disciples, and in them all other true Christian men, to pray always, and never to faint or think. Remember also the example of the woman of Canaan, how she was rejected of Christ, and called dog, as one most unworthy of any benefit at his hands: yet she gave not over, but followed him still, crying and calling upon him to be good and merciful unto her daughter. And at length by very importunity, she obtained her request. Let us learn by these examples, to be earnest and fervent in Prayer, alighting our selves that whatever we ask of GOD the Father in the Name of his Son Christ, and according to his will, he will undoubtedly grant it. He is truth it self, and as truly he hath promised it, so truly will he perform it. GOD for his great mercies sake, to work in our hearts by his holy Spirit, that we may always make our humble prayers unto him, as we ought to do, and always obtain the thing which we ask, through Jesus Christ our Lord, to whom with the Father, and the Holy Ghost, be all honour and glory. World without end. Amen.
concerning Prayer.

The Second Part of the HOMILY

Concerning PRAYER.

In the First Part of this Sermon, ye heard the great necessity, and also the great force of devout and earnest Prayer declared and proved unto you, both by divers weighty testimonies, and also by sundry good examples of holy Scripture. Now shall ye learn whom you ought to call upon, and to whom you ought always to direct your prayers. We are evidently taught in GOD's holy Testament, that Almighty GOD is the only Fountain and Well-Spring of all goodnes; and that whatsoever we have in this World, we receive it only at his hands: To this effect serveth the place of St. James, Every good and perfect gift, cometh from above, and proceedeth from the Father of Lights. To this effect also serveth the testimony of Paul, in divers places of his Epistles, witnessing that the Spirit of Wisdom, the Spirit of Knowledge and Revelation, yea, every good and heavenly gift, as Faith, Hope, Charity, Grace, and Peace, cometh only and solely of GOD. In consideration whereof, he butteth out into a sudden pullion, and saith, O man, what thing hast thou, which thou hast not received? Therefore, whosoever we need or lack any thing, pertaining either to the body or to the soul, it behoveth us to run only unto GOD, who is the only giver of all good things. Our Saviour Christ in the Gospel, teaching his Disciples how they should pray, sending them to the Father in his Name, saying, Verily, verily, I say unto you, whatsoever ye ask the Father in my Name he will give it unto you. And in another place, when ye pray, pray after this sort: Our Father which art in Heaven, &c. And doth not GOD himself, by the mouth of his Prophet David, will and command us to call upon him? The Apostle with the Grace and Peace to all them that call on the name of the Lord, and of his Son Jesus Christ, as also the Prophet Joel, saying, And it shall come to pass, that whosoever shall call on the Name of the Lord, shall be saved.

Thus then it is plain by the insatiable word of Truth and Life, that in all our necessities we must flee unto GOD, direct our prayers unto him, call upon his holy Name, desire help at his hands, and at none others, whereof if we will yet have a further reason, mark that which follooth. There are certain conditions most requisite to be found in every such a one that must be called upon, which if they be not found in him unto whom we pray, then doth our prayer avail us nothing, but is altogether in vain.

The first is this, that he to whom we make our prayers, be able to help us. The second is, that he will help us. The third is, that he be such a one as may hear our prayers. The fourth is, that he understand better than we our selves what we lack, and how far we have need of help. If these things be to be found in any other besides GOD, then may we lawfully call upon some other besides GOD.

But what man is so gross, but he well understandeth that these things are only proper to him which is omnipotent, and knoweth all things, even the very secrets of the heart: that is to say, only and to GOD alone; whereas if followeth, that we must call neither upon Angel nor upon Saint, but only and solely upon GOD, as St. Paul doth writ: 'How shall men call upon him in whom they have not believed?' So that Invocation or Prayer, may not be made without Faith in him on whom they call; but that we must still believe in him, before we can make our Prayer unto him, whereupon we must only and solely pray unto GOD. For to say that we should believe either in Angel or Saint, or in any other living Creature, were mere horrid blasphemy against GOD and his holy Word; neither ought this Fanatic to enter into the heart of any Christian man, because we are expressly taught in the Word of the Lord only to repose our Faith in the blessed Trinity, in whose Name we are baptized, according to the expresse commandment of our Saviour Jesus Christ, in the last of St. Matthew.

But the truth hereof may the better appear, even to them that be most simple and unlearned, let us consider what Prayer is. St. Augustin calleth it a lifting up of the mind to GOD; that is to say an humble and lowly pouring out of the heart to GOD. Indigous Faith, that it is an affection of the heart, and not a labour of the lips. So that by these places, true Prayer doth consist not so much in the outward sound and voice of words, as in the inward groaning and crying of the heart to GOD.

Now then, is there any Angel, any Virgin, any Patriarch or Prophet among the dead, that can understand, or know the meaning of the heart? The Scripture faith, It is GOD that searcheth the heart and the reins, and that only knoweth the hearts of the children of men. As for the Saints, they have so little knowledge of the secrets of the heart, that many of the ancient Fathers greatly doubt whether they know any thing at all, that is commonly done on Earth. And albeit some think they do, yet St. Augustin, a Doctor of great Authority and also Antiquity, hath this opinion of them; That they know no more what we do on Earth, than we know what they do in Heaven. For proof whereof, he alleged the words of Elyas the Prophet, where it is said, Abraham is ignorant of us, and Israel knoweth us not. His mind therefore is this, not that we should put any Religion in worshipping of them, or praying unto them; but that we should honour them by following their virtuous and godly life. For as he writeth in another place, the Martyrs and Holy men in times past, were wont after their death to be remembered, and named of the Priest at Divine Service: but never to be invoked or called upon. And why so? because the Priest (faith he) is GOD'S Priest, and not theirs: whereby he is bound to call upon GOD, and not upon them.

Thus you see, that the Authority both of the Scripture, and also of Augustin, both not permit, that we should pray unto them. O that all men would studiously read, and search the Scriptures, then should they not be drowned in Ignorance, but should easily perceive the Truth, as well of this point of Doctrine, as of all the rest. For there both the Holy Ghost plainly teach us, that Christ is our only Mediator and Intercessor with GOD, and that we must not seek and run to another. If any man sinneth, faith St. John, we have an Advocate with the Father, concerning Prayer.

Father, Jesus Christ the righteous, and he is the propitiation for our sins. St. Paul also saith, there is one GOD, and one Mediator: between GOD and man, even the man Jesus Christ. Whereunto agreeth the testimony of our Saviour himself, testifying that no man cometh to the Father, but only by him, who is the Way, the Truth, the Life; yea, and the only Door whereby we must enter into the Kingdom of Heaven, because GOD is pleased in no other but in him. For which cause also he crieth, and calleth unto us that we should come unto him, laving, Come unto me all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I shall refresh you. Would Christ have us so necessarily come unto him: and shall we not thankfully leave him, and run unto other? This is even that which GOD so greatly complaineth of by his Prophet Jeremy, saying, By people have committed two great offences, they have forsoaked me the Fountain of the Waters of Life, and have digged to themselves broken pits that can hold no water. Is not that man, think you, unwise that will run for Water to a little Brook, when he may as well go to the head-spring? Even so may his wisdom be justly suspected, that will flee unto Saints in time of necessity, when he may boldly and without fear declare his grief, and direct his prayer unto the Lord himself. If GOD were strange, or dangerous to be talked withal, then might we justly draw back and seek to some other. But the Lord is nigh unto all them that call upon him in Faith and Truth, and the prayer of the humble and meek hath always pleased him. What if we be sinners, shall we not therefore pray unto GOD? or shall we despair to obtain any thing at his hands? Why did Christ then teach us to ask forgiveness of our sins, saying, And forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us; Shall we think that the Saints are more merciful in bearing sinners, than GOD? David faith, that the Lord is full of compassion and mercy, now to anger, and of great kindnels. St. Paul faith, that he is rich in mercy toward all them that call upon him. And he himself by the mouth of his Prophet Ely say faith, For a little while have I forsaken thee, but with great compassion will I gather thee: For a moment in mine anger I have hid my face from thee, but with everlasting mercy I have had compassion upon thee. Therefore the sins of any man ought not to with-hold him from praying unto the Lord his GOD. But if he be truly penitent and steadfast in Faith, let him assure himself that the Lord will be merciful unto him, and hear his prayers. But I dare not (will some man say) trouble GOD at all times with my prayers: We see that in Kings houses and Courts of Princes, men cannot be admitted unless they tell use the help and means of some special Noble-man, to come to the speech of the King, and to obtain the thing that they would have.
To this reason both St. Ambrose and other very well, writing upon the 8th Chapter in the Romans. Therefore (faith he) we use to go unto the King by Officers and Noble-men, because the King is a mortal man, and knoweth not to whom he may commit the Government of the Common-wealth. But to have GOD our friend, from whom nothing is hid, we need not any helper, that should further us with his good word, but only a devout and godly mind. And if it be so, that wee need one to intereat for us, why may we not content our selves with that one Mediator, which is at the right hand of GOD the Father, and there liveth for ever to make intercession for us? As the blood of Christ did

did redeem us on the Cross, and cleanse us from our sins; even so it is now able to save all them that come unto GOD by it. For Christ sitting in Heaven, hath an everlasting Priesthood, and always paryeth to his Father for them that be penitent, obtaining by virtue of his wounds, which are evermore in the sight of GOD, not only perfect remission of our sins, but also all other necessaries that we lack in this World; so that this only Mediator is sufficient in Heaven, and needeth no others to help him. Why then do we pray one for another in this life? some man perchance will here demand: For both we are willed so to do, by the express commandment both of Christ and his Disciples, to declare therein as well the Faith that we bare in Christ towards GOD, as also the mutual charity that we bare one towards another, in that we pity our Brothers case, and make our humble petition to GOD for him. But that we should pray unto Saints, neither have we any commandment in all the Scripture, nor yet example which we may safely follow. So that being done without authority of Gods Word, it lacketh the ground of Faith, and therefore cannot be acceptable before GOD. For whatsoever is not of Faith is sin. And the Apostle that Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the Word of GOD. Yet thou wilt object further, that the Saints in Heaven do pray for us, and that their prayer proceedeth of an earnest charity that they bare towards their brethren on Earth. Wherefore it may be well answered: First, that no man knoweth whether they do pray for us, or no. And if any will go about to judge it by the nature of Charity, concluding, that because they did pray for men on Earth, therefore they do much more the same now in Heaven; then may it be said by the same reason, that as oft as we do weep on Earth, they do also weep in Heaven, because while they lived in this World, it is most certain and sure they did so. And for that place which is written in the Apocalypse, namely that the Angel did offer up the prayers of the Saints upon the golden Altar: it is properly meant, and ought properly to be understood of those Saints that are yet living on Earth, and not of them that are dead; otherwise what need were it that the Angel should offer up their prayers, being now in Heaven before the face of Almighty GOD? But admit the Saints do pray for us, yet do we not know both, whether specially for them which call upon them, or else generally for all men, wishing well to every man alike. If they pray specially for them which call upon them, then it is like they hear our prayers, and also know our hearts desire. Which thing to be false, it is already proved, both by the Scriptures, and also by the authority of Augustine. Let us not therefore put our trust or confidence in the Saints or Martyrs that be dead. Let us not call upon them, nor desire help at their hands; but let us always lift up our hearts to GOD, in the name of his dear Son Christ, for whose sake as GOD hath promiseth to hear our prayer, so he will truly perform it. Invocation is a thing proper unto GOD, which if we attribute unto the Saints, it foundeth to their reproach, neither can they well hear it at our hands. When Paul had heard a certain lame man, which was impotent in his feet at Lystra, the people would have done sacrifice unto him and Barnabas, who rending their cloaths rent it, and exhibited them to worship the true GOD. Likewise in the Revelation, when St. John fell before the Angels feet to worship him, the Angel would not permit him to do it, but commanded him that he should worship.

worship GOD. Which examples declare unto us, that the Saints and Angels in heaven, will not have us to do any honour unto them, that is due and proper unto GOD. He only is our Father, he only is Omnipotent, he only knoweth and understandeth all things, he only can help us at all times, and in all places, he suffereth the Sun to shine upon the good and the bad, he feedeth the young Ravens that cry unto him, he feedeth both man and beast, he will not that any one hair of our head shall perish: but is always ready to help and preserve all them that put their trust in him, according as he hath promised, saying, Before they call, I will answer, and whilst they speak, I will hear. Let us not therefore any thing mistrust his goodness, let us not fear to come before the Throne of his Mercy, let us not seek the aid and help of Saints, but let us come boldly our selves, nothing doubting but GOD for Christ's sake, in whom he is well pleased, will hear us without a Spokesman, and accomplish our desire in all such things as shall be agreeable to his most holy Will. So faith Chrysostom, an ancient Doctor of the Church, and so must we steadfastly believe, not because he faith it, but much more because it is the Doctrine of our Saviour Christ himself, who hath promised that if we pray to the Father in his name, we shall certainly be heard, both to the relief of our necessities, and also to the salvation of our souls, which he hath purchased unto us, not with Gold or Silver, but with his precious Blood, shed once for all upon the Cross.

To him therefore, with the Father and the Holy Ghost, three persons and one GOD, be all honour, praise, and glory, for ever and ever, Amen.

Concerning PRAYER.

E were taught in the other part of this Sermon, unto whom ye ought to direct your prayers in time of need and necessity, that is to wit, not unto Angels or Saints, but unto the eternal and everliving GOD, who because he is merciful, is always ready to hear us when we call upon him in true and perfect faith. And because he is Omnipotent, he can easily perform, and by his power pass the thing that we request to have at his hands. To doubt of his power, it were a plain point of impiety, and clear against the Doctrine of the Holy Ghost, which teacheth that he is all in all. And as touching his good will in this behalf, we have express testimonies in Scripture, how that he will help us and also deliver us, if we call upon him in time of trouble. So that in both these respects, we ought rather to call upon him than upon any other. Neither ought any man therefore to doubt to come boldly unto GOD, because he is a sinner. For the Lord (as the Prophet David faith) is gracious and unmerciful, yea, his mercy and goodness endureth for ever. Be that sent his own Son into the World to save sinners, will he not also hear sinners, if with a true penitent heart, and a Tekhash faith they pray unto him. Pray, if we acknowledge our sins, GOD is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness, as we are plainly taught by the examples of David, Peter, Mary Magdalen, the Publican, and divers other. And whereas we must needs use the help of some Mediator and Intercessor, let us content our selves with him that is the true and only Mediator of the New Testament, namely, the Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. For as Saint John saith, 'If any man sin, we have an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous, who is the propitiation for our sins. And Saint Paul, in his first Epistle to Timothy, saith, 'There is one GOD, and one Mediator between GOD and man, even the man Jesus Christ, who gave Himself a ransom for all men, to be a testimony in due time.'

Now after this Doctrine established, you shall be instructed what kind of things and what kind of persons ye ought to make your prayers unto GOD. It greatly behoved all men, when they pray, to consider well and diligently with themselves what they ask and require at God's hands, lest if they desire that thing which they ought not, their Petitions be made void and of none effect. There came on a time unto Aegipians the King, a certain importunate suiter, who importuned him in a matter curiously, lying, Sir, and it please your Grace, you did once promise me. Truth saith the King, if it be just that thou requirest, then I promised thee, otherwise I did only speak it, and not promise it. The man would not be so answered at the King's hand, but still urging him more and more, said, It becometh a King to perform the least word he hath spoken, yea, if he should only beck with his head. No more faith the King, then it behoved him that came to a King, to speak and ask those things which are right and honest. Thus the King cast off this unreasonable and importunate suiter.

Now if so great consideration be to be had, when we kneel before an earthly King, how much more ought to be had, when we kneel before the heavenly King, who is only delighted with justice and equity, neither will admit any vain, foolish, or unjust Petition: Therefore it shall be good and profitable, thought to consider and determine with ourselves, what things we may lawfully ask of GOD, without fear of reproof, and also what kind of persons we are bound to commend unto GOD in our daily prayers. Two things are chiefly to be respected in every good and godly man's prayer: his own necessity, and the glory of Almighty GOD. Necessity belongeth either outwardly to the body, or else inwardly to the soul. Which part of man because it is much more precious and excellent than the other, therefore we ought set of all, to crave such things as properly belong to the salvation thereof, as the gift of repentance, the gift of faith, the gift of charity and good works, remission and forgiveness of sins, patience in adversity, lowliness in prosperity, and much other like fruits of the Spirit, as hope, love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, meekness, temperance, which things GOD requireth of all them that profess themselves to be his children, laying unto them in this wise. Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven. And in another place also he saith, 'Seek ye the Kingdom of GOD, and his righteousness, and they shall be given unto you.' Wherein be put these in mind, that our chief and greatest care ought to be for those things which pertain to the health and safeguard concerning Prayer.

We have here (as the Apostle saith) no continuing City, but we seek after another in the World to come.

Now when we have sufficiently prayed for things belonging to the Soul, then may we lawfully and with safe conscience pray also for our bodily necessities, as meat, drink, clothing, health of body, deliverance out of prison, good luck in our daily affairs, and so forth, according as we shall have need. Whereas what better example can we desire to have, than of Christ himself, who taught his Disciples, and all other Christian men, first to pray for heavenly things, and afterward for earthly things, as is to be seen in that Prayer which he left unto his Church, commonly called, the Lords Prayer? In the third Book of Kings and third Chapter, it is written, that God appeared by night in a dream unto Solomon the King, saying, Ask of me whatsover thou wilt, and I will give it thee. Solomon made his humble Prayer, and asked a wise and prudent heart, that might judge and understand what was good and what were ill; what were godly, and what were ungodly; what were righteous, and what were unrighteous, in the sight of the Lord. It pleased God wonderfully that he had asked this thing. And God said unto him, Because thou hast required this word, and hast not desired many days and long years upon the Earth, neither abundance of riches and goods, nor yet the life of thine enemies which hate thee, but hast required wisdom to sit in judgment; behold, I have done unto thee according to thy words. I have given thee a wise heart, full of knowledge and understanding, so that there was never any like thee before time, neither shall there be in time come. Moreover, I have given thee this, given thee that which thou hast not required, namely, worldly wealth and riches, principality and honour, so that thou shalt therein also pass all kings that were before thee. Note this example, how Solomon being put to his choice to ask of God whatsoever he would, required not vain and transitory things, but the high and heavenly treasures of wisdom; and that in so doing, he obtained as it were in recompense, both riches and honour. Wherein is given us to understand, that in our daily prayers, we should chiefly and principally ask those things which concern the Kingdom of God, and the salvation of our own souls nothing doubting, but all other things shall according to the promise of Christ be given unto us. But here we must take heed that we forget not that other end whereof mention was made before, namely, the glory of God. Which unless we mind and set before our eyes in making out our prayers, we may not look to be heard, or to receive anything of the Lord.

In the first Chapter of Matthew, the mother of the two sons of Zebedee came unto Jesus, worshiping him, and saying, Grant that my two sons may sit in thy Kingdom, the one on thy right hand, and the other on thy left hand. In this petition she did not respect the glory of God, but plainly declared the ambition and vain-glorious of her mind, for which cause she was also most worthily reproved, and rebuked at the Lords hand. In like manner we read in the Acts, of one Simon Magus a Soeereer, how that he perceiving that through laying on of the Apostles hands the Holy Ghost was given, offered them money, saying, Give me also this power, that on whomsoever I lay my hands, he may receive the Holy Ghost. In making this request, he sought not the honour and glory of God, but his own private gain and lurer, thinking to get great store of money by this feat, and therefore it was justly said unto him, him, Those many perish with thee, because thou thinkest that the gift of God may be obtained with money. By these and such other examples we are taught whenever we make our prayers unto God, chiefly to respect the honour and glory of his Name. Wherefore we have this general precept in the Apostle Paul: Whether ye eat or drink, whatsoever ye do, look that ye do it to the glory of God. Which thing we shall best of all do, if we follow the example of our Saviour Christ, who praying that the bitter cup of death might pass from him, would not therein have his own will fulfilled, but referred the whole matter to the good will and pleasure of his Father.

And hitherto concerning those things, that we may lawfully and boldly ask of God.

Now it followeth, that we declare what kind of persons we are bound in conscience to pray for. St. Paul writing to Timothy, charged him to make prayers and supplications for all men, exempting none, of what degree or state they be. In which place he makes mention by name of kings and rulers which are in authority, putting us thereby to knowledge how greatly it concerneth the peace of the commonwealth, to pray diligently for the higher powers. Neither is it without good cause, that he doth so often in all his Epistles crave the prayers of godly people for himself. For in so doing, he declareth to the world how expedient and needful it is daily to call upon God for the Ministers of his holy Word and Sacraments, that they may have the doors of utterance opened unto them, that they may truly understand the Scriptures, that they may effectually preach the same unto the people, and bring forth the true fruits thereof, to the example of all other.

After this sort did the Congregation continually pray for Peter at Jerusalem, and for Paul among the Gentiles, to the great increase and furtherance of Christ's Gospel. And if we, following their good example herein, will flind to do the like, doubtless it cannot be exprest, how greatly we shall both help our selves, and also please God.

To discourse and run through all degrees of persons it were too long. Therefore ye shall briefly take this one conclusion for all: Whomsoever we are bound by express commandment to love, for those also are we bound in conscience to pray. But we are bound by express commandment to love all men as our selves: therefore we are also bound to pray for all men, even as well as if it were for our selves, notwithstanding we know them to be our utmost and deadly enemies: For, so both our Saviour Christ plainly teach us in his Gospel, saying, Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, pray for them that persecute you, that ye may be the children of your Father which is in heaven. And as he taught his Disciples, so did he practice himself in his life time, praying for his enemies upon the cross, and directing his Father to forgive them, because they knew not what they did. As did also that holy and blessed Martyr Stephen, when he was cruelly stoned to death of the stubborn and stiff-necked Jews: to the example of all them that will truly and unfeignedly follow their Lord and Saviour Christ in this miserable and mortal life.

Now to enquire of that question, whether we ought to pray for them that are departed out of this world, or not. Wherein, if we will cleave only unto the Word of God, then must we needs grant, that we have

no commandment so to do. For the Scripture doth acknowledge but two places after this life. The one proper to the Elect and Blessed of God, the other to the Reprobate and Damned souls, as may be well gathered by the Parable of Lazarus and the Rich man; which place St. Augustine expounding, saith in his note: That which Abraham speaks unto the rich man in Luke's Gospel, namely, that he shall not go into those places where the wicked are tormenteds: what other things doth it signify, but only this, that the just, by reason of God's judgment, which may not be revoked, can have no need of mercy in helping them which after this life are cast into prison, until they pay the uttermost farthing. These words, as they confirm the opinion of helping the dead by prayer, so they do cleanse confuse and take away the pain error of Purgatory, which is grounded upon the saying of the Gospel, Chon shalt not depart thence, until thou hast paid the uttermost farthing. But both St. Augustine say, that those men which are cast into prison after this life, on that condition, may in no wise be holpen though we would help them never so much. And why? Because the sentence of God is unchangeable, and cannot be revoked again. Therefore let us not deceive our selves, thinking that either we may help other, or other may help us by their good and charitable prayers in time to come. For as the Reader faith, When the tree falleth, whether it be toward the South, or toward the North, in what place lookest the tree falleth, there it lieth. meaning thereby, that every mortal man dieth either in the state of salvation or damnation, according as the woods of the Evangelist John do also plainly import. Saying, He that believeth on the Son of God hath eternal life: But be that believeth not on the Son, shall never see life but the wrath of God abideth upon him. Where is then the third place which they call Purgatory? or where shall our prayers help and profit the dead? St. Augustine doth acknowledge two places after this life, heaven and hell: As for the third place, he doth plainly denie that there is any such to be found in all Scripture. Christom likewise is of this mind, that unless we wash away our sins in this present World, we shall find no comfort afterward. And St. Cyprian faith, that after death, Repentance and Sorrow of pain shall be without fruit. Weeping also shall be in vain, and Prayer shall be to no purpose. Therefore he counselfeth all men to make provision for themselves while they may, because when they are once departed out of this life, there is no place for Repentance, nor yet for Satisfaction.

Let these and such other places be sufficient to take away the gross error of Purgatory out of our heads, neither let us dream any more, that the souls of the dead are anything at all holpen by our prayers: But as the Scripture teacheth us, let us think that the soul of man passing out of the body, goeth straitways either to heaven, or else to hell, whereas the one needeth no Prayer, the other is without Redemption. The only Purgatory wherein we must trust to be saved, is the death and blood of Christ, which if we apprehend with a true and solid faith, it purgeth and cleanseth us from all our sins, even as well as if we were now hanging upon the Cross. The blood of Christ, faith St. John. 1 John 1. hath cleansed us from all sin. The blood of Christ, faith St. Paul, hath purged our Conscience from dead works, to serve the living God. Also in another place he faith, We be sanctified and made holy by the offering up of the body of Jesus Christ done once for all. Phil. he addeth more, more, laying, With the one oblation of his blessed Body and precious Blood, he hath made perfect for ever and ever, all them that are sanctified. This then is that Purgatory, wherein all Christian men put their whole trust and confidence, nothing doubting, but if they truly repent of their sins and die in perfect faith, that then they shall forthwith pass from death to life. If this kind of Purgation will not serve them, let them never hope to be released by other means or prayers, though they should continue therein unto the World's end. Be that cannot be labored by faith in Christ's blood, how shall he look to be delivered by man's intercessions? Hath God more respect to man on earth, than he hath to Christ in heaven? If any man sin (saith St. John) we have an Advocate with the Father, even Jesus Christ the righteous, and he is the propitiation for our sins. But we must take heed that we call upon this Advocate while we have space given us in this life, lest when we are once dead, there be no hope of salvation left unto us. For as every man steepeth with his own cause, so every man shall rise again with his own cause. And look in what state he dieth, in the same state he shall be also judged, whether it be to salvation or damnation. Let us not therefore dream either of Purgatory, or of prayer for the souls of them that are dead, but let us earnestly and diligently pray for them which are expressly commanded in holy Scripture, namely to Kings and Rulers, for Ministers of God's holy Word and Sacraments, for the Saints of this World, otherwise called the Faithful; to be short, for all men living, he they never so great enemies to God and his People, as Jews, Turks, Pagans, Infidels, Heretics etc. Then shall we truly fulfill the commandment of God in that behalf, and plainly declare our selves to be the true children of our heavenly Father, who suffereth the Sun to shine upon the good and the bad, and the rain to fall upon the just and the unjust. For which, and all other benefits most abundantly bestowed upon mankind from the beginning, let us give him hearty thanks, and praise his Name for ever and ever.
Amen.
AN HOMILY OF THE PLACE & TIME OF PRAYER.

OD through his Almighty power, wisdom, and goodness created in the beginning Heaven and Earth, the Sun, the Moon, the Stars, the Fowls of the Air, the Beasts of the Earth, the Fishes in the Sea, and all other Creatures, for the use and commodity of man, whom also he had created to his own image and likeness, and given him the use and government over them all, to the end he should use them in such sort as he had given him in charge and commandment, and also that he should declare himself thankful and kind for all those benefits, so liberally and so graciously bestowed upon him, utterly without any deserving on his behalf. And although we ought at all times, and in all places to have in remembrance, and to be thankful to our gracious Lord, according as it is written: I will magnify the Lord at all times. And again, Wherefore the Lord hath ruled, O my soul praise the Lord: Let it appear to be GODS good will and pleasure, that we should at special times, and in special places, gather ourselves together, to the intent his name might be renowned, and his glory let forth in the Congregation and Assembly of his Saints. As concerning the time which Almighty GOD hath appointed his People to assemble together solemnly, it doth appear by the fourth Commandment of GOD: Remember, faith GOD, that thou keep holy the Sabbath Day. Upon the which day, as is plain in the Acts of the Apostles, the people accustomedly collected together, and heard diligently the Law and the Prophets read among them. And albeit this Commandment of GOD doth not bind Christian people so strictly to observe and keep the utter Ceremonies of the Sabbath day, as it was given unto the Jews, as touching the forbearing of work and labour in time of great necessity, and as touching the precise keeping of the seventh day after the manner of the Jews. For we keep now the first day, which is our Sunday, and make that our Sabbath, that is our day of rest, in the honour of our Saviour.
Saviour Christ, who as upon that day rose from death, conquering the same most triumphantly: Yet notwithstanding, whatsoever is found in the Commandment appertaining to the Law of Nature, as a thing most godly, most just, and needful for the setting forth of God's glory, it ought to be retained and kept of all good Christian people. And therefore by this Commandment, we ought to have a time, as one day in the week, wherein we ought to rest, yea, from our lawful and needful works. For like as it appeared by this Commandment, that no man in the six days ought to be not only or idle, but diligently to labour in that state wherein God hath set him: Even so, God hath given express charge to all men, that upon the Sabbath day, which is now our Sunday, they should cease from all weekly and work-day labour, to the intent that like as God himself wrought six days, and rested the seventh and blessed, and sanctified it, and consecrated it to quietness and rest from labour: Even so God's obedient people should use the Sunday holily, and rest from their common and daily business and also give themselves wholly to heavenly exercises of God's true Religion and Service. So that God doth not only command the observance of this holy day, but also by his own example doth stir and provoke us to the diligent keeping of the same. God's natural children will not only become obedient to the commandment of their parents, but also have a diligent eye to their doings, and gladly follow the same. So if we will be the children of our heavenly Father, we must be careful to keep the Christian Sabbath day, which is the Sunday, not only for that it is God's express commandment, but also to declare our selves to be loving children, in following the example of our gracious Lord and Father.

Thus it may plainly appear, that God's will and Commandment was to have a solemn time and standing day in the week, wherein the people should come together and have in remembrance his wonderful benefits, and to render him thanks for them; as appertaining to loving, kind, and obedient people. This example and commandment of God, the godly Christian people began to follow immediately after the Ascension of our Lord Jesus Christ, and began to chose them a standing day of the week to come together in: Yet not the seventh day, which the Jews kept: but the Lord's day, the day of the Lord's Resurrection, the day after the seventh day, which is the first day of the week. Of the which day mention is made by St. Paul on this wise: In the first day of the Sabbath, let every man lay up what he thinketh good: meaning for the poor. By the first day of the Sabbath, is meant our Sunday, which is the first day after the Jewish Sabbath day. And in the Apocalypse it is more plain, whereas St. John saith, I was in the Spirit upon the Lord's day, sitthence which time God's people hath always, in all ages, without any gaining, used to come together upon the Sunday, to celebrate and honour the Lord's blessed name, and carefully to keep that day in holy rest and quietness: both man, woman, child, servant, and stranger. For the transgression and breach of which day, God hath declared himself much to be grieved, as it may appear by him, who for gathering of sticks on the Sabbath day wasstoned to death. But alas, all these notwithstanding, it is lamentable to see the wicked boldness of those that will be counted God's people, who put nothing at all of keeping and hallowing the Sunday. And these people people are of two sorts. The one sort, if they have any business to do, though there be no extreme need, they must not spare for the Sunday, they must ride and journey on the Sunday, they must drive and carry on the Sunday: they must row and ferry on the Sunday, they must buy and sell on the Sunday, they must keep markets and fairs on the Sunday: finally, they use all days alike, clock-days and holydays all are one. The other sort is worse. For although they will not travel nor labor on the Sunday as they do on the Week day, yet they will not rest in holiness, as God commanded; but they rest in ungodliness and wickedness, praying in their pride, pranking and picking, pointing and painting themselves to be gorgeous and gay; they rest in excess and luxury, in gluttony and drunkenness, like Bats and Swine, they rest in brawling and railing, in quarrelling and fighting; they rest in wantonness, in slovenly living, in filthy filthiness, so that it doth very evidently appear that God is more dishonoured, and the Devil better served on the Sunday than upon all the days in the Week besides. And failure you, the beasts which are commanded to rest on the Sunday, honor God better than this kind of people: For they offend not God, they break not their holy days. Therefore, O ye people of God, lay your hands upon your hearts, repent and amend this grievous and dangerous wickedness, stand in awe of the Commandment of God, gladly follow the example of God himself, be not disobedient to the godly Order of Christ's Church, used and kept from the Apostles time until this day. Fear the displeasure and just plagues of Almighty God, if ye be negligent and forbear not labouring and travelling on the Sabbath day or Sunday, and do not rest together to celebrate and magnify God's blessed Name, in quiet holiness and godly reverence.

Now concerning the place where the People of God ought to rest together, and where especially they ought to celebrate and sanctifie the Sabbath day, that is, the Sunday, the day of holy rest. That Place is called God's Temple or the Church, because the Company and Congregation of God's people (which is properly called the Church) doth there assemble themselves on the days appointed for such Assemblies and Settings. And as much as Almighty God hath appointed a special time to be honoured in, it is very meet, good, and also necessary that there should be a Place appointed where these people should meet and rest, to serve their gracious God and merciful Father. Truth is, the holy Patriarchs for a great number of years, had neither Temple nor Church to rest upon. The case was, they were not fixed in any place, but were in a continual peregrination and wandering, that they could not conveniently build any Church. But so soon as God had delivered his people from their Enemies, and set them in some liberty in the wilderness, he set them up a costly and a curious Tabernacle, which was as it were the Palace Church, a place to rest upon of the whole multitude, a place to have his sacrifices made in, and other observances and rites to be used in. Furthermore, after that God according to the truth of his promise, had placed and quietly settled his people in the Land of Canaan, now called Curry, he commanded a great and magnificent Temple to be built by King Solomon, as seldom the like hath been seen: a Temple so decked and adorned, so gorgeously garnished as was meet and expedient for People of that time, which would be allured and hindered with nothing so much, as with such outward godly gay things. This was now the Temple of God, endured also with many gifts and sundry promises. This was the publick Church, and the Mother Church of all fury. Here was God honoured and served. Either was the whole Realm of all the Israelites bound to come at three solemn Feasts in the Year, to serve their Lord God here. But let us proceed further. In the time of Christ and his Apostles, there were yet no Temples nor Churches for Christian men. For why? they were always for the most part in persecution, vexation and trouble, so that there could be no liberty nor licence obtained for that purpose. Yet God delighted much that they should often resort together in a place, and therefore after his Attention they remained together in an Upper Chamber. Sometime they entered into the Temple, sometime into the Synagogues, sometimes they were in prison, sometimes in their houses. Sometimes in the fields. And this continued so long till the Faith of Christ Jesus began to multiply in a great part of the World. Now when divers Realms were established in GODS true Religion, and GOD had given them peace and quietness, then began Kings and Noblemen, and the People also, hindered up with a godly zeal and ferventness, to build up Temples and Churches, whether the People might resort the better to do their duty towards GOD and to keep holy their Sabbath day, the day of rest. And to these Temples have the Christians customably resorted from time to time, as unto meet places where they might with common content praise and magnify GODS name, yielding him thanks for the benefits that he daily poured upon them, both mercifully and abundantly, where they might also hear his holy Word read, expounded, and preached sincerely and receive his holy Sacraments ministrated unto them duly and purely. True it is, that the chief and special Temples of GOD, wherein he hath greatest pleasure, and most delighteth to dwell, are the bodies and minds of true Christians and the chosen people of GOD according to the doctrine of holy Scriptures, declared by S. Paul. Know ye not (saith he) that ye be the Temple of GOD, and that the Spirit of GOD doth dwell in you? The Temple of GOD is holy, which ye are. And again in the same Epistle, Know ye not that your body is the Temple of the holy Ghost dwelling in you, whom ye have given you of GOD, and that ye be not your own? Yet this notwithstanding, GOD doth allow the material Temple made with Lime and Stone (so oft as his People come together into it, to praise his holy Name, to be his House, and the place where he hath promised to be present and where he will hear the prayers of them that call upon him. The which thing both Christ and his Apostles with all the rest of the holy Fathers, do sufficiently declare by this: That albeit they certainly knew that their prayers were heard in what place soever they made them, though it were in Caves, in Woods and in Deserts, yet (so oft as they could conveniently) they resorted to the material Temples, there with the rest of the Congregation, to join in Prayer and true Worship.

Wherefore dearly beloved you that profess your selves to be Christians and glory in that name, disdain not to follow the example of your Master Christ, whose Scholars you lay you be, the more you to be like them, whose Schoolmates you take upon you to be. that is, the Apostles and Disciples of Christ. Lift up pure hands, with clean hearts, in all places of the Place and Time of Prayer.

It is declared unto you (good Christian people) in the former Sermon read unto you, at what Time, and into what Place ye shall come together to praise God. Now intend to set before your eyes, First, how zealous and desirous ye ought to be to come to your Church. Secondly, how sore God is grieved with them that do despise, or little regard to come to the Church upon the holy restful Day. It may well appear by the Scriptures, that many of the godly Israelites, being now in captivity for their sins among the Chaldaeans, full often wished and desired to be again at Jerusalem. And at their return, through God's goodness (though many of the people were negligent) yet the fathers were marvelous desirous to build up the Temple, that God's people might repair thereto, to honour him. And King David, when he was a banished man out of his Country, out of Jerusalem the holy City, from the Sanctuary, from the holy place, and from the Tabernacle of God: What desire, what fervent wish was in him towards that holy place; what wishings and prayers made he to God to be a Dweller in the house of the Lord? One thing (saith he) have I asked of the Lord, and this will I still crave, that I may rest... and have my dwelling in the house of the Lord, so long as I live. Again, how I rejoiced when I heard these words: We shall go into the Lord's house. And in other places of the Psalms he declareth for what intent and purpose he bath such a fervent desire to enter into the Temple and Church of the Lord: I will fall down, O Lord, and worship in the holy Temple of the Lord. Again, I have appeared in thy holy place, that I might behold thy might and power, that I might behold thy glory and majesty. Finally, he saith, I will set forth thy name to my brethren, I will praise thee in the midst of the Congregation. Why then had David such a earnest desire to the house of God? First, because there he would worship and honour God. Secondly, there he would have a contemplation and a sight of the power and glory of God. Thirdly, there he would praise the name of God, with all the Congregation and company of the people. These considerations of this blessed Prophet of God ought to stir up, and kindle in us the like earnest desire to resort to the Church, especially upon the holy restful days, there to do our duties, and to serve God, there to call to remembrance how God even of his mercies, and for the glory of his Name sake, work-eth mightily to preserve us in health, wealth, and godliness, and mightily preventeth us from the assaults and rages of our fierce and cruel enemies, and there joyfully in the number of his faithful people to praise and magnify the Lord's holy Name.

Set before your eyes also that ancient Father Simeon, of whom the Scripture speaketh thus, to his great commendation, and an encour-genement for us to do the like. There was a man at Hierusalem named Simeon, a just man, fearing God: he came by the Spirit of God into the Temple, and was told by the same Spirit, that he should not die before he saw the Anointed of the Lord. In the Temple his promise was fulfilled, in the Temple he saw Christ, and took him in his arms, in the Temple he brake out into the mighty praise of God his Lord.
Anna a Prophetess, an old woman, departed out of the Temple, giving her self to prayer and fasting day and night: and the coming about the same time, was likewise inspired, and confessed, and spake of the Lord to all them that looked for the redemption of Israel. This blessed man, and this blessed woman, were not disappointed of wonderful fruit, commodity and comfort, which God sent them, by their diligent resorting to God's holy Temple. Now ye shall hear how grievously God hath been offended with his people, for that they pulled to little upon his holy Temple, and sotely either despoiled or abused the fame.

What thing may plainly appear by the notable plagues and punishments which God hath laid upon his people; especially in this, that he stirred up their adversaries horribly to beat them, and utterly to destroy his holy Temple with a perpetual desolation. Alas, how many Churches, Countries, and Kingdoms of Christian people, have of late years been plucked down, and overrun, and left waste, with grievous and intolerable tyranny and cruelty of the enemy of our Lord Christ, the great Turk, who hath so universally scourged the Christians, that never the like was heard or read of: Above thirty years past, the great Turk had over-run, conquered and brought into his dominion and subjection, twenty Christian Kingdoms, turning away the people from the faith of Christ, poisoning them with the devilish religion of wicked Mahomet, and either destroying their Churches utterly, or abusing abusing them with their wicked and detestable errors. And now this great Lie, this bitter and sharp scourge of GODS vengeance, is even at hand in this part of Christendom, in Europe, at the borders of Italy, at the borders of Germany, greedily gaping to devour us, to over-run our Country, to destroy our Churches also, unless we repent our sinful life, and reform more diligently to the Church to honour GOD, to learn his blessed will, and to fulfill the same. The Jews in their time provoked unjustly the vengeance of GOD, for that partly they abused his holy Temple with the detestable idolatry of the Beaten, and Superstitious vanities of their own inventions, contrary to GODS commandment, partially they foretold unto it as hypocrites, spotted, imbred, and sordily dealt with all kinds of wickedness and sinful life partly many of them palled little upon the holy Temple, and cared not whether they came thither or no. And have not the Christians of late days, and even in our days also, in like manner provoked the displeasure and indignation of Almighty GOD: partly because they have profaned and defiled their Churches with heathenish and Jewish abusings, with Images and Holy, with numbers of Altars, too Superstitiously and intolerably abused, with grofs abusing and filthy corrupting of the Lords holy Supper, the blessed Sacrament of his Body and Blood, with an infenite number of toys and trifles of their own devices, to make a goody outward show, and to deface the plain, simple, and sincere Religion of Christ Jesus: partly they refer to the Church like hypocrites, full of al iniquity and sinful life, having a bain and dangerous fable and per-turbation, that if they come to the Church, bespinkle them with holy Water, hear a Mass, and be blessed with the Chalice, though they understand not one word of the whole Service, nor feel one motion of repentance in their hearts, all is well, all is sure. Fix upon such mocking and blaspheming of GODS holy Ordinance. Churches were made for another purpose, that is, to repose thither, and to serve GOD truly, there to learn his blessed will, there to call upon his mighty Name, there to use the holy Sacraments, there to train how to be in charity with thy Neighbour, there to have thy poor and needy Neighboors in remembrance, from thence to depart better and more godly than thou camest thither. Finally, GODS vengeance hath been and is bat-ly provoked, because much wicked people pass nothing to repect to the Church, either for that they are so sore blinded that they understand nothing of GOD and godliness, and care not with devilish example to offend their Neighbours, or else for that they see the Church altogether scoured of such gay gazing lights, as their grofs phantasie was greatly delighted with, because they see the false Religion abandoned, and the true reformed, which seemeth an unfavorious thing to their unfavorous tale; as may appear by this that a woman laid to her Neighbour: Alas God fay, what shall we now do at Church, since all the Saints are taken away, since all the godly sights we were wont to have, are gone, since we cannot hear the like piping, singing, chanting, and playing upon the Organs that we could before. But (Dearly Beloved) we ought greatly to rejoice and give GOD thanks, that our Churches are delivered out of all those things which displeased GOD to sore, and sordi-ly defiled his holy house and his place of Prayer, for which he hath justly destroyed many Nations, according to the saying of S. Paul, If any man defile the Temple of GOD, GOD will him destroy, and this this ought we greatly to praise GOD, for, that such superstitious and idolatrous manners as were utterly naught, and defaced GOD's glory, are utterly abolished, as they most justly deserved; and yet those things that either GOD was honoured with, or his people enjoyed, are decently retained, and in our Churches comely practised. But now forasmuch as ye perceive it is GOD's determinate pleasure ye should resort unto your Churches upon the day of holy rest, seeing ye bear what displeasure GOD conceives, what plagues he poureth upon his disobedient people, seeing ye understand what blessings of GOD are given, what heavenly commodities come to such people as desirously and zealously use to resort unto their Churches, seeing also ye are now friendly hidden, and jointly called, beware that ye lack not your duty, take heed that you suffer nothing to let you bereft to come to the Church at such times as you are ordinarily appointed and commanded. Our Saviour Christ setteth in a Parable, that a great Supper was prepared. Guests were hidden, many excused themselves and would not come: I tell you (faith Christ) none of them that were called shall take of my Supper. This great Supper is the true Religion of Almighty GOD, wherewith he will be worshipped in the due receiving of his Sacraments, and sincere praying and bearing of his holy Word, and praising the same by godly condescension. This Feast is now prepared in GOD's Banqueting-house the Church, you are therein called and jointly hidden: if you refuse to come, and make your excuses the same will be answered to you that was unto them. Now come therefore (Deepest beloved) without delay, and cheerfully enter into GOD's Feasting-house, and become partakers of the Benes provided and prepared for you. But see that ye come thither with your holy day garment, not like hypocrites, not of a custom and for manners sake, not with lothecomness, as though ye had rather not come than come, if ye were at your liberty. For GOD hated and punisheth such counterfeit hypocrites, as appeareth by Christ's former Parable. By friend (faith GOD) how camest thou in without a wedding garment? And therefore commanded his servants to bind him hand and foot, and to cast him into utter darknesse, where shall be weeping, and wailing, and gnashing of teeth. To the intent that ye may avoid the like danger at GOD's hand, come to the Church on the holy day, and come in your holy day garment, that is to say, come with a cheerful and a godly mind, come to seek GOD's glory, and to be thankful unto him, come to be at one with thy Neighbour, and to enter in friendship and charity with him. Consider that all thy doings think before the face of GOD, if thou be not in charity with thy Neighbour. Come with an heart lifted and cleansed from worldly and carnal affections and desires, make off all vain thoughts which may hinder thee from GOD's true service. The Bird when the will thee, shakest her wings: Shake and prepare thy self to flee higher than all the Birds in the Air, that after thy duty duly done in this earthly Temple and Church, thou mayst flee up, and be receiv'd into the glorious Temple of GOD in heaven, through Christ Jesus our Lord. To whom, with the Father and the Holy Ghost, be all glory and honour. Amen.

AN HOMILY

Wherein is declared,

That Common Prayer and Sacraments ought to be ministred in a Tongue that is understood of the Hearers.

Among the manifold Exercises of GODS People (dear Christians) there is none more necessary for all estates, and at all times, than is publique Prayer, and the Due use of Sacraments. For in the first, we beg at GODS hands all such things, as otherwise we cannot obtain. And in the other, he imbraced us, and offered himself to be imbraced of us. Knowing therefore that these two Exercises are so necessary for us, let us not think it unmeet to consider, first what Prayer is, and what a Sacrament is, and then how many sorts of Prayers there be, and how many Sacraments, so shall we the better understand how to use them aright.

To know what they be, St. Augustine teacheth us in his Book entituled, Of the Spirit and the Soul, thus of Prayer; Prayer is faith, the devotion of the mind, that is to say, the returning to GOD, through a godly and humble affection, which affection is a certain willing and sweet inclining of the mind it self towards GOD. And in the second Book against the Adversary of the Law and the Prophets, he called Sacraments holy signs. And writing to Bonifacius of the Baptism of Infants he saith, If Sacraments had not a certain similitude of those things whereof they be Sacraments, they should be no Sacraments at all. And of this similitude they do for the most part receive the names of the self things they signify. By these words of St. Augustine it appeared, that he alloweth the common description of a Sacrament, which is, that it is a visible sign of an invisible grace; that is to say, that setteth out to the eyes and other outward senses, the inward working of GODS free mercy, and both (as it were) seal in our hearts the promises of GOD. And so was Circumcision a Sacrament, which preacheth unto the outward senses, the inward cutting away of the foreskin of the heart, and sealed and made sure in the hearts of the Circumcised, the promise of GOD touching the promised seed that they looked for.
Of Common-Prayer.

Now let us see how many sorts of Prayer, and how many Sacraments there be. In the Scriptures we read of three sorts of Prayer, whereof two are private, and the third is common. The first is that which St. Paul speaketh of in his Epistle to Timothy, saying, I will that men pray in every place, lifting up pure hands, without wrath or railing, and it is the devout lifting up of the mind to God, without the uttering of the heart's grief or desire by open voice. Of this Prayer we have ex. ample in the first Book of the Kings, in Anna the mother of Samuel, when in the beatitudes of her heart she prayed in the Temple, desiring to be made fruitful. She prayed in her heart (as it were) but there was no voice heard. After this sort must all Christians pray, not once in a week, or twice in a day only; but as St. Paul writeth to the Thessalonians, without ceasing. And as St. James writeth, The continuall prayer of a just man is of much force. The second sort of Prayer is spoken of in the Gospel of Matthew, where it is said, when thou prakest, enter into thy Secret Closet, and when thou hast shut the door to thee, pray unto thy Father in secret, and thy Father which seeth in secret shall reward thee. Of this sort of Prayer there be many examples in the Scriptures, but it shall suffice to rehearse one, which is written in the Acts of the Apostles.

Acts 10. Cornelius, a devout man, a Captain of the Italian Army, faith to Peter, that being in his house in Prayer at the ninth hour, there appeared to him one in a white garment, &c. This man prayed unto God in secret, and was rewarded openly. These be the two private sorts of Prayer. The one mental, this is to say, the devout lifting up of the mind to God: And the other vocal, that is to say, the secret uttering of the griefs and desires of the heart with words, but yet in a secret closet, or some solitary place. The third sort of Prayer is publick or common. Of this Prayer, speaketh our Saviour Christ, when he saith, If two of you shall agree upon earth upon anything, whatsoever ye shall ask, my Father which is in heaven shall do it for you. For where two or three be gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them. Although God hath promised to hear us when we pray privately, so it be done faithfully and devoutly; for he saith, Call upon me in the day of trouble, and I will hear thee. And Elias being a mortal man, faith, James, prayed, and Beaven was shut three years and six months; and again he prayed, and the Beaven gave rain: Yet by the histories of the Bible it appeareth, that publick and common Prayer is most available before God, and therefore is much to be lamented that it is no better esteemed among us which profess to be but one body in Christ. When the City of Nineveh was threatened to be destroyed within forty days, the Prince and the People joined themselves together in publick Prayer and fasting, and were preferred.

In the Prophet Joel, God commanded a falling to be proclaimed, and the People to be gathered together, young and old, man and woman, and are taught to pray with one voice, spare us, O Lord, spare thy people and let not thine inheritance be brought to confusion. When the Jews should have been destroyed all in one day through the mallet of Haman, at the commandment of Hefer they fasted and prayed, and were preferred. When Hophni and Phinehas, by the advice of Beulah, were preferred, when they fasted and prayed, and were delivered. When Peter was in prison, the Congregation joined themselves together in Prayer, and Peter was

was wonderfully delivered. By these histories it appeareth, that common or publick prayer is of great force to obtain mercy and deliverance at our heavenly Father's hand.

Therefore brethren, I beseech you, even for the tender mercies of God, let us no longer be negligent in this behalf: but as the people willing to receive at GOD's hand such good things as in the Common-Prayer of the Church are craved, let us join our selves together in the place of Common-Prayer, and with one voice and one heart, beg at our heavenly Father all those things which he knoweth to be necessary for us. I forbid you not private Prayer, but I charge you to exercise Common-Prayer as it is worthy. And before all things, be sure that in all these three sorts of Prayer, your minds be devoutly lifted up to GOD, else are your Prayers to no purpose; and this laying shall be verified in you. This people honour me with their lips, but their heart is far from me. Thus much for the three sorts of Prayer, whereas we read in the Scriptures. Now with like, or rather more brevity, you shall hear how many Sacraments there be, that were instituted by our Saviour Christ, and are to be continued, and received of every Christian in due time and order, and for such purpose as our Saviour Christ willed them to be received. And as for the number of them, if they should be considered according to the civil signification of a Sacrament, namely, for the visible signs, expressly commanded in the New Testament, whereunto is annexed the promise of free forgiveness of sin, and of our holiness and joyning in Christ, there be but two; namely, Baptism, and the Supper of the Lord. For although Absolution hath the promise of forgiveness of sin, yet by the express word of the New Testament it hath not this promise annexed and tied to the visible sign, which is imposition of hands. For this visible sign (I mean laying on of hands) is not expressly commanded in the New Testament to be used in Absolution, as the visible signs in Baptism and the Lord's Supper are: and therefore Absolution is no such Sacrament as Baptism and the Communion are. And though the ordering of Ministers hath this visible sign and promise, yet it lacks the promise of remission of sin, as all other Sacraments besides the two above named do. Therefore neither it, nor any other Sacrament else, be such Sacraments as Baptism and the Communion are. But in a general acceptance, the name of a Sacrament may be attributed to any thing whereby an holy thing is signified. In which understanding of the word, the ancient Writers have given this name, not only to the other five, commonly of late years taken and used for supplying the number of the seven Sacraments: but also to divers and sundry other Ceremonies, as to Oil, Washing of Feet, and such like, not meaning thereby to repute them as Sacraments, in the same signification that the two forenamed Sacraments are. And therefore St. Augustine weighing the true signification and the civil meaning of the word, writing to Januarius, and also in the third Book of Christian Doctrine affirmed, that the Sacraments of the Christians, as they are most excellent in signification, so are they most few in number, and in both places make him mention expressly of two, the Sacrament of Baptism, and the Supper of the Lord. And although there are retained by the Order of the Church of England, besides these two, certain other Rites and Ceremonies about the institution of Ministers in the Church, Matrimony, Confirmation of the Children, by examining them of their knowledge. in the Articles of the Faith, and joining thereto the Prayers of the Church for them, and likewise for the Anointing of the Sick: yet no man ought to take these for Sacraments, in such signification and meaning as the Sacrament of Baptism and the Lord's Supper are: but either for godly states of life, necessary in Christ's Church, and therefore worthy to be set forth by publick action and solemnity, by the ministry of the Church, or else judged to be such Ordinances, as may make for the instruction, comfort, and edification of Christ's Church.

Now understanding sufficiently what Prayer is, and what a Sacrament is also; and how many sorts of Prayers there be, and how many Sacraments of our Saviour Christ's institution: let us see whether the Scriptures and examples of the Primitive Church will allow any vocal Prayer, that is when the mouth uttereth the Petitions with voice, or any manner of Sacrament, or other publick or common rites or action, pertaining to the profit and edifying of the unlearned, to be minished in a Tongue unknown, or not understood of the Minister or People: for, and whether any person may privately use any Vocal Prayer, in a Language that he himself understandeth not. To this question we must answer, no. And first of Common Prayer and Administration of Sacraments. Although reason, if it might rule, would soon persuade us to have our Common Prayer and Administration of the Sacraments in a known Tongue, both for that to pray commonly, is for a multitude to ask one and the same thing with one voice, and one consent of mind, and to administer a Sacrament, is by the outward Word and Element, to reach to the receiver the inward and invisible grace of God, and also for that both these Exercises were first instituted, and are still continued, to the end, that the Congregation of Christ might from time to time be put in remembrance of their unity in Christ, and that as members all of one Body, they ought both in prayers and otherwise, to look and desire one another's commodity and not their own without others: Yet shall we not need to see reasons and proofs in this matter, if we have both the plain and manifest words of the Scripture, and also the consent of the most learned and ancient Writers, to commend the prayers of the Congregation in a known Tongue. First, Paul to the Corinthians, faith, let all things be done to edifying. Which cannot be, unless Common Prayers and Administration of Sacraments be in a Tongue known to the People. For where the Prayers Spoken by the Minister, and the words in the Administration of the Sacraments be not understood of them that be present, they cannot thereby be edified. For as when the Trumpet that is blown in the field giveth an uncertain sound, no man is thereby stirred up to prepare himself to the fight. And as when an Instrument of Music maketh no distinct sound, no man can tell what is piped: Even so when Prayers or Administration of Sacraments shall be in a Tongue unknown to the Hearer, which of them shall be thereby stirred up to lift up his mind to God, and to beg with the Minister at God's hand, those things which in the words of his Prayers the Minister asketh? Or who shall in the ministration of the Sacraments understand what invisible grace is to be craved of the Hearer, to be wrought in the inward man? Truly no man at all. For (saith St. Paul,) he that speaketh in a Tongue unknown, shall be to the Hearer an Alien, which in a Christian Congregation is a great absurdity.
and Sacraments.

1 Cor. 10,
and 1.

For we are not strangers one to another, but we are the Citizens of the Saints, and of the household of GOD; yea, and members of one body, and therefore of the spirit of the Lord. Wherefore our service is in the presence of the power of God, that is in the name of us all, we must give diligence to the words spoken by him, and in heart beg at GOD's hand those things that he beggeth in words. And to signify that we do to we say, Amen, at the end of the prayer that he maketh in the name of us all. And this thing can we not do for edification, unless we understand what is spoken. Therefore it is required of necessity, that the Common Prayer be had in a Tongue that the Hearers do understand. If ever it had been tolerable to use strange Tongues in the Congregations, the same might have been in the time of Paul and the other Apostles, when they were miraculously endued with gifts of Tongues. For it might then have persuaded some to imbrace the Gospel, when they had heard men that were Hebrews born and unlearned, speak the Greek, the Latin, and other Languages. But Paul thought it not tolerable then: And shall we use it now, when no man cometh by that knowledge of Tongues, otherwise than by diligent and earnest study? GOD forbid. For we should do that mean by all our Church exercises to frivolous Superstition, and make them altogether unfruitful. Luke writeth that when Peter and John were discharged by the Princes and High Priests of Jerusalem, they came to their fellows, and told them all that the Princes of the Priests and Elders had spoken to them. Which when they heard, they lifted up their voice together to GOD with one accent, and said, Lord, thou art he that madest heaven and earth, the sea and all things that are in them, &c. Thus could they not have done, if they had prayed in a strange Tongue, that they had not understood, and no doubt of it, they did not all speak with equal voices, but some of them spake in the name of them all, and the rest giving diligent ear to his words confuted them unto, and therefore it is said, that they lifted up their voice together. St. Luke faith not. Their voices, as many, but their voice, as one. That one voice therefore was in such Language as they all understood, otherwise they could not have lifted it up with the content of their hearts. For no man can give content of the thing that he knoweth not. As touching the Times before the coming of Christ, there was never man yet that would affirm, that either the people of GOD, or other had their Prayers or Administrations of the Sacraments, or Sacrifices, in a Tongue that they themselves understood not. As for the Times since Christ, till that usurped Power of Rome began to spread it self, and to enforce all the Nations of Europe to have the Romish Language in admiration, it appeared by the consent of the most ancient and learned Writers, that there was no strange or unknown Tongue used in the Congregation of Christians.

Justinus Martyr, who lived about 150 years after Christ, faith thus of the Administration of the Lord's Supper in his time: Upon the Sunday Assembly are made both of them that dwell in Cities and of them that dwell in the Country also. Amongst whom, as much as may be, the writings of the Apostles and Prophets are read. Afterwards when the Reader hath ceased, the chief Minister maketh an exhortation, exhorting them to follow honest things. After this, we rise all together and offer Prayers, which being ended (as we have said) Bread and Wine and Water are brought forth; Then the chief Minister offereth prayers and thanksgiving with all his power, and the people answer. Amen. These words, with their circumstances, being duly considered, do declare plainly that not only the Scriptures were read in a known Tongue; but also that Prayer was made in the same in the Congregations of Justinian's time. Basilus Magnus, and Johannes Chrysothomus did in their time prescribe publick orders of publick administration, which they call Liturgies, and in them they appointed the people to answer to the prayers of the Minister sometime Amen, sometime Lord have mercy upon us, sometime, and with thy spirit. As we have our hearts lifted up unto the Lord, &c. Which answers, the people could not have been made in due time, if the prayers had not been in a Tongue that they understood. The same Basil writing to the Clergy of Neocæcia, faith thus of his usage in Common-prayer, appointing one to begin the song, the rest follow; and to with divers songs and prayers, passing over the night, at the breaking of the day altogether (even as it were with one mouth and one heart) they sing unto the Lord a song of Confession, every man framing unto himself meet words of repentance. In another place he faith. If the Sea be fair, how is not the assembly of the Congregation much more fair in which a joined sound of men, women, and children, (as it were of the waves beating on the shore) is sent forth in our prayers unto our God: Mark his words. A joined sound (faith be) of men, women, and children. Which cannot be, unless they all understand the tongue wherein the prayer is said. And Chrysostom upon the words of Paul faith, so soon as the people hear these words, world without end, they all do forthwith answer, Amen. This could they not do, unless they understood the word spoken by the Priest. Dionysius faith, that hymns were said of the whole multitude of people in the Administration of the Communion. Cyprian faith, The Priest both prepare the minds of the Brethren, with a Preface before the Prayer, saying, Lift up your hearts: That while the people both answer, We have our hearts lifted up to the Lord, they be admonished that they ought to think on none other thing than the Lord. St. Ambrose writing upon the words of St. Paul faith, This is it, that be faith because he which speaketh in an unknown Tongue, speaketh to God, for he knoweth all things; but men know not and therefore there is no profit of this thing. And again upon these words: If thou bless, or give thanks with the Spirit, how shall he that occupieth the room of the unlearned, say Amen, at thy giving of thanks, seeing he understandeth not what thou sayest? This is (faith Ambrose) if thou speak the praise of God in a Tongue unknown to the hearers. For the unlearned hearing that which he understandeth not, knoweth not the end of the prayer, and answereth not Amen: which word is as much to say, as truth, that the blessing or thanksgiving may be confirmed. For the confirmation of the Prayer is fulfilled by them that do answer, Amen, that all things spoken might be confirmed in the minds of the hearers, through the testimony of the truth. And after many weighty words, to the same end be faith, The conclusion is this, that nothing should be done in the Church in vain, and that this thing ought chiefly to be laboured for, that the unlearned also might take profit, lest any part of the body should be dark through ignorance. And lest any man should think all this to be meant of Preaching, and not of Prayer, he taketh occasion of these words of St. Paul: (If there be not an Interpreter, let him keep silence in the Church) to say, as followeth: Let him pray.

pray secretly, or speak to GOD, who heareth all things that he doth.
For in the Church must he speak that may profit all persons. St. Hierom writing upon these words of St. Paul, How shall he that supplieth the place of the unlearned, &c. faith, It is the Lay-man whom Paul understandeth here to be in the place of the ignorant man, which hath no Ecclesiastical Office: How shall he answer Amen to the prayer that he understandeth not? And a little after upon the words of St. Paul, For if I should pray in a Tongue, &c. he faith thus: This is Paul's meaning: Every man speak in strange and unknown Tongues, his mind is made unfruitful, not to himself, but to the hearer: For whatsoever is spoken, he knoweth it not. St. Augustine writing upon the 8th Psalm, faith, What this should be, we ought to understand, that we may sing with reason of man and not with chattering of Birds. For Owls, Poppinjays, Rabens, Pies, and other such like Birds, are taught by men to make they know not what: but to sing with understanding, is given by GOD's holy will to the nature of man. Again, the same Augustine De Magist. faith, There needeth no speech when we pray, saying perhaps as the Priests do, for to declare their meaning, not that GOD, but that men may hear them. And so being put in remembrance by contending with the Priest, they may hang upon GOD. Thus are we taught both by the Scripture and ancient Doctors, in the administration of Common-Prayer and Sacraments, no Tongue unknown to the hearers ought to be used. So that for the satisfying of a Christian man's conscience we need to spend no more time in this matter. But yet to stop the mouths of the adversaries, which say themselves much upon general decrees, it shall be good to add to these Testimonies of Scriptures and Doctors, one Constitution made by Justinian the Emperor, who lived five hundred twenty and seven years after Christ, and was Emperor of Rome. The Constitution is this: We command that all Bishops and Priests do celebrate the holy oblation and the Prayers used in holy Baptism, not keeping low, but with a clear or loud voice, which may be heard of the people, that thereby the mind of the hearers may be stirred up with great Devotion, in uttering the Prayers of the Lord GOD, for to the holy Apostle teacheth in his first Epistle to the Corinthians, saying, Truly, if thou only beest to give thanks in spirit, how dost thou that occupieth the place of the unlearned, say Amen at that the giving thanks unto GOD, for be understandeth not what thou faist? Thou verily givest thanks well, but the other is not advised. And again, in the Epistle to the Romans, he faith, With the heart a man believeth unto righteousness, and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation, therefore for these causes it is convenient that among other Prayers, those things also which are spoken in the holy oblation, be uttered and spoken of the most religious Bishops and Priests, unto our Lord Jesus Christ our GOD, with the Father and the holy Ghost, with a loud voice. And let the most religious Priests know this, that if they neglect any of these things, that they shall give an account for them in the dreadful judgment of the great GOD and our Saviour Jesus Christ. Neither will we, when we know it, rest and leave it unregarded.

This Emperor (as Sabellicus writeth) favoured the Bishop of Rome, and yet we see how plain a Decree he maketh, for praying and administering of Sacraments in a known Tongue, that the Devotion of the hearers might be stirred up by knowledge, contrary to the judgment.
ment of them that would have ignorance to make devotion. He maketh it also a matter of Damnation, to do these things in a Tongue that the Hearsers understand not. Let us therefore conclude with GOD and all good mens allent, that no Common-prayer or Sacraments ought to be ministr’d in a Tongue that is not understood of the Hearsers. Now a word or two of private Prayer in an unknown Tongue. We took in hand where we began to speake of this matter, not only to prove that no Common-prayer or Administration of Sacraments, ought to be in a Tongue unknown to the Hearsers: but also, that no person ought to pray privately in that Tongue that be himselfe understandeth not. Which thing shall not be hard to prove, if we forget not what Prayer is. For if Prayer be that Devotion of the mind which enforceth the heart to lift up it selfe to GOD: how should it be said, that that person prayeth, that understandeth not the words that his Tongue Spaketh in Prayer? Pea, how can it be said that he Spaketh? For to Speake, is by voice to utter the thought of the mind. And the voice that a man uttereth in Speaking, is nothing else but the messenger of the mind to bring abroad the knowledge of that which otherwise lyes secret in the heart, and cannot be known according to that which St. Paul writeth, What man (faith he) knoweth the things that appertain to man, having only the spirit of man, which is in man: be therefore he doth not understand the voices that his Tongue doth utter, cannot properly be said to Speake, but rather to counterfeit, as Parrots, and such other Birds use to counterfeit mens voices. No man therefore that uttereth to provoke the wrath of GOD against himself, will be so bold to speak of GOD undoubted, without regard of reverent understanding, in his presence, but he will prepare his heart before he presume to speak unto GOD. And therefore in our Common-prayer the Minister too oftentimes say, Let us pray, meaning thereby to admonish the People that they should prepare their ears to hear what he should crave at GODS hand, and their hearts to content to the same, and their Tongues to say Amen at the end thereof.

On this Scott did the Prophet David prepare his heart, when he said, My heart is ready (O GOD) my heart is ready, I will sing and declare a Psalm. The Jews also, when in the time of Judith they did with all their heart pray GOD to visit his people of Israel had so prepared their hearts before they began to praye. After this Scott had Manasses prepared his heart before he prayed, and said, And now (O Lord) do I bow the knees of my heart, asking of thee the part of thy merciful kindnesse. When the heart is thus prepared, the voice uttered from the heart is harmonious in the ears of GOD: otherwise he regardeth it not to accept it. But whatsoever the person that so babbleth his words without sense in the presence of GOD thevther himself not to regard the Majesty of him that he spakeeth to: be takest him as a contemner of his almighty Majesty, and giveth him his reward among hypocrites, which make an outward show of holiness, but their hearts are full of abominable thoughts, even in the time of their prayers. For it is the heart that the Lord looketh upon, as it is written in the History of Kings. If we therefore will that our prayers be not abominable before GOD, let us so prepare our hearts before we pray, and so understand the things that we ask when we pray, that both our hearts and voices may together sound in the ears of GODS Majesty, and then we shall not fail to receive at his hand the things that we ask, as good men which have

For them which take offence at certain places of the HOLY SCRIPTURE.

The First Part.

The great utility and profit that Christian men and women may take (if they will) by hearing and reading the holy Scriptures (Dearly Beloved) no heart can sufficiently conceive; much less is my tongue able to express. Wherefore Satan our Enemy, seeing the Scriptures to be the very mean and right way to bring the People to the true knowledge of GOD, and that Christian Religion is greatly furthered by diligent hearing and reading of them, he also perceiving what an hindrance and let they be to him and his Kingdom, both what he can to drive the reading of them out of GOD's Church. And for that end he hath always stirred up, in one place or other, cruel Tyrants, sharp Persecutors, and extravagant Enemies unto GOD, and his Infallible Truth, to pull with violence the holy Bibles out of the Peoples hands, and have most spitefully destroyed and consumed the same to Ashes in the Fire; pretending most untruly, that the much hearing and reading of GOD's Word is an occasion of Heresie and carnal Liberty, and the overthrow of all good Order in all well ordered Common-wealths. If to know GOD right be an occasion of evil, then we must needs grant; that the hearing and reading of the holy Scriptures, is the cause of Heresie, carnal Li-Liberty, and the subversion of all good Orders. But the knowledge of GOD and of our selves, is so far from being an occasion of evil, that it is the readiest, yea, the only mean to bide carnal liberty, and to kill all our worldly affections. And the ordinary way to attain this knowledge, is with diligence to hear and read the holy Scriptures. For the whole Scriptures (faith St. Paul) were given by the inspiration of GOD. And shall we Christian men think to learn the knowledge of GOD and of our selves, in any earthly mans work of writing, sooner or better than in the holy Scriptures, written by the inspiration of the holy Ghost? The Scriptures were not brought unto us by the will of man.
of certain places of the Scripture.

man: but holy men of GOD (as it witnesses St. Peter) spake as they were moved by the holy Spirit of GOD. The holy Ghost is the School- master of Truth, which leaberd his Scholars (as our Saviour faith of him) into all Truth. And who is not led and taught by this School- master, cannot but fall into deep error: how godlysober his presence is, what knowledge and learning sober he hath of all other Works and Writings, or how fair a view or face of truth he bath in the elu- mination and judgment of the World. If some man will say, I would have a true pattern and a perfect description of an upright life, approved in the sight of GOD: can we find (think ye) any better or any such again, as Christ Jesus is, and his doctrine: whole virtuous conversation and godly life, the Scripture so lively painted and seteth forth before our eyes, that we beholding that pattern, might shape and frame our lives, as nigh as may be, agreeable to the perfection of the same.

Follow you me (faith St. Paul) as I follow Christ. And St. John in his Epistle faith, Thoso abideth in Christ, must walk even so as he hath walked before him. And where shall we learn the order of Christs life, but in the Scripture? Another would have a medicine to heal all dis- eases and maladies of the mind. Can this be found or gotten other where than out of GODS own Book, his Sacred Scriptures? Christ taught so much when he laid to the obstinate Jews, Search the Scrip- tures for in them ye think to have eternal life. If the Scriptures con- tain in them everlasting life, it must needs follow, that they have also present remedy against all that is an hindrance and let unto eternal life.

If we desire the knowledge of heavenly wisdom, why had we rather learn the name of man than of GOD himself, who (as St. James faith) is the giver of wisdom? Pea, why will we not learn it at Christ's own mouth, who promiseth to be present with his Church till the world end, and doth perform his promises, in that he is not only with us by his grace and tender pity: but also in this, that he speaketh presentlie unto us in the holy Scriptures, to the great and endless comfort of all them that have any feeling of GOD at all in them? Pea, he speaketh now in the Scrip- tures more profitably to us, than he did by the word of mouth to the carnall Jews when he lived with them here upon Earth. For they (I mean the Jews) could neither hear nor see those things which we may now both hear and see, if we will bring with us those ears and eyes that Christ is heard and seen with, that is, diligence to hear and read his holy Scriptures, and true faith to believe his most comfortable promis- es. If one could shew but the print of Christ's foot, a great number I think would fall down and worship it. But to the holy Scriptures, where we may see daily (if we will) I will not say the print of his feet only, but the whole shape and lively image of him, alacr, we give little reverence or none at all.

If any could let us see Christ's coat, a sort of us would make hard shift except we might come nigh to gaze upon it, see, and kiss it too. And yet all the cloaths that ever he did wear, can nothing to truly nor so lively express him unto us, as do the Scriptures. Christ's Images made in Wood, Stone, or Metal, some men for the love they bear to Christ, do garnish and beautifie the same with Pearl, Gold, and pre- cious Stone: And should we not (GOD Brethren) much rather em- brace and reverence GOD's holy Books, the sacred Bible, which do represent Christ unto us more truly than can any Image. The Image can can but express the form or shape of his body, if it can do so much: But the Scripture doth in such sort set forth Christ, that we may see both God and man, we may see him (I say) speaking unto us, healing our infirmities, dying for our sins, rising from death for our justification.
And to be short, we may in the Scriptures so perfectly see whole Christ with the eye of faith, as we, lacking faith, could not with these bodily eyes see him, though he stood now present before us. Let every man, woman, and child, therefore with all their heart thirst and desire God's holy Scriptures, love them, embrace them, have their delight and pleasure in hearing and reading them. So as at length we may be transformed and changed into them. For the holy Scriptures are God's Treasure-house wherein are found all things needful for us to see, to hear, to learn, and to believe, necessary for the attaining of eternal life.
Thus much is spoken, only to give you a taste of some of the commodities which ye may take by hearing and reading the holy Scriptures.
For as I laid in the beginning, no tongue is able to declare and utter all. And although it is more clear than the noon day, that to be ignorant of the Scriptures, is the cause of error, as Christ faith to the Sadducess, ye err, not knowing the Scriptures, and that errour doth hold back, and pluck men away from the knowledge of God. And as St. Jerome faith, Not to know the Scriptures, is to be ignorant of Christ. Yet this notwithstanding, some there be that think it not meet for all sorts of men to read the Scriptures, because they are, as they think, in sundry places stumbling-blocks to the unlearned. First, for that the phrase of the Scripture is sometime so simple, gross, and plain, that it of-fendseth the fine and delicate wits of some Courtiers. Fuevermore, for that the Scripture also reporteth, even of them that have their commandation to be the children of God, that they did divers acts whereof are contrary to the law of nature some repugnant to the Law written, and other some seem to sight manifestly against publick hone-sly. All which things (say they) are unto the simple an occasion of great offence, and cause many to think evil of the Scriptures and to discredt their authority. Some are offended at the hearing and reading of the diversit of the Rites and Ceremonies of the Sacrifices and Oblations of the Law. And some worldly witted men think it great decay to the quiet and prudent governing of their Common-wealths, to give ear to the simple and plain rules and precepts of our Saviour Christ in his Gospel, as being offended that a man should be ready to turn his right ever, to him that strook him on the left; and to him which would take away his coat, to offer also his cloak; with such other sayings of prefi-ction in Christ's meaning. For carnal reason, being always an enemy to God and not perceiving the things of God's Spirit, both abhor such precepts, which yet rightly understood, in nothing no judicial policies, no Christian mens governments. And some there be, which hearing the Scriptures to bid us to live without carelessness, without stydy or foretelling, do desire the simplicities of them. Therefore to remove and put away occasions of offence so much as may be, I will anter orderly to these objections. First I shall rehearse some of those plates that men are offended at; for the simplicities and grossnesses of speech, and will show the meaning of them. In the Book of Deuteronomy it is written, that Almighty God made a Law, if a man died without issue, his brother or nearest kin should marry his Widow, and the
of certain places of the Scripture.

The child that was first born between them, should be called his child that was dead, that the dead man's name might not be put out in Israel: And if the brother or next kinman would not marry the widow, then the before the Magistrates of the City should pull off his shoe and spit in his face, saying, So be it done to that man that will not build his brother's house. Here (Dearly beloved) the pulling off his shoe, and spitting in his face, were ceremonies, to signify unto all the people of that City, that the woman was not in fault that GOD's law in that point was broken, but the whole blame and blame thereof, did now rebound to that man, which openly before the Magistrates refused to marry her. And it was not a reproach to him alone, but to all his posterity also: For they were called ever after, The house of him whose shoe is pulled off. Another place out of the Psalms: I will break (saith David) the horns of the ungodly, and the horns of the righteous shall be exalted. By an horn, in the Scripture, is understood power, might, strength, and sometime rule and government. The Prophet then saying, I will break the horns of the ungodly, meant, that all the power, strength, and might of GOD'S enemies shall not only be weakened and made feeble, but shall at length also be cast down and destroyed, though for a time, for the better trial of his people, GOD suffereth the enemy to prevail and have the upper hand. In the 132. Psalm, it is said, I will make David's horn to flourish, where David's horn signifies his kingdom. Almighty GOD therefore by this manner of speaking, promised to give David victory over all his enemies, and to establish him in his kingdom, spite of all his enemies. And in the thencefore Psalm it is written, Moab is my washpot, and over Edom will I call my shoe-strap. In that place the Prophet sheweth how graciously GOD hath dealt with his people the children of Israel, giving them great victories upon their enemies on every side. For the Moabites and Idumeans being two great nations, proud people, stout and mighty, GOD brought them under, and made them servants to the Israelites. Servants I say, to stoop down, to pull off their shoes, and wash their feet. Then Moab is my washpot and over Edom will I call my shoestrate. In that place the Prophet sheweth how graciously GOD hath dealt with his people the children of Israel. Giving them great victories upon their enemies on every side. For the Moabites and the Idumeans, for all their stoutness against us, in the wilderness are now made our footstools, our servants, yea, underlings to pull off our shoes, and wash our feet. Now I say you, what uncomely manner of speech is this, so used in common phrase among the Hebrews? It is a shame that Christian men should be so light headed, to take as Russians do with such manner of speeches, uttered in good grave signification by the holy Ghost. More reasonable it were for vain men to learn to reverence the form of GOD'S Words, than to sport at them to their damnation. Some again are offending to hear that the godly Fathers had many Wives and Concubines, although after the phrase of the Scripture, a Concubine is an honest name, for every Concubine is a lawful Wife, but every wife is not a Concubine. And that ye may the better understand this to be true, ye shall note that it was permitted to the Fathers of the Old Testament to have at one time more wives than one, for what purpose ye shall afterward hear. Of which wives some were free women born, some were bond-women and servants. She that was free born had a prerogative above those that were servants and bond-women. The free born woman was by marriage made the ruler of the house under her husband, and is called the Mother of the household.
The First Part of the Information

the Slaters, or the Dame of the house, after our manner of speaking, and had by her marriage an interest, a right, and an ownership of his goods unto whom she was married. Other servants and bond-women were given by the owners of them, as the manner was then. I will not say always, but for the most part, unto their daughters at that day of their marriage, to be handmaids unto them. After such a lust did Pharaoh King of Egypt give unto Sarah, Abrahams wife, Agar the Egyptian to be her maid, so did Laban give unto his daughter Lea, at the day of her marriage, Zilpha to be her handmaid. And to his other daughter Rachel, he gave another handmaid, named Bilha. And the wives that were the owners of their handmaids, gave them in marriage to their husbands, upon divers occasions. Sarah gave her maid Agar in marriage to Abraham, Lea gave in like manner her maid Zilpha to her husband Jacob. So did Rachel his other wife give him Bilha her maid, laying unto him, so in unto her, and the stall bear upon my knees: which is, as if thee said, Take her to wife, and the children that shall bear, will I take upon my lap, and make of them as they were mine own. These handmaids or bondwomen, although by marriage they were made wives, yet they had not this prerogative to rule in the house, but were still underlings, and in such submission to their Masters, and were never called Mothers of the household, Mistresses, or Dames of the house, but are called sometimes Wives, sometimes Concubines. The plurality of wives was by a special prerogative suffered to the Fathers of the Old Testament, not for satisfying their carnal and fleshly lusts but to have many children, because every one of them hoped, and begged oft-times of God in their prayers, that that blessed seed, which God promised should come into the World to break the Serpents head, might come and be born of his stock and kindred.

Now of those which take occasion of carnality and evil life, by hearing and reading in GODS Book, what GOD had suffered, even in those men whose commendation is praised in the Scripture: As that Noe, whom St. Peter called the eight Preacher of righteousness, was so drunk with wine, that in his sleep he uncovered his own privities. The just man Lot was in like manner drunken, and in his drunkenness lay with his own daughter, contrary to the Law of Nature. Abraham, whose Faith was so great, that for the same he was to be called of GODS own mouth, a Father of many Nations, the Father of all Believers, besides with Sarah his wife, had also carnal company with Agar, Sarahs handmaid. The Patriarch Jacob had to his wives two fathers at one time. The Prophet David and King Solomon, his son, had many wives and concubines, etc. Which things we see plainly to be forbidden us by the Law of GOD, and are now repugnant to all publick honesty. These and such like in GODS Book (Gods People) are not written that we should or may do the like following their examples, or that we ought to think that GOD did allow every of these things in those men: But we ought rather to believe and to judge that Noe in his drunkenness offended GOD highly. Lot lying with his daughters, committed horrible incest. We ought then to learn by them this postable Lesson, that if so godly men as they were, which otherwise felt inwardly GODS holy Spirit inflaming their hearts with the fear and love of GOD, could not by their own strength keep themselves from committing horrible sin, but did so grievously fall, that without
of certain places of the Scripture.

GODS great mercy they had perished everlastingly: How much more ought we then, miserable wretches, which have no feeling of GOD within us at all, continually to fear, not only that we may fall as they did, but also be overcome and drowned in sin, which they were not: And so by considering their fall, take the better occasion to acknowledge our own insufficiency and weakness, and therefore more earnestly to call unto Almighty GOD with hearty prayer incessantly, for his grace to strengthen us, and to defend us from all evil. And though though insufficiency we chance at any time to fall, yet we may by hearty repentance, and true faith speedily rise again, and not sleep and continue in sin, as the wicked doth.

Thus, Good People, should we understand such matters expounded in the divine Scriptures, that this holy Table of GODS Word be not turned to us to be a snare, a trap, and a tumbling stone, to take hurt by the abuse of our understanding: But let us esteem them in a reverent humility, that we may find our necessary food therein, to strengthen us, to comfort us, to instruct us (as GOD of his great mercy hath appointed them) in all necessary works, so that we may be perfect before him in the whole course of our life: Which be grant, who hath redeemed us our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, to whom with the Father, and the holy Ghost, be all honour and glory for evermore, Amen.

The Second Part of the Information

For them which take offence at certain places of the Holy Scripture.

I have heard (Good People) in the homily last read unto you, the great commodity of holy Scriptures, ye have heard how ignorant men, void of goodly understanding, seek quarrels to discredit them: Some of their reasons have ye heard answered. Now we will proceed and speak of such politic wise men which be offended, for that Christs precepts should seem to destroy all order in governance, as they do allege for example, such as these be. If any man strike thee on the right cheek, turn the other unto him also. If any man will contend to take the coat from thee, let him have cloak and all. Let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doth. If thine eye offend thee, pluck it out. If thy foot offend thee, cut it off. If thine hand offend thee, cut it off. If thine enemy (faith St. Paul) be an hungered, give him meat; if he be thirsty, give him drink: For the sake of doing, thou shalt heap hot burning coals upon his head. These sentences (Good People) unto a natural man seem mere absurdities, contrary to all reason. For a natural man (as St. Paul saith) understandeth not the things that belong to GOD: neither can he so long as old Adam dwelleth in him. Christ therefore meaneth, that he would have his his faithful servants so far from vengeance and resisting wrong, that he would rather have him ready to suffer another wrong, than by resisting to break charity, and to be out of patience. He would have our good deeds so far from all carnal effects, that he would not have our nearest friends know of our well-doing, to win vain glory. And though our friends and kinsfolks be as dear as our right eyes, and our right hands; yet if they would pluck us from GOD, we ought to renounce them, and forsake them.

Thus if ye will be profitable hearers and Readers of the holy Scriptures, ye must first deny yourselves and keep under your carnal lusts, taken by the outward words, and search the inward meaning: reason must give place to GOD's holy Spirit: you must submit your worldly wisdom and judgment, unto His divine wisdom and judgment. Consider that the Scripture, in what strange form soever it be pronounced, is the word of the living GOD. Let that always come to your remembrance, which is so oft repeated of the Prophet Elias. The mouth of the Lord (saith he) hath spoken it, and Almighty and everlasting GOD, who with his own word created heaven and earth, hath decreed it, the Lord of hosts, whose ways are in the seas, whose paths are in the deep waters, that Lord and GOD by whose word all things in heaven and on earth are created, governed, and preserved, hath provided it. The GOD of gods, and Lord of all lords, yea, GOD that is GOD alone, incomprehensible, almighty, and everlasting, he hath spoken it, it is His Word. It cannot therefore be but true, which proceedeth from the GOD of all Truth; it cannot be but wisely and prudently commanded, what almighty GOD hath devised, how balmly lovet, though want of grace, we miserable wretches do imagine and judge of his most holy Word. The Prophet David, describing an happy man, saith, Blessed is the man that hath not walked after the counsel of the ungodly, nor stood in the way of sinners, nor sat in the seat of the scornful. There are three sorts of people, whose company the Prophet would have him to shun and avoid, which shall be an happy man, and partaker of GOD's blessing. First, he may not walk after the counsel of the ungodly. Secondly, he may not stand in the way of sinners. Thirdly, he must not sit in the seat of the scornful. By these three sorts of people, ungodly men, sinners, and scoffers, all impurity is signified, and fully expelled. By the ungodly, he understandeth those which have no regard of Almighty GOD, being void of all faith, whose hearts and minds are so set upon the world, that they study only how to accomplish their worldly projects, their carnal imaginations, their filthy lusts and desires, without any fear of GOD. The second sort he called sinners, not such as do fall through ignorance, or of frailness, for then who should be found free? What man ever lived upon Earth (Christ only excepted) but he hath sinned: the just man felleth seven times, and riseth again. Though the godly do fall, yet they walk not on purposely in sin, they stand not still to continue and tarry in sin, they sit not down like careless men, without all fear of GOD's just punishment for sin; but despising sin, through GOD's great grace and infinite mercy, they rise again, and fight against sin. The Prophet then calleth them sinners, whose hearts are clean turned from GOD, and whose whole conversation of life is nothing but sin, they delight so much in the same, that they choose continually to abide and dwell in

in sin. The third sort he calleth scorners, that is, a sort of men whose hearts are stuffed with malice, that they are not contented to dwell in sin, and to lead their lives in all kind of wickedness: but also they do contemn and scorn in other all godliness, true religion, all honesty and virtue. Of the two first sorts of men, I will not say but they may take repentance, and be converted unto GOD. Of the third sort, I think I may without danger of GOD's judgment, pronounce, that never any yet converted unto GOD by repentance, but continued still in their abominable wickedness, heaping up to themselves damnation, against the day of GOD's inevitable judgment. Examples of such scorners, we read in the Second Book of Chronicles, When the good King Ezechias in the beginning of his reign, had destroyed Idolatry, purged the Temple, and Reformed Religion in his Realm, he sent Messengers into every City, to gather the people unto Jerusalem, to solemnize the Feast of Easter, in such sort as GOD had appointed. The Jews went from City to City, through the Land of Ephraim and Manasseh, even unto Zabulon. And what did the people, think ye? Did they laugh and praise the Name of the Lord which had given them so good a King, so zealous a Prince to abolish Idolatry, and to restore again GOD's true Religion? No, no. The Scripture faith, The people laughed them to scorn, and mocked the Kings Messengers. And in the last Chapter of the same Book it is written, that Almighty GOD, having compassion upon his People, sent his Messengers the Prophets unto them, to call them from their abominable Idolatry and wicked kind of living. But they mocked his Messengers, they despised his words, and misused his Prophets, until the wrath of the Lord arose against his People, and till there was no remedy: For he gave them up into the hands of their enemies, even unto Nabuchodonosor King of Babylon, who spoiled them of their Goods, burnt their City, and led them, their Wives, and their Children, Captives unto Babylon. The wicked people that were in the days of Noe, made but a mock at the Flood of GOD; when Noe told them that GOD would take vengeance upon them for their sins. The Flood therefore came suddenly upon them, and drowned them, with the whole World. Lot Preached to the Sodomites, that except they repented, both they and their City should be destroyed. They thought his sayings impossible to be true, they scorned and mocked his admonition, and reviled him as an old doting Fool. But when GOD by his holy Angels had taken Lot, his wife, and two daughters from among them, he rained down Fire and Brimstone from Heaven, and burnt up those Scorners and Mockers of his holy Word. And what estimation had Christ's doctrine among the Scribes and Pharisees? What reward had he among them? The Gospel reported thus, The Pharisees which were covenants, did scorn him in his doctrine. O then ye see that worldly rich men scorn the doctrine of their salvation. The worldly wise men from the doctrine of Christ, as foolishness to their understanding. These Scorners have ever been, and ever shall be to the Worlds end. For St. Peter Prophesied, that such Scorners should be in the Worlds before the latter day. Take heed therefore (my Brother) take heed, be ye not Scorners of GOD'S most holy Word, provoke him not to pour out his wrath now upon you, as he did then upon those Syphers and Mockers. Be not wilful murderers of your own souls: Turn unto GOD while there is yet time of mercy, ye should shall else repent it in the World to come, when it shall be too late, for there shall be judgment without mercy. This might suffice to admonish us, and cause us henceforth to reverence GODS holy Scriptures, but all men have not faith. This therefore shall not sate us and content all mens minds, but as some are carnal, so they will still continue, and abuse the Scriptures carnally, to their greater damnation. The unlearned and unstable (St. Peter) pervert the holy Scriptures to their own destruction. Jesus Christ (as St. Paul faith) is to the Jews an offence, to the Gentiles foolishness; but to GODS children, as well of the Jews as of the Gentiles, he is the power and wisdom of GOD. The holy man Simeon faith, that he is let forth for the fall and rising again of many in Israel. As Christ Jesus is a fall to the Reprobate, which yet perish through their own default; so is his Word, the whole Book of GOD, a cause of damnation unto them, through their incredulity. And as he is a rising up to none other than those which are GODS children by adoption, so is his Word, the whole Scripture, the power of GOD to salvation to them only that do believe it. Christ himself, the Prophets before him, the Apostles after him, all the true Ministers of GODS holy Word, ye every word in GODS Book, is unto the Reprobate the labour of death unto death.

Christ Jesus, the Prophets, the Apostles, and all the true Ministers of his Word, ye every jot and tittle in the holy Scripture, have been, and shall be for evermore, the favour of life unto eternal life, unto all those whose hearts GOD hath purposed by true Faith. Let us earnestly take heed that we make no selling-flock of the Books of holy Scriptures. The more obscure and dark the fayings be to our understanding, the further let us think our selves to be from GOD, and his holy Spirit, who was the Author of them. Let us with more reverence endeavour our selves to search out the wisdom hidden in the outward bark of the Scripture. If we cannot understand the sense and the reason of the faying, yet let us not be scorers, scorners, and deriders, for that is the uttermost token and sign of a Reprobate, of a plain enemy to GOD and his wisdom. They be not idle Fables to jest at, which GOD doth seriously pronounce, and for serious matters let us esteem them. And though in sundry places of the Scriptures be set out divers Rites and Ceremonies, Oblations and Sacrifices, let us not think strange of them, but refer them to the Times and People for whom they served, although yet to learned men they be not impossible to be considered, but to be expounded as figures and shadows of things and persons, afterward openly revealed in the New Testament. Though the rehearsal of the genealogies and pedigrees of the Fathers be not to much edification of the plain ignorant people, yet is there nothing so impenetrably uttered in all the whole Book of the Bible but may serve to spiritual purpose in some respect, to all such as will belowe their labours to search out the meanings. These may not be condemned, because they serve not to our understanding, nor make to our edification. But let us turn our labour to understand, and to carry away such sentences and stories as be more fit for our capacity and instruction.

And whereas we read in divers Psalms, how David did with to the adversaries of GOD sometimes shame, rebuke, and confusion sometime the decay of their off-spring and issue, sometime that they might perish and come suddenly to destruction, as he did with to the Captains of

of the Philistines. Call forth (faith he) thy lightning, and tear them, shoot out thine arrows and consume them; with such other manner of imprecations: Yet ought we not to be offended at such prayers of David, being a Prophet as he was, singularly beloved of God, and rapt in spirit, with an ardent zeal to God's glory. He spake not of a private hatred, and in a tumult against their persons; but wished spiritually the destruction of such corrupt Erastians, which reigned in all devilitish persons, set against God. He was of like mind as St. Paul was when he did deliver Hymenaeus and Alexander, with the notorious Fornicator, to Satan, to their temporal confusion, that their spirit might be saved against the day of the Lord. And when David did protest in some places that he hated the wicked; yet in other places of his Psalms he professeth, that he hated them with a perfect hate, not with a malicious hate, to the hurt of the soul. Which perfection of spirit, because it cannot be performed in us, so corrupted in affections as we be, we ought not to use in our private causes the like words in form, for that we cannot fulfil the like words in sense. Let us not therefore be offended, but search out therefrom of such words before we be offended, that we may the more reverently judge of such sayings, though strange to our carnal understandings, yet to them that be spiritually minded, judged to be zealously and godly pronounced. God therefore for his mercies sake, vouchsafe to purge our minds through faith in his Son Jesus Christ, and to infill the heavenly drops of his grace into our hard stony hearts, to supple the same, that we be not contentious and divisive of his infallible Word: but that with all humbleness of mind and Christian reverence, we may endeavour our selves to hear, and to read his sacred Scriptures, and inwardly to digest them, as shall be to the comfort of our souls, sanctification of his holy Name; To whom with the Son and the Holy Ghost, three persons, and one living God, be all Laud, Honour, and Praise, for ever and ever. Amen.
Mercifulness towards the Poor and Needy.

Bought the manifold duties that Almighty GOD requireth of his faithful servants the true Christians, by the which he would that both his Name should be glorified, and the certainty of their Election declared, there is none that is either more acceptable unto him, or more profitable for them, than are the Works of Mercy and Pity shed upon the Poor, which be afflicted with any kind of misery. And yet this notwithstanding (such is the foolish slowness of our dull nature, to think which is good and godly) that we are almost in nothing more negligent and less careful than we are therein. It is therefore a very necessary thing, that GOD'S people should awake their sleepy minds, and consider their duty on this behalf. And meet it is, that all true Christians should earnestly seek and learn what GOD by his holy Word doth herein require of them; that first knowing their duty (whereof many by their darkness seem to be very ignorant) they may afterwards diligently endeavour to perform the same. By the which both the godly charitable persons may be encouraged to go forwards and continue in their merciful Deeds of Alms-giving to the Poor, and also such as hitherto have either neglected, or contemned it, may yet now at length (when they shall hear how much it appertaineth to them) advisedly consider it, and virtuously apply themselves thereunto.

And to the intent that every one of you may the better understand that which is taught, and also easier bear away, and so take more fruit of that shall be said, when several matters are severally handled: I mind particularly, and in this order, to speak and treat of these points.

First, I will shew how earnestly Almighty GOD in his holy Word, doth exact the doing of Alms-Deeds of us, and how acceptable they be unto him.

of Alms-Deeds.

Secondly, how profitable it is for us to use them, and what commodity and fruit they will bring unto us.

Thirdly and lastly, I will show out of G O D S Word, that whoever is liberal to the poor, and relievet hem plenteously, shall notwithstanding have sufficient for himself, and evermore be without danger of penury or scarcity.

Concerning the first, which is the acceptation and dignity of the price of Alms-Deeds before G O D: Know this, that to help and succour the poor in their need and misery, pleaseth G O D so much, that as the holy Scripture in sundry places recordeth, nothing can be more thankfully taken or accepted of G O D. For well we read, that Almighty G O D doth account that to be given and to be bestowed upon himself, that is bestowed upon the poor: For so doth the holy Ghost tell us by the wise man, saying, be that hath pity upon the poor, lendeth unto the L o d himself. And Christ in the Gospel also saith, and as a most certain truth, bindeth it with an oath, that the Alms bestowed upon the poor, was bestowed upon him, and shall be reckoned at the last day. For thus be ye liberal to the charitable Alms-givers, when he uttereth as J u d g in the court, to give alms even to every man according to his deserts: Truly I say unto you, whatsoever good and merciful deed ye did upon any of the least of these my brethren, ye did it unto me. In relieving their hunger, ye relieved mine, in quenching their thirst, ye quenched mine, in clothing them, ye clothed me; and when ye harboured them, ye lodged me also, when ye visited them, ye ministered unto me. For as he that hath received a Prince, or Ambassador, and entertaineth them well, both honor the Prince from whom those Ambassadors do come: So be that receiveth the poor and needy, and helpeth them in their affliction and distress, both thereby receive and honour Christ their Master, who as he was poor and needy himself whilst he lived here amongst us, to work the mystery of our salvation, at his departure hence he promised in his stead to send unto us those that were poor, by whose means his absence should be supplied; and therefore that we would do unto him, he must do unto them. And for this cause doth the Almighty G O D say unto Moses, The land wherein you dwell, shall never be without poor men: because he would have continual trial of his people, whether they loved him or no, that in showing themselves obedient unto his will, they might certainly assure themselves of his love and labour towards them, and nothing doubt, but that as his Law and Ordinance (wherein he commanded them that they should open their hand unto their brethren that were poor and needy in the Land) were accepted of them, and willingly performed: So he would on his part lovingly accept them, and truly perform his promises that he had made unto them.

The holy Apostles and Disciples of Christ, who by reason of his daily conversation, law by his deeds, and heard in his doctrine, how much he tended the poor: the godly Fathers also, that were both before and since Christ, indeed without doubt with the holy Ghost, and most certainly certified of G O D S holy Will; they both most earnestly exhort us, and in all their writings almost continually admonish us, that we would remember the poor, and below our charitable Alms upon them. Saint Paul crieth unto us after this sort, Comfort the feeble minded, lift up the weak, and be charitable towards all men. And again, E m a l H a b r. 15.

good to the poor, and to distribute alms gladly, for that thou dost not forget, for with such sacrifices GOD is pleased. Ely the Prophet teacheth on this wise, Deal thy bread to the hungry, and bring the poor wandering home to thy house. When thou seekest the naked, see thou cloath him, and hide not thy face from thy poor neighbour, neither despise thou thine own flesh. And the holy Father Toby giveth this counsel, Give alms (faith be) of thine own goods, and turn never thy face from the poor, eat thy bread with the hungry, and cover the naked with thy clothes. And the learned and godly Doctor Chrysostom giveth this admonition. Let merciful alms be always with us as a garment; that is, as mindful as we will be to put our garments upon us, to cover our nakedness, to defend us from the cold, and to shew our selves comely; so mindfull let us be at all times and seasons, that we give alms to the poor, and shew our selves merciful towards them. But what mean these often admonitions and earnest exhortations of the Prophets, Apostles, Fathers, and holy Doctors? Surely, as they were faithful to GOD and did therefore discharge their duty truly, in telling us what was GOD'S will: so of a singular love to us, they laboured not only to inform us, but also to persuade us that that was of GOD, and to succour the poor and needy is a very acceptable thing, and an high sacrifice to GOD, wherein be greatly delighted, and had a singular pleasure. For so both the Wise men of Syracus teach us, saying, Whoso is merciful and giveth alms, he offereth the right thank-offering, and he addeth thereunto: The right thank-offering, maketh the Altar fat, and a sweet smell it is before the Highest, it is acceptable before GOD, and shall never be forgotten.

And the truth of this doctrine is testified by the example of those holy and charitable Fathers, of whom we read in the Scriptures, that they were given to merciful compassion towards the poor, and charitable relieving of their necessities. Such one was Abraham, in whom GOD had to great pleasure, that he would fain to come into him in form of an Angel, and to be entertained of him at his house. Such was his kindman Lot, whom GOD so pleased for receiving his messengers into his house, which otherwise should have lien in the street, that he saved him with his whole family, from the destruction of Sodom and Gomor- rha. Such were the holy Fathers, Job and Toby with many others, who felt most sensible proofs of GOD'S special love towards them. And as all these by their mercifulnesses and tender compassion which they shewed to the miserable afflicted members of Christ, in the relieving, helping and succouring them with their temporal goods in this life, obtained GOD'S favour, and were dear, acceptable and pleasant in his sight: so now they themselves take pleasure in the fruition of GOD, in the pleasant joys of Heaven, and are also in GOD'S eternal World set before us, as perfect examples ever before our eyes, both how we shall please GOD in this mortal life, and also how we may come to live in joy with them in everlasting pleasure and felicity. For most true is that saying which Augustine hath, that the giving of alms and relieving of the poor, is the way to Heaven. Via Coeli pauper est, The poor man (faith be) is the way to Heaven. They used in times past to set in high-ways sides the picture of Mercury, pointing with his finger which was the right way to the Town. And we use in cross ways to set up a wooden or iron Cross, to admonish the travelling man which way be must turn when he cometh thither, to direct his journey aright. But GOD's Word (as St. Augustine saith) hard set in the way to Heaven the poor man and his house, so that who so will go right thither, and not turn out of the way, must go by the poor. The poor man is that Mercury that shall set us the ready way: and if we walk well to this mark, we shall not wander much out of the right path. The manner of wise worldly men amongst us is, that if they know a man of a meaner estate than themselves to be in favour with the Prince, or any other noble man, whom they either fear or love, such a one they will be glad to benefit and pleasure, that when they have need they may become their spokesman, either to obtain a commodity, or to escape a displeasure. Now surely it ought to be a shame to us, that worldly men for temporal things that last but for a season, should be more wise and provident in procuring them, than we in heavenly. Our Saviour Christ teacheth poor men, that they are dear unto him, and that he loveth them especially: For he calleth them his little ones, by a name of tender love, he faith they be his brethren. And St. James faith, that GOD hath chosen them to be the heirs of his Kingdom. Hath not GOD (faith he) chosen the poor of this World to himself, to make them hereafter the rich heirs of that Kingdom which he hath promised to them that love him? And we know that the prayer which they make for us, shall be acceptable and regarded of GOD, their complaint shall be heard also. Thereo both Jesus the son of Simeon, certainly assured us saying, If the poor complain of thee in the bitterness of his soul, his prayer shall be heard, even he that made him shall hear him. Be courteous therefore unto the poor. We know also, that he who acknowledgeth himself to be their master and patron, and refuseth not to take them for his servants, is both able to pleasure and displeasure us, and that we stand every hour in need of his help. Why should we then be either negligent or unwilling to procure their friendship and favour, by which also we may be assured to get his favour that is both able and willing to do us all pleasures that are for our commodity and wealth: Christ doth declare by this, how much he accepteth our charitable affection toward the poor, in that he promised a reward unto them that give but a cup of cold water in his name to them that have need thereof, and that reward is the Kingdom of Heaven. No doubt is it therefore that GOD regardeth highly, that which he rewardeth so liberally. For he that promiseth a prince remittance for a beggerly benevolence, declareth that he is more delighted with the giving, than with the gift, and that he as much esteemeth the doing of the thing as the fruit and commodity that concerneth of it. Who so therefore hard hitherto neglected to give Alms, let him know that GOD now requireth it of him, and be that hath been liberal to the poor, let him know that his godly doings are accepted, and thankfully taken at GOD's hands, which he will require with double and treble. For to faith the wise man: He which doeth mercy to the poor, both lay his money in bank to the Lord, for a large interest and gain: the gain being chiefly the possession of the life everlasting, through the merits of our Saviour Jesus Christ: To whom with the Father and the Holy Ghost, be all honour and glory for ever. Amen.
The Second Part of the Sermon of Alms-Deeds.

I have heard before (Dear beloved) that to give Alms unto the Poor, and to help them in time of necessity, is so acceptable unto our Saviour Christ, that he counted that to be done to himself, that we do for his sake unto them. Ye have heard also how earnestly both the Apostles, Prophets, Holy Fathers, and Doctors, do exhort us unto the same. And ye see how wellbeloved and dear unto God they were, whom the Scriptures report unto us to have been good Alms-men. Wherefore if either their good examples, or the wholesome counsel of godly Fathers, or the love of Christ, whose especial favour we may be assured by this means to obtain, may move us, or do any thing at all with us: let us provide us that from henceforth we shew unto Godward this thankful service, to be mindful and ready to help them that be poor and in misery.

Now will I this second time that I entreat of Alms-deeds, shew unto you how profitable it is for us to exercise them, and what trust thereby shall arise unto us, if we do them faithfully. Our Saviour Christ in the Gospel teacheth us, that it proveth a man nothing to have in possession all the riches of the whole world, and the wealth of glory thereof, if in the mean season he lose his soul: or do that thing whereby it should become captive unto death, sin, and hell fire. By the which saying, he not only instrieth us, how much the souls health is to be preferred before worldly commodities: but it also serveth to stir up our minds, and to prick us forward to seek diligently, and learn by what means we may preserve and keep our souls ever in safety: that is, how we may recover our health if it be lost or impaired, and how it may be defended and maintained if once we have it. Psa, he teacheth us also thereby to esteem that as a precious medicine, and an inestimable jewel, that hath such strength and virtue in it, that can either procure or preserve so incomparable a treasure. For if we greatly regard that medicine or salve that is able to heal flux and grievous diseases of the body, much more will we esteem that which hath like power over the soul. And because we might be better assured both to know and to have in readiness that so profitable a remedy: he, as a most faithful and loving Teacher, sheweth himself both what it is, and where we may find it, and how we may use and apply it. For when both he and his Disciples were grievously accused of the Pharisees, to have defiled their souls in breaking the constitutions of the Elders, because they went to meat and washed not their hands before, according to the custom of the Jews: Christ answereth their superstitious complaint, teacheth them an especial remedy how to keep clean their souls notwithstanding the breach of such superstitious orders: Give Alms (faith be) and behold all things are clean unto you. He teacheth them, that to be merciful and charitable in helping the Poor, is the the means to keep the soul pure and clean in the sight of GOD. We are taught therefore by this, that merciful alms-dealing, is prestatable to purge the soul from the infection and filth of sins. The same Lellon both the holy Ghost also taught in sundry places of the Scripture, saying, Mercifulness and Alms-giving purgeth from all sins, and delivereth out of death, and suffereth not the soul to come into darknes. A great confidence may they have before the high GOD, that their mercy and compassion to them that are afflicted. The wise Preacher the son of Sirach comforted the same, when he saith, That as water quenches burning fire, even so Mercy and Alms resquisites and reconciled sins. And sure it is, that mercifulness quaelibeth the heat of sin so much, that they shall not take hold upon man to hurt him, or if ye hate by any insinuity or weakness have touched and annoyed with them, straightways shall mercifulness wipe and wash away, as salt and remedies to heal their sores and grievous diseases. And therefore upon that holy Father Cyprian taketh good occasion to exhort earnestly to the merciful works of giving Alms and helping the poor, and there being willing to consider how wholesome and prestatable it is to relieve the needy, and help the afflicted, by the which we may purge our sins, and heal our wounded souls.

But yet some will lay unto me, If Alms-giving, and our charitable works towards the poor, be able to wash away sins, to reconcile us to GOD, to deliver us from the peril of damnation, and make us the sons and heirs of GOD'S Kingdom; then are Christ's merits defaced, and his blood shed in vain, then are we justified by Works and by our deeds may we merit heaven; then do we in vain believe that Christ died for to put away our sins, and that he rose for our justification, as St. Paul teacheth. But ye shall understand (Dearly beloved) that neither those places of the Scripture before alleged, neither the doctrine of the blessed Martyr Cyprian, neither any other godly and learned man, when they, in extolling the dignity, profit, fruit, and effect of贞候ous and liberal alms, do lay that it washeth away sins, and heareth us to the favour of GOD, do mean, that our work and charitable deed, is the original cause of our accession before GOD; or that for the dignity of worthinesse thereof, our sins may be washed away, and we purged and cleansed of all the spots of our iniquity; for that were indeed to debase Christ, and to defraud him of his glory. But they mean this, and this is the understanding of whole and such like sayings, that GOD of his mercy and special favour towards them whom he hath appointed to everlasting salvation, hath so offered his grace especially, and they have so received it fruitfully, that although by reason of their sinful living outwardly, they seemed before to have been the children of Wrath and Perdition, yet not the Spirit of GOD mightily working in them, unto obedience to GOD'S will and Commandments, they declare by their outward deeds and life, in the bearing of mercy and charity (which cannot come but of the Spirit of GOD, and his especial grace) that they are the undoubted children of GOD, appointed to everlasting life. And so, as by their wickedness and ungodly living, they showed themselves according to the judgment of men, which follow the outward appearance, to be Reprobates and Castaways; so now by their obedience unto GOD'S holy Will, and by their mercifulness and tender pity (wherein they shewed themselves to be like unto GOD, who is the Fountain and Spring Spring of all mercy) they declare openly and manifesterly unto the sight of men, that they are the sons of GOD, and effectually the Tree is good, but the Tree must first be good before it can bring forth good fruit: So the good deeds of man are not the cause that makes man good, but he is made good by the Spirit and grace of GOD that effectually worketh in him, and afterward he bringeth forth good fruits. And then as the good fruit both argue the goodness of the Tree, so doth the good and merciful deed of the man, argue and certainly prove the goodness of him that doth it, according to Chryss; sayings: Ye shall know them by their fruits. And if any man will object, that evil and naughty men do sometimes by their deeds appear to be very godly and virtuous: I will answer, so both the Crab and Choak-Pear seem outwardly to have sometime as fair a red, and as mellow a colour as the fruit that is good indeed. But he that will bite and take a taste, shall easily judge between the sour bitternef of the one, and the sweet labouring of the other. And as the true Christian man, in thankfulness of his heart, for the redemption of his soul purchased by Christ's death, heareth kindly by the fruit of his Faith, his obedience to GOD; so to the other, as a Merchant with GOD, doth all for his own gain, thinking to win heaven by the merit of his Works, and so defaceeth and obscureth the price of Christ's blood, who only wrought our purgation. The meaning then of these sayings in the Scriptures and other holy writings: Alms-deeds do wash away our sins, and mercy to the Poor doth blot out our offences, is, that we doing these things according to GOD's Will and our Duty, have our sins indeed washed away, and our offences blotted out: not for the worthiness of them, but by the grace of GOD which worketh all in all, and that for the promise that GOD hath made to them that are obedient unto his commandment; that he which is the truth, might be justified in performing the truth due to his true promise. Alms-deeds do wash away our sins, because GOD doth vouchsafe then to repaire us as clean and pure, when we do them for his sake, and not because they decrease, or merit our purging, or for that they have any such strength and virtue in themselves. I know that some men, too much addicted to the advancing of their works, will not be contented with this answer; and no marvel, for such men can no answer content or suffice. Wherefore leading them to their own fruitful sense, we will rather have regard to the reasonable and godly, who as they most certainly know and persuade themselves, that all goodness, all bounty, all mercy, all benefits, all forgiveness of sins, and whatsoever can be named good and profitable, either for the body or for the soul, do come only of GOD's mercy and mere favour, and not of themselves: So though they do never so many and so excellent good deeds, yet are they never put up with the vain confidence of them. And though they hear and read in GOD's Word, and other where in godly men's works, that Alms-deeds, Mercy, and charitable deeds, doth wash away sin, and blot out iniquity; yet do they not arrogantly and proudly think and trust unto them, or brag themselves of them, as the proud Pharisee did, lest with the Pharisee they should be condemned: but rather with the humble and poor Publician confess themselves sinful wretches, unworthy to look up to heaven, calling and craving for mercy, that with the Publician they may be pronounced of Christ to be justified. The godly do learn

learn that when the Scriptures say, that by good and merciful works, we are reconciled to God's favour; we are taught then to know what Christ by his intercession and mediation obtained for us of his Father, when we be obedient to his Will; yea, they learn in such manner of speaking a comfortable argument of God's singular favour and love, as that attributeth unto us and to our doings, that he be by his Spirit wrought in us, and through his grace procured for us. And yet this notwithstanding, they repent with St. Paul, O wretches that we are; and acknowledging (as Christ teacheth) that when they have all done, they are but unprofitable servants: and with the blessed King David, in respect of the just judgments of God, they do tremble, and say, To whom shall be able to abide it, Lord, if thou wilt give sentence according to our deserts? Thus they humble themselves, and are cast down of God; they count themselves vile, and of God are counted pure and clean: they condemn themselves, and are justified of God: they think themselves unworthy of the Earth, and of God are thought worthy of heaven. Thus by God's Word are they truly taught how to think rightly of merciful dealing of Alms, and of God's special mercy and goodness are made partakers of those fruits that his Word hath promised. Let us then follow their examples, and both we obediently in our lives those works of mercy that we are commanded, and have that right opinion and judgment of them that we are taught; and we shall in like manner, as they, be made partakers, and feel the fruits and rewards that follow such godly living, so shall we know by proof what profit and commodity doth come of giving of Alms and succouring of the Poor.

The Third Part of the Homily of Alms-Deeds.

E have already heard two parts of this Treatise of Alms-Deeds. The first, how pleasant and acceptable before God the doing of them is; the second, how much it begetteth us, and how profitable it is to apply our selves unto them. Now in the third part will I take away that let that hindereth many from doing them. There be many that when they hear how acceptable a thing in the sight of God the giving of Alms is, and how much God extendeth his favour towards them that are merciful, and what fruits and commodities doth come to them by it, they with very gladly with themselves that they also might obtain these benefits, and be counted such of God as whom he would love or do for. But yet these men are with greedy covetousness so pulled back, that they will not bestow one half-penny, or one piece of bread, that they might be thought worthy of God's benefits, and so to come into his favour. For they are evermore fearful and doubting, lest by often giving, although it were but a little at a time, they should confound their goods, and so impoverish themselves, that even themselves at the length should not be able to live, but should be

Driven to beg, and live of other men's alms. And thus they seek excuses to with-hold themselves from the labour of God, and choose with pinching crotchetts, rather to lean unto the Devil, than by charitable merisfulness, either to come unto Christ, or to suffer Christ to come unto them. O that we had some cunning and skilful Physician that were able to purge them of this so pestilential humour, that so lose interest, not their bodies, but their minds, and so by corrupting their souls bringeth their bodies and souls into danger of hell fire. How left there be any such among us (Dear beloved) let us diligently search for such a Physician, which is Jesus Christ, and earnestly labour that of his mercy he will truly instruct us, and give us a present remedy against so perilous a disease. Hearken then, whosoever thou art that fearest lest by giving to the poor thou shouldest bring thyself to beggary. That which thou takest from thy self to bestow upon Christ, can never be consumed and walked away. Wherein thou shalt not believe me, but if thou hast faith, and be a true Christian, believe the Holy Ghost, give credit to the authority of God's word that thus teacheth. For thus saith the Holy Ghost by Solomon, he that giveth unto the poor, shall never want. But suppose that by wronging and laying up still they shall at length be rich, and that by distributing and laying out, although it be for most necessary and godly uses, they shall be brought to poverty. But the Holy Ghost, which knoweth all truth, teacheth us another lesson, contrary to this. He teacheth us that there is a kind of dispensing that shall never diminish the stock, and a kind of saving that shall bring a man to extreme poverty. For where be faith, that the good Alms-man shall never have scarcity, he abideth. But he that turneth away his eyes from such as be in necessity, shall suffer great poverty himself. How far different then is the judgment of man from the judgment of the Holy Ghost? The holy Apostle Paul, a man full of the Holy Ghost, and made privy even of the secret counsel of God, teacheth, that the liberal Alms-giver shall not thereby be impoverished. He that ministreth (faith be) feed unto the fowler, will minister also bread unto you for food, yea, he will multiply your seed, and increase the fruits of your righteousness. He is not content to advertise them that they shall not lack, but he teacheth them also in what sort God will provide for them. Even as he provided seed for the fowler in multiplying it, and giving great increase: so will he multiply their goods and increase them, that there shall be great abundance. And if we should think his sayings be but voids and not truth, we have an example thereof in the third Book of Kings, which both confirm and seal it up as a most certain truth. The poor widow that received the banished Prophet of God, Elias, when as she had but a handful of meal in a vessel, and a little oil in a cruse, whereof she would make a cake for her self and her son, that after they had eaten that, they might die, because of that great famine there was no more food to be gotten; yet when the cage part thereof to Elias, and deumphaved her own hungry belly mercifully to relieve him, she was so blessed of God, that neither the meal nor the oil was consumed all the time while that famine did last, but thereof both the Prophet Elias, he, and her son, were sufficiently nourished and had enough.

O consider this example, ye unbelieving and faithless crotchet persons, who disbelief God's Word and think his power diminished! This poor Woman, in the time of an extreme and long
of Alms-Deeds.

Dearth had but one handful of meal and a little crust of oil; her only son was ready to perish before her face for hunger, and the very self like to pine away; and yet when the poor Prophet came and asked part, she was so mindful of mercifulness that she forgot her own misery; and rather than she would omit the occasion given to give alms, and work a work of righteousness, she was content presently to hazard her own and her sons life. And you who have great plenty of meats and drinks, great store of moth eaten apparel, yea, many of you great heaps of gold and silver, and he that baffleth hath more than sufficient, now in this time, when (thanks be to GOD) no great famine doth oppress you, your children being well clothed and well fed, and no danger of death for famine to be feared, will rather cast doubts and perils of unlikely penury, than you will part with any piece of your superficialities, to help and succour the poor, hungry, and naked Child, that cometh to your doors a begging. This poor and silly Widow never cast doubts in all her misery what wants the her self should have, she never distrust the promise that GOD made to her by the Prophet, but straight away went about to relieve the hungry Prophet of GOD, yea, preferring his necessity before her own. But we, like unbelieving watchfles, before we give one mite, we will cast a thousand doubts of danger, whether that will stand us in any stead, that we give to the Poor, whether we should not have need of it at any other time, and whether here it would not have been more profitably bestowed. So that it is more hard to wrench a strong Nail (as the Proverb saith) out of a Pot, than to win a farthing out of our fingers. There is neither the fear nor the love of GOD before our eyes, we will more esteem a mite, than the either desire GODS kingdom, or fear the Devils dungeon. Hearken therefore, ye mercifuls miserers, what will be the end of this your unmerciful dealing. As certainly as GOD nourished this poor Widow in the time of Famine, and increased her little store, so that she had enough, and felt no penury when other pined away: So certainly shall GOD plague you with poverty in the midst of plenty. Then when other have abundance and be fed at full, you shall utterly waste and consume away your selves, your store shall be destroyed, your goods plucked from you, all your glory and wealth shall perish: and that which when you had you might have enjoyed your self in peace, and might have bestowed upon other most godly, ye shall seek with sorrow and sighs, and no where shall find it. For your unmercifulness towards other, ye shall find no man that will shew mercy towards you. You that have strong hearts towards other, shall find all the Creatures of GOD, to youward as hard as Walls and Iron. Alas, what fury and madness doth posseus our minds, that in a matter of truth and certainty, we will not give credite to the truth, testifying unto that which is most certain. Christ saith that if we will not seek the Kingdom of GOD, and do the works of righteousness thereof, we shall not be left destitute, all other things shall be given to us plentifully. Nay say we, I will at first look that I be able to live my self, and be sure that I have enough for me and mine, and if I have any thing over, I will bestow it to get GODS favour, and the poor shall then have part with me.

See I pray you the pernicious judgment of men, we have more care to nourish the carcals, than we have fear to see our soul perish. And as Cyprian saith, whilst we stand in doubt left our goods fail, in being Sermon de Eleemosyna.
The Third Part of the Sermon, &c.

over liberal, we put it out of doubt, that our life and health faileth, not being liberal at all. While we are careful for diminishing of our store, we are altogether careless to diminish our selves. We love Mammon and lose our souls. We fear God's patrimony should perish from us, but we fear not lest we should perish for it. Thus do we perfectly love that which we should hate, and hate that which we should love; we be negligent where we should be careful, and careful where we need not. Thus vain fear to lack our selves, if we give to the poor, is much like the fear of children and fools, which when they see the bright glimmering of a glass, they do imagine straitway that it is the lightning, and yet the brightness of a glass never was the lightning. Even so, when we imagine that by spending upon the poor, a man may come to poverty, we are cast into a vain fear, for we never heard or knew, that by that means any man came to misery, and was left destitute, and not considered of God. Nay we read to the contrary in the Scripture (as I have before shewed, and as by infinite testimonies and examples may be proved) that whosoever serveth God faithfully and unfeignedly in any vocation, God will not suffer him to decay, much less to perish. The Holy Ghost teacheth us by Solomon, that the Lord will not suffer the soul of the righteous to perish for hunger. And therefore David saith unto all them that are merciful, O fear the Lord ye that are his Saints, for they that fear him lack nothing. The Lions do lack and suffer hunger, but they which seek the Lord shall want no manner of thing that is good. When Elias was in the desert, God fed him by the ministry of a Raven, that evening and morning brought him sufficient victuals. When Daniel was shut up in the Lions den, God prepared meat for him, and sent it thither to him: And there was the laying of David fulfilled, the Lions do lack and suffer hunger, but they which seek the Lord shall want no good thing. For while the Lions, which should have been fed with his flesh, roared for hunger and desire of their prey, whereof they had no power, although it were present before them; he in the mean time was fresh fed from God, that should with his flesh have filled the Lions. So mightily both God work to preserve and maintain those whom he loveth; so careful is he also to feed them who in any state or vocation do unfeignedly serve him. And shall we now think that he will be unmindful of us, if we be obedient to his Word, and according to his will have pity on the poor; if he gave us all wealth before we do any service for it; and will be our lack necessities when we do him true service? Can a man think that he that serveth Christ can be forsaken of Christ, and left without food? Or will Christ deny earthly things unto them whom he promised heavenly things for his true service? It cannot be therefore (Dear Brethren) that by giving of alms, we should at any time want our selves; or that we which relieve other mens need should our selves be oppressed with penury. It is contrary to God's Word, it repugnity with his promise, it is against Christ's property and nature to suffer it, it is the crafty device of the Devil to pervert us it. Wherefore, lack not to give alms freely and tridly notwithstanding, that God's goodness will minister unto us sufficiency and plenty; for long as we shall live in this transitory life, and after our days here shall spent in his service, and the love of our brethren, we shall be crowned with everlasting glory, to reign with Christ, our Saviour in heaven.

To whom with the Father and the Holy Ghost, be all honour and glory for ever. Amen.
HYMn all the Creatures that GOD made in the beginning of the World most excellent and wonderful in their kind, there was none (as the Scripture beareth witness) to be compared almost in any point unto Sam, who as well in body as soul exceeded all other, no less than the Sun in brightness and light exceeded every small and little Star in the Firmament. He was made according to the Image and similitude of GOD. He was in his soul with all kind of heavenly gifts, he had no spot of uncleanliness in him, he was found and perfect in all parts, both outwardly and inwardly. His reason was uncorrupt, his understanding was pure and good, his will was obedient and godly, he was made altogether like unto GOD, in righteousness, and holiness, in wisdom, in truth; to be short, in all kind of perfection.

When he was thus created and made, almighty GOD, in token of his great love towards him, chose out a special place of the Earth for him; namely, Paradise, where he lived in all tranquillity and pleasure, having great abundance of worldly goods, and lacking nothing that he might justly require or desire to have. For as it is said, GOD made him Lord and Ruler over all the Works of his hands that he should have under his feet all Sheep and Oren, all Beasts of the Field, all Fowls of the Air, all Fishes of the Sea, and use them always at his own pleasure according as he should have need. Was not this a mirror of perfection? Was not this a full perfect and blessed estate? Could any thing else be well added hereto, or greater felicity desired in this World? But as the common nature of all men is, in time of prosperity and wealth, to forget not only themselves, but also GOD: Even so did this first man Adam, who having but one commandment at GOD’s hand: namely, that he should not eat the fruit of knowledge of good and ill, did notwithstanding, most unmindfully, or rather most wilfully break it, in forgetting the strict charge of his Saker, and giving ear to the crafty suggestion of that wicked Serpent the Devil. Whereby it came to pass, that as before he was blessed, so now he was accursed; as before he was loved, so now he was abhorred; as before he was most beautiful and precious, so now he was most vile and wretched in the sight of his Lord and Saker: Instead of the Image of GOD, he was now become the Image of the Devil; instead of the Citizen of Heaven, he was become the bond-servant of Hell, having in himself no one part of his former purity and cleanness, but being altogether spotted and defiled; inasmuch that now he seemed to be nothing else but a lump of sin, and therefore by the just judgment of GOD, was condemned to everlasting death. This so great and miserable a plague, if it had only reeked on Adam, who first offended, it had been too much the easier, and might the better have been born. But it fell not only on him, but also on his posterity and children for ever, so that the whole head of Adam’s flesh should sustain the self same fall and punishment, which their forefather by his offence most juilly had deserved. St. Paul in the fifth Chapter to the Romans faith, By the offence of only Adam the fault came upon all men to condemnation, and by one mans disobedience many were made sinners, By which words we are taught, that as in Adam all men universally sinned, so in Adam all men universally received the reward of sin, that is to say, became mortal, and subject unto death, having in themselves nothing but everlasting damnation both of body and soul. They became (as David faith) corrupt and abominable, they went all out of the way, there was none that did good, no not one. So what a miserable and mostful state was this, that the sin of one man should destroy and condemn all men, that nothing in all the world might be looked for, but only pangs of death and pains of Hell; had it been any marvel if mankind had been utterly driven to desperation, being thus fallen from life to death, from salvation to destruction, from Heaven to Hell? But behold the great goodness and tender mercy of GOD in his behalf: albeit mans wickedness and sinful behaviour was such, that it deserved not in any part to be forgiven, yet to the intent he might not be clean destitute of all hope and comfort in time to come, he ordained a new Covenant, and made a sure promise thereof, namely, that he would send a Mediator into the world, which should make intercession, and put himself as a stay between both parties, to pacifie the wrath and indignation conceived against sin, and to deliver man out of the miserable curse and cursed misery, whereinto he was fallen headlong by disobeying the Will and Commandment of the only Lord and Saker. This Covenant and Promise was first made unto Adam himself immediately after his fall, as we read in the third of Genesis, where GOD said to the Serpent on this wise, I will put enmity between thee and the woman, between thy seed and her seed. He shall break thine head, and thou shalt bruise his heel.

Gen. 12.

Afterward the self same Covenant was also more amply and plainly renewed unto Abraham, where GOD promised him, that in his seed all Nations and Families of the Earth should be blessed. Again, it was conti-continued and confirmed unto Isaac in the same form of Words, as it was before unto his father. And to the intent that mankind might not despair, but always live in hope. Almighty GOD never ceased to publish repeat, confirm, and continue the same, by divers and sundry testimonies of his Prophets: who for the better persuasian of the thing, prophesied the time, the place, the manner and circumstance of his birth, the affliction of his life, the kind of his death, the glory of his resurrection, the receiving of his Kingdom, the deliverance of his people, with all other circumstances belonging thereunto. Haggai prophesied that he should be born of a Virgin, and called Emanuel. Micah prophesied that he should be born in Bethlehem a place of Jur. Ezekiel prophesied that he should come of the flock and line of David. Daniel prophesied that all Nations and Languages should serve him. Zachary prophesied that he should come in poverty, riding upon an As. Malachi prophesied that he should send Elias before him, which was John the Baptist. Jeremy prophesied that he should be sold for thirty pieces of Silver, &c.
And all this was done, that the Promise and Covenant of GOD, made unto Abraham and his posterity concerning the redemption of the World, might be credited and fully believed. Now as the Apostle Paul saith, when the fulness of time was come, that is, the perfection and course of years, appointed from the beginning, then GOD according to his former Covenant and Promise, sent a Mediator, otherwise called a Mediator unto the World; not such one as Moses was, not such a one as Joshua, Saul, or David was, but such a one as should deliver mankind from the bitter curse of the Law, and make perfect satisfaction by his death, for the sins of all people, namely, he sent his dear and only Son Jesus Christ, born (as the Apostle saith) of a woman, and made under the Law, that he might redeem them that were in bondage of the Law, and make them the children of GOD by adoption. Was not this a wonderful great love towards us that were his predestined and open enemies, towards us that were by nature the children of wrath, and fire-brands of hell fire? In this (saith St. John) appeared the great love of GOD, that he sent his only begotten Son into the World to save us, when we were his extreme enemies. Herein is love, not that we loved him, but that he loved us, and sent his Son to be a reconciliation for our sins. St. Paul also saith, Christ, when we were yet of no strength, did for us being ungodly. Doubtless a man will scarce die for a righteous man. Peradventure some one dieth for him of whom they have received good. But GOD showeth his love towards us, in that he sent Christ to die for us, when we were yet void of all goodness. This and such other comparisons both the Apostle saith, to amplifier and set forth the tender mercy and great goodness of GOD, declared towards mankind, in sending down a Saviour from Heaven, even Christ the Lord. Which one benefit among all other is so great and wonderful, that neither tongue can well express it, neither heart think it, much less give sufficient thanks to GOD for it. But here is a great contro-versie between us and the Jews, whether the same Jesus which was born of the Virgin Mary, be the true Messiah, and true Saviour of the World, so long promised and prophesied of before. They, as they are, and have been always proud and stiff-necked, would never acknowledge him until this day, but have looked and waited for another to come. They have this fond imagination in their heads, that the Messiah shall

shall come, not as Christ did, like a poor Pilgrim and meek soul riding upon an ass; but like a valiant and mighty King in great royalty and honour. Not as Christ did, with a few fishermen, and men of small estimation in the world; but with a great army of strong men, with a great train of wife and noble men, as Knights, Lords, Earls, Dukes, Ministers, and so forth. Neither do they think that their Selves shall wonderously suffer death, as Christ did; but that they shall stoutly conquer and manfully subdue all his enemies, and finally obtain such a kingdom on Earth, as never was seen from the beginning. While they fain unto themselves after this sort a Selves of their own brain, they deceive themselves, and account Christ as an abject and scorn of the World. Therefore Christ crucified (as St. Paul saith) is unto the Jews a stumbling block, and to the Gentiles foolishness, because they think it an absurd thing, and contrary to all reason, that a redeemer and Saviour of the whole world, should be handled after such a sort as he was, namely mocked, reviled, scourged, condemned, and last of all cruelly hanged. This, I say, seemed in their eyes strange, and most absurd, and therefore neither they would at that time, neither will they as yet, acknowledge Christ to be their Selves and Saviour. But we dearly beloved, that hope and look to be saved, must both sincerely believe, and also boldly confess, that the same Jesus, which was born of the Virgin Mary, was the true Selves of Mediator between God and Man, promised and prophesied of so long before. For as the Apostle writeth, with the heart believe ye righteously, and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation. Again in the same place, Whosoever believeth in him, shall never be ashamed nor confounded. Whereunto agreeeth also the testimony of St. John, written in the fourth chapter of his first general Epistle, on this wise: Whosoever confesseth that Jesus is the Son of God, he dwelleth in God, and God in him.

There is no doubt, but in this point all Christian men are fully and perfectly persuaded. Yet shall it not be a lost labour to instruct and furnish you with a few places concerning this matter, that ye may be able to stop the blasphemous mouths of all them that mock Jewsishly, or rather devilishly, shall at any time go about to teach or maintain the contrary. First, ye have the witness and testimony of the Angel Gabriel, declared as well to Zachary the High-priest, as also to the blessed Virgin. Secondly, ye have the witness and testimony of John the Baptist, pointing unto Christ, and saying, Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sins of the World. Thirdly, ye have the witnesses and testimony of God the Father, who thunders from Heaven and saith, This is my dearly beloved Son, in whom I am pleased, hear him. Fourthly, ye have the witnesses and testimony of the Holy Ghost, which came down from Heaven in manner of a Dove, and lighted upon him in time of his Baptism. To these might be added a great number more, namely, the witness and testimony of the wise men that came to Herod, the witnesses and testimony of Simeon and Anna, the witnesses and testimony of Andrew and Philip, Nathaniel and Peter, Nicodemus and Martha, with divers other: But it were too long to repeat all; and a few places are sufficient in to plain a matter, especially among them that are already persuaded. Therefore if the sly imp of Antichrist, and crafty instruments of the devil, shall attempt or go about to withdraw you from
of the Nativity.

from this true Messiah, and persuade you to look for another that is not yet come: let them not in any case seduce you, but confirm your selves with these and with other testimonies of holy Scripture, which are so sure and certain, that all the Devils in hell shall never be able to withstand them. For as truly as GOD liveth, so truly was Jesus Christ the true Messiah and Saviour of the World, even the same Jesus which as this day was born of the Virgin Mary, without all help of man, only by the power and operation of the Holy Ghost.

Concerning whose nature and substance, because divers and sundry heresies are rife in these our days, through the motion and suggestion of Satan: therefore it shall be needful and profitable for your instruction, to speak a word or two also of this part. We are evidently taught in the Scripture, that our Lord and Saviour Christ consists of two several natures, of his manhood, being thereby perfect man, and of his Godhead, being thereby perfect GOD. It is written, The Word, that is to say, the second Person in Trinity, became flesh. GOD sending his own Son in the similitude of sinful flesh, fulfilled those things which the Law could not. Christ being in form of GOD, took on him the form of a servant, and was made like unto man, being found in shape as a man. GOD was made in flesh, justified in spirit, skilled in angels, preached to the Gentiles, believed on in the World, and received up in glory. Also in another place: There is one GOD, and one Mediator between GOD and man, even the man Jesus Christ. These be plain places for the profound declaration of both Natures, united and knitted together in one Christ. Let us diligently consider and weigh the works that he did, whiles he lived on earth, and we shall thereby also discern the self-same thing to be most true. In that he did hunger and thirst, eat and drink, sleep and wake; in that he preached his Gospel to the people, in that he wept and sorrowed for Jerusalem, in that he paid tribute for himself and Peter, in that he died and suffered death: what other thing did he else declare, but only this, that he was perfect man as we are? For which cause he is called in holy Scripture, sometime the Son of David, sometime the Son of Man, sometime the Son of God, and sometime the Son of Joseph, and so forth. Now in that he forgave sins in that he wrought Miracles, in that he did call out Devils, in that he healed men with his own word, in that he knew the thoughts of men's hearts, in that he had the Seas at his commandment, in that he walked on the Water, in that he rose from death to life, in that he ascended into heaven, and so forth. What other thing did he do therein, but only that he was perfect GOD, coequal with the Father as touching his Divinity? Therefore he is called in holy Scripture, The Father and the Son, and the Holy Ghost, which is to be understood of his Godhead. For as touching his manhood, he is called the Son of man, the Father is greater than I am. Where are now those Marcionites, that deny Christ to have been born in the flesh, or to have been perfect man? Where are now those Arians, which deny Christ to have been perfect GOD, of equal substance with the Father? If there be any such, we may easily repugne them with these testimonies of GOD'S Word and such other. Whereunto I am most sure, they shall never be able to answer. For the necessity of our salvation did require such a Mediator and Saviour, as under one person should be a partaker of both natures: it was requisite he should be man, it was also requisite he should be GOD. For as the transgression came by man, so was the satisfaction

...fashion should be made by man. And because death, according to S. Paul, is the just wages and reward of sin, therefore to appease the wrath of GOD, and to satisfy His justice, it was expedient that our Mediator should be such a one, as might take upon him the sins of mankind, and sustain the due punishment thereof, namely death. Moreover, he came in flesh, and in the selfsame flesh ascended into heaven, to declare and testify unto us, that all faithful people which piously believe in him, shall likewise come unto the same Mansions place, whereto he being our chief Captain, is gone before. Last of all he became man, that we thereby might receive the greater comfort, as well in our prayers, as also in our adversity, considering with our selves, that we have a Mediator that is true man as we are, who also is touched with our infirmities and was tempted even in like lust as we are. For these and sundry other causes, it was most needful he should come, as he did in the flesh.

But because no creature, in that he is only a creature, hath or may have power to destroy death, and give life, to overcome hell, and purchase heaven, to remit sins, and give righteousness: therefore it was needful, that our Saviour, whose proper duty and office that was, should be not only full and pure Man, but also full and pure GOD, to the intent he might more fully and perfectly make satisfaction for mankind. GOD faith, this is my wellbeloved Son in whom I am well-pleased. By which place we learn, that Christ appeased and quenched the wrath of his Father, not in that he was only the Son of man: But much more in that he was the Son of GOD.

Thus ye have heard declared out of the Scriptures, that Jesus Christ was the true Messiah and Saviour of the World, that he was by nature and substance perfect GOD and perfect Man, and for what cause it was expedient it should be so. Now that we may be the more mindful and thankful unto GOD in this behalf, let us briefly consider, and call to mind the manifold and great benefits that we have received by the Nativity and birth of this our Messiah and Saviour.

Before Christ's coming into the World, all men universally in Adam, were nothing else but a wicked and crooked generation, rotten and corrupt trees, stony ground, full of thistles and briers, lost sheep, prodigal sons, naughty unprofitable servants, unrighteous stewards, workers of iniquity, the breed of Advers, blind guides, sitting in darkness and in the shadow of death: to be short, nothing else but children of perdition, and inheritors of hell fire. To this both S. Paul bear witness, in divers places of his Epistles, and Christ also himself in sundry places of his Gospel. But after he was once come down from Heaven, and had taken our frail nature upon him, he made all them that would receive him truly, and believe his word, good trees, and good ground, fruitful and pleasant branches, children of light, citizens of heaven, sheep of his fold, members of his body, heirs of his Kingdom, his true friends and brethren. Sweet and lively bread, the elect and chosen people of GOD. For as Saint Peter faith in his first Epistle and second Chapter: He bare our sins in his body upon the Cross, he healed us, and made us whole by his stripes: and whereas before we were steep going astray, he by his coming brought us home again to the true Shepherd and Bishop of our souls, making us a chosen generation, a royal Priesthood, an holy Nation, a particular people of GOD, in that he died for our offences, and rose for our justification.
the Nativity.

St. Paul to Timothy (the third Chapter. We were (as he) in times past, unwise, disobedient, received, serving divers lusts and pleasures, living in hatred, envy, malice, and so forth.

But after the loving kindness of God our Saviour appeared towards mankind, not according to the righteousness that we had done, but according to His great mercy, He saved us by the fountain of the new birth, and by the renewing of the Holy Ghost, which He poured upon us abundantly, through Jesus Christ our Saviour, that we being once justified by His grace, should be heirs of eternal life, through hope and faith in His blood.

In these and such other places, is set forth before our eyes, as it were in a glass, the abundant grace of God, received in Christ Jesus, which is so much the more wonderful, because it came not of any merit of ours, but of His mere and tender mercy, even then when we were His extreme enemies. But for the better understanding and consideration of this thing, let us behold the end of His coming, so shall we perceive what great commodity and profit His Nativity hath brought unto us miserable and sinful creatures. The end of his coming, was to save and deliver his people, to fulfill the Law for us, to bear witness unto the truth, to render and preach the good news of his Father, to give light unto the world, to call sinners to repentance, to refresh them that labour and are heavy laden, to call out the Prince of this world, to reconcile us in the body of his flesh, to dissemble the works of the Devil; last of all, to become a propitiation for our sins, and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world.

These were the chief ends wherefore Christ became man, not for any profit that should come to himself thereby, but only for our sakes, that we might understand the will of God, be partakers of his heavenly light, be delivered out of the Devil's claims, released from the burden of sin, justified through faith in his blood, and finally, received up into everlasting glory, there to reign with him for ever. Was not this a great and singular love of Christ towards mankind, that being the express and lively Image of God, he would notwithstanding humble himself, and take upon him the form of a servant, and that only to save and redeem us? O how much are we bound to the goodness of God in this behalf! how many thanks and praises do we owe unto him for this our salvation wrought by his dear and only Son Christ, who became a Pilgrim in Earth to make us Citizens in Heaven; who became the Son of man to make us the sons of God; who became obedient to the law, to deliver us from the curse of the law; who became poor, to make us rich; vile, to make us precious; subject to death, to make us like for ever. What greater love could we think creatures desire or wish to have at God's hands?

Therefore (Dearly Beloved) let us not forget this exceeding love of our Lord and Saviour, let us not dwell on ourselves unmindful or unthankful toward him: but let us love him, fear him, obey him, and serve him. Let us confess him with our mouths, praise him with our tongues, believe on him with our hearts, and glorify him with our good works. Christ is the light, let us receive the light. Christ is the truth, let us believe the truth. Christ is the way, let us follow the way. And because he is our only Master, our only Teacher, our only Shepherd, and chief Captain; therefore let us become his servants, his scholars, his sheep, and his soldiers. As for Sin, the Flesh, the World, and the Devil, whose Servants and Bondslaves we were before Christ's coming, let us utterly cast them off, and hate them, as the chief and only enemies of our soul. And seeing we are once delivered from their cruel tyranny by Christ, let us never fall into their hands again, lest we chance to be in a worse case than ever we were before. Happy are they, faith the Scripture, that continue to the end. Be faithful (faith GOD) until death, and I will give thee a crown of life. Again, he faith in another place, he that putteth his hand unto the Plough, and looketh back, is not meet for the Kingdom of GOD. Therefore let us be strong, steadfast, and unmoveable, abounding always in the works of the Lord. Let us receive Christ, not for a time, but for ever; let us believe his Word, not for a time, but for ever; let us become his servants, not for a time, but for ever; in consideration that he hath redeemed and saved us, not for a time, but for ever; and will receive us into his heavenly Kingdom, there to reign with him, not for a time, but for ever. To him therefore with the Father and the Holy Ghost, be all honour, praise, and glory, for ever and ever. Amen.
AN HOMILY FOR GOOD-FRIDAY, CONCERNING THE DEATH AND PASSION OF OUR SAVIOUR JESUS CHRIST.

It should not become us (well-beloved in Christ) being that people which be redeemed from the Devil, from sin and death, and from everlasting damnation, by Christ, to suffer this time to pass forth without any meditation and remembrance of that excellent work of our Redemption, wrought as about this time, through the great mercy and charity of our Saviour Jesus Christ, for us wretched sinners, and his mortal enemies. For if a mortal man were done to the benefit of the Common-wealth, he had in remembrance of us, with thanks for the benefit and profit which we receive thereby: how much more readily should we have in memory this excellent act and benefit of Christ's death? whereby he hath purchased for us the undoubted pardon and forgiveness of our sins, whereby he made at one the Father of Heaven with us, in such wise, that he taketh us now for his loving children, and for the true inheritors, with Christ his natural Son, of the Kingdom of Heaven. And verily so much more doth Christ's kindness appear unto us, in that it pleased him to deliver himself of all his godly honor, which he was equally in with his Father in Heaven, and to come down into this vale of misery, to be made mortal man, and to be in the state of a most low servant, serving us for our wealth and profit, us. I say, which were his sworn enemies, which had renounced his holy Law and Commandments and followed the lusts and sinful pleasures of our corrupt nature. And yet, I say, did Christ put himself between GOD'S deserved wrath, and our sin; and rent that obligation wherein we were in danger to GOD, and paid our debt. Our debt was a great deal too great for us to have paid. And without payment, GOD the Father could never be at one with us. Neither;
Neither was it possible to be loosed from this debt by our own ability. It pleased him therefore to be the payer thereof, and to discharge us quite.

Who can now consider the grievous debt of sin, which could none otherwise be paid, but by the death of an innocent, and will not hate sin in his heart: If GOD hateth sin so much, that he would allow neither man nor angel for the redemption thereof, but only the death of his only and well-beloved son, who will not stand in fear thereof? If we (my friends) consider this, that for our sins this most innocent lamb was driven to death, we shall have much more cause to bewail our selves that we were the cause of his death, than to cry out of the malice and cruelty of the Jews, which pursued him to his death. We did the deeds wherefore he was thus stricken and wounded, they were only the min-isters of our wickedness. It is meet then we should lay low down into our hearts, and bewail our own wretchedness and unful living. Let us know for a certainty, that if the most dearly beloved Son of GOD was thus punished and stricken for the sin which he had not done himself, so much more ought we to lose or be stricken for, our daily and manifold sins which we commit against GOD, if we earnestly repent us not, and be not sorry for them: No man can love sin, which GOD hateth so much, and be in his favour. No man can say that he loveth Christ truly, and have his great enemy (in I mean, the author of his death) familiar and in friendship with him. So much do we love GOD and Christ, as we hate sin. We ought therefore to take great heed, that we be not favourers thereof, lest we be found enemies to GOD, and traitors to Christ. For not only they which nailed Christ upon the Cross, are his tormentors and crucifiers: but all they (faith St. Paul) crucify again the Son of GOD, as much as is in them, who do commit vice and sin, which brought him to his death. If the wages of sin be death, and death everlasting: Surely it is no small danger to be in service thereof. If we live after the flesh, and after the sinful lusts thereof, St. Paul threateneth, ye Almighty GOD in St. Paul threateneth, that we shall surely die. We can none otherwise live to GOD, but by dying to sin. If Christ be in us, there is sin dead in us: and if the Spirit of GOD be in us, which raised Christ from death to life, so shall the same Spirit raise us to the resurrection of everlasting life. But if sin rule and reign in us, then is GOD, which is the Fountain of all grace and virtue, departed from us: then hath the Devil, and his ungracious spirit, rule and dominion in us. And surely if in such miserable state we die, we shall not rise to life, but fall down to death and damnation, and that without end. For Christ hath not so redeemed us from sin, that we may safely return thereto again: but he hath redeemed us, that we should forsake the motions thereof, and live to righteousness. Yea, we have therefore bathed in our Baptism from the stink of sin, that we should live afterward in the pureness of life. In Baptism we promised to renounce the Devil and his suggestions, we promised to be (as obedient children) always following GOD'S will and pleasure. Then if he be our Father indeed, let us give him his due honour. If we be his children, let us obey him our obedience, like as Christ openly declared his obedience to his Father, which (as St. Paul witnesseth) was obedient even to the very death, the death of the Cross. And this he did for us all that believe in him. For himself he was not punished for he was pure, pure and undefiled of all manner of sin. He was wounded (faith Ely.) Ely 4. for our wickedness and stripped for our sins; he suffered the penalty of them himself, to deliver us from danger; he bore (faith Ely.) all our sores and infirmities upon his own back. In pain did he refuse to suffer in his own body, that he might deliver us from pain everlasting. His pleasure it was thus to do for us, we desired it not. Therefore the more we see our selves bound unto him, the more he ought to be thanked of us. Yea, and the more hope may we take, that we shall receive all other good things of his hand, in that we have received the gift of his only Son, through his liberality. For it GOD (faith St. Paul) Rom. 8.
bath not spared his own Son from pain and punishment, but delivered him for us all unto the death: how should he not give us all other things with him? If we want any thing, either for body or soul, we may lawfully and boldly approach to GOD as to our merciful Father, to ask that we desire, and we shall obtain it. For such power is given to us, to be the children of GOD, so many as believe in Christ's name. In his name whatsoever we ask, we shall have it granted us. For to well pleased is the Father Almighty GOD, with Christ his Son, that for his sake be favoureth us, and will deny us nothing. So pleasant was this sacrifice and oblation of his own death, which he in obediency and innocently suffered, that we should take it for the only and full atonements for all the sins of the world. And such favour did he purchase by his death, of his heavenly Father for us, that for the merit thereof (if we be true Christians in deed, and not in word only) we be now fully in GOD's grace again, and clearly discharged from our sin. No tongue surely is able to express the worthiness of this so precious a death. For in this standard the continual pardon of our daily offences, this reflect our justification, in this we be allowed. In this is purchased the everlasting health of all our souls. Yea, there is none other thing that can be named under heaven to save our souls, but this only work of Christ's precious offering of his Body upon the altar of the Cross. Certes there can be no work of any mortal man (be he never so holy) that shall be coupled in merits with Christ's most holy act. For no doubt, all our thoughts and deeds were of no value, if they were not allowed in the merits of Christ's death. All our righteousness is far unperfect, if it be compared with Christ's righteouness. For in his acts and deeds, there was no spot of sin, of any imperfections. And for this cause they were the more able to be the true amends of our righteouness, where our acts and deeds be full of im-perfection and in-firmi-ties, and therefore nothing worthy of themselves to the GOD to any labour, much less to challenge that glory that is due to Christ's act and merits. For not to us (faith David) not to us but to the name give the glory. O Lord. Let us therefore (good Friends) with all reverence glorise his name, let us magnifie and praise him for ever. For he hath dealt with us according to his great mercy, by himself hath he purchased our redemption. He thought it not enough to spare himself, and to send his Angel to do this deed, but he would do it himself, that he might do it the better, and make it the more perfect redemption. He was nothing moved with the intolerable pains that he suffered in the whole course of his long passion, to repent him thus to do good to his enemies: but he opened his heart for us, and befriended himself wholly for the ransomig of us. Let us therefore now open our hearts again to him.
The Sermon of the Passion

him, and study in our lives to be thankful to such a Lord, and therefore to be mindful of so great a benedict: Psa, let us take up our Crosses with Christ, and follow him. His Passion is not only the ransom and whole amends for our sin, but it is also a most perfect example of all patience and sufferance. For if it behoved Christ thus to suffer, and to enter into the glory of his Father: Why should it not become us to bear patiently our small crosses of adversity, and the troubles of this World? For surely (as St. Peter) Christ therefore suffered, to leave us an example to follow his steps. And if we suffer with him, we shall be sure also to reign with him in heaven. Not that the sufferance of this transitory life should be worthy of that glory to come, but gladly should we be contented to suffer, to be like Christ in our life, that so by our works we may glorify our Father which is in heaven. And as it is painful and grievous to bear the Crosses of Christ in the griefs and displeasures of this life: So it bringeth forth the joyful fruit of hope, in all them that he exercised therewith. Let us not so much behold the pain as the reward that shall follow that labour. Nay, let us rather endeavor our selves in our sufferance, to endure innocently and quietly, as our Saviour Christ did. For if we suffer for our deservings then hath not patience his perfect work in us; but if undeservedly we suffer loss of goods and life, if we suffer to be evil spoken of for the love of Christ, this is thankful above GOD, for so did Christ suffer. He never did lie, neither was any guile found in his mouth. Psa, when he was reviled with taunts he reviled not again. When he was wrongfully dealt with, he threatened not again, nor revenged his quarrel, but delivered his cause to him that judgeth righteously.

Perfect patience careth not what, nor how much it suffereth, nor of whom it suffereth whether of friend or foe; but studieth to suffer innocently, and without deservings. Psa, he in whom perfect charity is, careth so little to revenge, that he rather studieth to do good for evil, to bless and say well of them that curse him, to pray for them that persecute him, according to the example of our Saviour Christ, who is the most perfect example and pattern of all meekness and sufferance, which hanging upon the Cross, in most servient anguish bleeding in every part of his blessed Body, being set in the midst of his enemies and crucifiers: and he withstanding the intolerable pains which they laid him in, being of them mocked and scorned delightedly without all favour and compassion, had yet towards them such compassion in heart, that he prayed to his Father of heaven for them. And said, O Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do. What patience was it also which he suffered, when one of his own Apostles and servants which was put in trust of him, came to betray him unto his enemies to the death? He laid nothing wrong to him, but, Friend, wherefore art thou come? Thus good People should we call to mind the great examples of charity which Christ showed in his Passion, if we will faithfully remember his Passion. Such charity and love should we bear one to another, if we will be the true servants of Christ. For if we love but them that love us well, what great thing is it that we do, saith Christ? Do not the Pantins and open sinners do? We must be more perfect in our charity than thus, even as our Father in heaven is perfect, which maketh the light of his Sun to rise upon the good and the bad, and sendeth his rain upon the kind and unkind. After After this manner should we show our charity indifferently, as well to one as to another, as well to friends as foes, like obedient children, after the example of our Father in Heaven. For if Christ was obedient to his Father even to the death, and that the most shameful death (as the Jews esteemed it) the death of the Cross: why should we not be obedient to God in wholesome points of Charity and Patience? Let us forgive then our Neighbors their small faults, as God for Christ's sake hath forgivens us our great.

It is not meet that we should crave forgiveness of our great offences at God's hands, and yet will not forgive the small trespasses of our neighbors against us. We do call for mercy in vain, if we will not show mercy to our neighbors. For if we will not put away and displease forth of our hearts to our Christian brother no more will God forgive the displeasure and wrath that our sins have deserved before him. For under this condition both God forgive us, if we forgive others. It becometh not Christian men to be hard one to another, nay yet to think their neighbor unworthy to be forgiven. For howsoever unworthy he is, yet is Christ worthy to have the do thus much for his sake, he hath deserved it of thee, that thou shouldst forgive thy neighbor. And God is also to be obeyed, which commandeth us to forgive, if we will have any part of the pardon which our Saviour Christ puttabad on of God the Father, by shedding of his precious blood. Nothing becomes Christ's servants so much, as mercy and compassion. Let us then be favourable one to another, and pray one for another, that we may be healed from all frailties of our life, the less to offend one the other; and that we may be of one mind and one spirit, agreeing together in brotherly love and concord, even like the dear children of God. By these means shall we move God to be merciful unto our sins, yea, and we shall be hereby the more ready to receive our Saviour and Maker in his blessed Sacrament, to our everlasting comfort and health of soul. Christ delighteth to enter and dwell in that soul where love and charity ruleth, and where peace and concord is seen. For thus writeth St. John, God is charity, be he abideth in charity abide in God, and God in him. And by this (faith be) we shall know that we be of God, if we love our brethren. Yea, and by this shall we know, that we be delivered from death to life, if we love one another. But he which hateth his brother (faith the same Apostle) abideth in death, even in the danger of everlasting death, and is moreover the child of damnation and of the devil, cursed of God and hated (so long as he so remaineth) of God and all his heavenly company. For as peace and charity make us the blessed children of Almighty God; so both hatred and envy make us the cursed children of the devil. God give us all grace to follow Christ's examples in peace and in charity, in patience and suffrance, that we now may have him as our guest to enter and dwell within us, so as we may be in full surety, having such a pledge of our salvation. If we have him and his favor, we may be sure we have the favor of God by his means. For he siteth on the right hand of God his Father, as our Prophet and Attorney, pleading and using for us in all our needs and necessities, therefore if we want any gift of Godly wisdom, we may ask it of God for Christ's sake, and we shall have it. Let us consider and examine our selves, in what want we be concerning this virtue of charity and

and patience. If we see that our hearts be nothing inclined thereunto, in forgiving them that have offended against us, then let us know by our want, and wish to God to have it. But if we want it, and see in our selves no desire thereunto, verily we be in a dangerous case before God, and have need to make much earnest prayer to God, that we may have such an heart changed, to the grafting in of a new. For unless we forgive other, we shall never be forgiven of God. No, not all the prayers and good works of other, can pacify God unto us, unless we be at peace, and at one with our neighbour. But all our deeds and good works can move God to forgive us our debts to him, except we forgive to other. He setteth more by mercy than by sacrifice. Mercy moved our Saviour Christ to suffer for his enemies, it become us then to follow his example. For it shall little avail us to have in meditation the fruits and price of his passion, to magnify them, and to delight or fruit in them, except we have in mind his examples in passion to follow them. If we thus therefore consider Christ's death, and will sticke there- to with fast faith for the merit and deserving thereof, and will also frame our selves in such wise to believe our selves and all that we have by charity, to the behof of our neighbour, as Christ spent himself wholly for our profit, then do we truly remember Christ's death; and being thus followers of Christ's steps, we shall be sure to follow him thither where he sticke still with the Father and the Holy Ghost: To whom be all honour and glory. Amen.

The Second Homily

Concerning

The Death and Passion of our Saviour Christ.

So that we may the better conceive the great mercy and goodness of our Saviour Christ, in suffering death universally for all men, it behoveth us to descend into the bottom of our conscience, and deeply to consider the first and principal cause wherefore he was compelled to to do. When our great Grandfather Adam had broken God's commandments, in eating the Apple forbidden him in Paradise, at the motion and suggestion of his wife, he purchased thereby, not only to himself, but also to his posterity for ever, the just wrath and indignation of God, who according to his former sentence pronounced at the giving of the commandment, condemned both him and all his, to everlasting death, both of body and soul. For it was said unto him, thou shalt eat freely of every tree in the Garden: but as touching the tree of knowledge of good and ill, thou shalt in no wise eat of it: for in what hour soever thou eatest thereof, thou shalt die the death. as the Lord had spoken, so it came to pass. Adam took upon him to eat thereof, and in so doing he died the death, that is to say, he became mortal, he lost the favor of God, he was cast out of Paradise, he was no longer a citizen of Heaven; but a fierce beast of Hell, and a Bond-slave to the Devil. To this doth our Saviour bear witness in the Gospel, calling us lost Sheep, which have gone astray, and wandered from the true Shepherd of our souls. To this also doth St. Paul bear witness, saying, That by the offense of one Adam, death came upon all men to condemnation. So that now neither he, nor any of his, had any right or interest at all in the Kingdom of Heaven; but were become plain Reprobates and Cast-aways, being perpetually dammed to the everlasting pains of Hell-are. In this to great misery and wretchedness, if mankind could have recovered himself again, and obtained forgiveness at God's hands, then had his case been somewhat toleraable, because he might have attempted some way how to deliver himself from eternal death. But there was no way left unto him, he could do nothing that might pacify God's wrath, he was altogether unpac-ifiable in that behalf. There was not one that did good, no not one.
And how then could he work his own salvation? Should he go about to pacify God's heavy displeasure by offering up burnt sacrifices, according as it was ordained in the old Law, by offering up the blood of Oxen, the blood of Goats, the blood of Lambs, and so forth? O these things were of no force; no strength to take away this, they could not put away the anger of God, they could not cool the heat of his wrath, no yet bring mankind into favour again, they were but only figures and shadows of things to come, and nothing else.
Read the Epistle to the Hebrews, there you will find this matter largely discussed, there you will find in most plain words, that the bloody sacrifice of the old Law was imperfect, and not able to deliver man from the state of damnation by any means: so that mankind in tru-ing themselves, should trust to a broken staff, and in the end deceive himself. What should he then do? Should he go about to serve and keep the Law of God divided into two Tables, and so purchase to himself eternal life? Indeed, if Adam and his posterity had been able to sacrifice and fulfill the Law perfectly, including God above all things, and their neighbour as themselves; then should they have easily quenched the Lord's wrath, and escaped the terrible sentence of eternal death pronounced against them by the mouth of Almighty God. For it is written: Do thus, and thou shalt live; that is to say, fulfill my Commandments keep thy self upright and perfect in them according to my will, then shalt thou live, and not die. Here is eternal life promised with this condition, and so they kept and obserbe the Law. But such was the frailty of mankind after his fall. Such was his weakness and imbecility, that he could not walk uprightly in God's commandments, though he would never to fail; but daily and hourly fell from his bounden duty, offending the Lord his God's ways, to the great increase of his condemnation, inomuch that the Prophet David cried out on this wise: All have gone astray, all are become unpacifiable, there is none that doth good, no not one. In this case what profit could be had by the Law? None at all. For as St. James saith, he that shall obserbe the whole Law, and yet faileth in one point, is become guilty of all. And in the Book of Deuteronomy it is written, Curst he be (faith GOD) which abided not in all things that are written in the Book of the Law, to do them.

Behold, the Law bringeth a curse with it, and maketh it guilty, not because it is of itself naught or unholy, GOD forbid we should to think) but because the frailty of our sinful flesh is such, that we can never fulfill it, according to the perfection that the Lord requireth. Could Adam then (think you) hope or trust to be saved by the Law? No, he could not. But the more he looked on the Law, the more he saw his own damnation set before his eyes, as it were in a clear glass. So that now of himself he was most wretched and miserable, destitute of all hope, and never able to pacify GOD's heavy displeasure, nor yet to escape the terrible judgment of GOD, whereby he and all his posterity were fallen, by disobeying the strict Commandment of the Lord their GOD. But O the abundant riches of GOD's great mercy! O the unspeakable goodness of his heavenly Father! When all hope of righteousness was past on our part, when we had nothing in our selves, whereby we might quench his burning wrath, and work the salvation of our own souls, and rise out of the miserable estate wherein we lay; Then, even then did Christ the Son of GOD, by the appointment of his Father, come down from heaven, to be wounded for our sakes, to be reputed with the wicked, to be condemned unto death, to take upon him the reward of our sins, and to give his Body to be broken on the Cross for our offences. (faith the Prophet Esay, meaning Christ) hath born our infirmities, and hath carried our sorrows, the chastisement of our peace was upon him, and by his stripes we were made whole. St. Paul likewise saith, GOD made him a sacrifice for our sins, which knew not sin, that we should be made the righteousness of GOD by him. And St. Peter most agreeably writing in this behalf, saith, Christ hath once died and suffered for our sins, the just for the unjust, &c. To these might be added an infinite number of other places to the same effect: but these few shall be sufficient for this time.

Now then (as it was laid at the beginning) let us ponder and weigh the cause of his death, that thereby we may be the more moved to glorify him in our whole life. Wherein if you will have comprehended briefly in one word, it was nothing else on our part, but only the transgression and sin of mankind. When the Angel came to warn Joseph that he should not fear to take Mary to his wife: Did he not therefore will the Childs name to be called Jesus, because he should save his people from their sins? When John the Baptist preached Christ, and pointed him to the people with this finger: Did he not plainly say unto them, Behold the Lamb of GOD which taketh away the sins of the World? When the Woman of Canaan besought Christ to help her Daughter which was possessed with a Devil: did he not openly confess that he was sent to save the lost sheep of the house of Israel, by giving his life for their sins? It was sin then. O man, even thy sin that caused Christ the only Son of GOD to be crucified in the flesh, and to suffer the most vile and shameful death of the Cross. If thou hadst kept thy self upright, if thou hadst observed the Commandments, if thou hadst not presumed to transgress the will of GOD in thy will, Father Adam, then Christ, being in form of GOD, needed not to have taken upon him the shape of a servant: being immortal in Heaven, Heaven, he needed not to become mortal on Earth: being the true head of the soul, he needed not to hunger; being the healthful water of life, he needed not thirst; being life it self, he needed not to have suffered death. But to these and many other such extremities, was he driven by thy sin, which was so manifold and great, that GOD could be only pleased in him, and none other. Canst thou think of this, O sinful man, and not tremble within thy self? Canst thou hear it quietly without remorse of conscience, and sorrow of heart? Did Christ suffer his passion for thee, and wilt thou shew no compassion towards him? While Christ was yet hanging on the Cross, and yielding up the Ghost, the Scripture witnesseth that the veil of the Temple did rent in twain and the Earth did quake that the stones clave asunder, that the Graves did open, and the dead bodies rise; and shall the heart of man be nothing moved to remember how grievously and cruelly he was handled of the Jews for our sins? Shall man then himself to be more hearted than horses, to have less compasion than dead bodies? Call to mind, O sinful creature, and let before thine eyes Christ crucified. Think thou seest his Body stretched out in length upon the Cross, his head crowned with thorns, his hands and his feet pierced with nails, his heart opened with a large spear, his lieth rent and torn with wounds; his brows sweating Water and Blood. Think thou bearest him now crying in an intolerable agony to his Father, and laying, O GOD, my GOD, why hast thou forsaken me? Couldst thou behold this woeful sight, or hear this mournful voice, without tears, considering that he suffered all this, not for any defect of his own, but only for the grievousness of thy sins; O that mankind should put the everlasting Son of GOD to such pains. O that we should be the occasion of his death, and the only cause of his condemnation. Nay we not justify cry, wo worthy the time that ever we sinned? O my brethren, let this Image of Christ crucified, be always painted in our hearts, let it live us up to the hatred of sin, and provoke our minds to the earnest love of Almighty GOD. For why, is not sin, think you, a grievous thing in his sight, seeing for the transgressing of GODS precept in eating of one Apple, he condemned all the World to perpetual death, and would not be pacified, but only with the blood of his own Son? True, pea, most true is that saying of David: Thou, O Lord, hast all them that work iniquity, neither shall the wicked and evil man dwell with thee. By the mouth of his holy Prophet, he cried mainly out against sinners, and faith, Wo unto you that do ye iniquity with cords of vanity, &c. as it were with cart-ropes! Did not he give a plain token how greatly he hated and abhorred sin, when he drowned all the World, save only eight persons, when he destroyed Sodom and Gomorhah with fire and brimstone, when in three days space he killed with pestilence three-score and ten thousand for Davids offence; when he drowned Pharaoh and all his host in the red Sea, when he turned Nebuchadnezzar for the King, into the form of a brute Beast, creeping upon all four, when he suffered Achitophel and Judas to hang themselves upon the remon of sin, which was so terrible to their eyes? A thousand such examples are to be found in Scripture, if a man would stand to seek them out. But what need we? This one example which we have now in hand, is of more force, and ought more to move us, than all the rest. Christ being the Son of GOD, and perfect GOD, him-himself, who never committed sin, was compelled to come down from heaven to give his body to be bruised and broken on the Cross for our sins. Was not this a manifest token of GOD's great wrath and displeasure towards sin, that he could be pacified by no other means, but only by the sweet and precious blood of his dear Son? O sin, sin, that ever thou shouldst drive Christ to such extremity! Two words the time that ever thou camest into the world. But what distress it now to dwell - sin is come, and so come that it cannot be avoided. There is no man living, no not the justest man on the earth but he faltereth seven times a day, as Solomon saith. And our Saviour Christ, although he hath delivered us from sin, yet not so that we shall be free from committing sin, but so that it shall not be imputed to our condemnation.

He hath taken upon him the just reward of sin, which was death, and by death hath overcome death; that we believing in him, might live for ever and not die. Ought not this to engender extreme hatred of sin in us to consider that it did violently, as it were, put GOD out of heaven, to make him feel the horrors and pains of death? O that we would sometimes consider this in the midst of our poms and pleasures: it would hide the outrageousness of the flesh; it would abate and allay our carnal affections, it would restrain our fleshly appetites, that we should not run at random, as we commonly do. To commit sin wilfully and desperately, without fear of GOD, is nothing else but to crucify Christ anew, as we are expressly taught in the Epistle to the Hebrews, which thing if it were deeply painted in all mens hearts, then should not sin reign everywhere so much as it doth, to the great grief and torment of Christ, now sitting in heaven.

Let us therefore remember, and always bear in mind Christ crucified, that thereby we may be inwardly moved both to abhor sin throughly, and also with an earnest and zealous heart to love GOD. For this is another fruit which the memorial of Christ's death ought to work in us, an earnest and unfeigned love towards GOD. So GOD loved the world (saith St. John) that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him, should not perish, but have life everlasting. If GOD declared so great love towards us his silly creatures: how can we of eight but love him again? Was not this a sure pledge of his love, to give us his own Son from heaven? He might have given us an angel if he would, or some other creature, and yet should his love have been far above our defects. Now he gave us not an angel, but his Son. And what son? His only Son, his natural Son, his well-beloved Son, even that Son whom he had made Lord and Ruler of all things. Was not this a singular token of great love? But to whom did he give him? He gave him to the whole world; that is to say, to Adam, and all that should come after him. O Lord, what had Adam, or any other man deserved at GOD's hands, that he should give us his own Son? We are all miserable persons, sinful persons, damnable persons, justly driven out of paradise, justly excluded from heaven, justly condemned to hell fire, and yet (see a wonderful token of GOD's love) he gave us his only begotten Son, to save, that were his enemies and deadly enemies, that we by virtue of his blood shed upon the Cross, might be clean purged from our sins, and made righteous again in his sight. Who can chuse but marvel, to hear that GOD should shew such unspeakable love towards us, that that were his deadly enemies: Indeed, O mortal man, thou oughtest of right to marvel at it, and to acknowledge therein GODS great goodness and mercy towards mankind, which is so wonderful that no flesh, be it never so worldly wise, may well conceive it, or report it. For as St. Paul testifieth, GOD greatly commendeth and letteth out his love towards us, in that he sent his Son Christ to die for us, when we were yet sinners, and open enemies of his Name. If we had in any manner of wise deserved it at his hands, then had it been no marvel at all, but there was no deference on our part wherefore he should do it. Therefore thou sinful Creature, when thou hearest that GOD gave his Son to die for the sins of the World, think not he did it for any defect or goodness that was in thee, for thou wallest then in Bondage of the Devil: But fall down upon thy knees, and cry with the Prophet Da. Plal. 8, vid. O Lord, what is man, that thou art so mindful of him? or the son of man, that thou so regardest him? And seeing he hath so greatly loved thee, endeavours thy self to love thee again, with all thy heart, with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, that therein thou shalt appear not to be unworthy of his love. I reproach me to thine own conscience, whether thou wouldst not think thy love ill bestowed upon him, that could not find in his heart to love thee again: If this be true, (as it is most true) then think how greatly it behoveth thee in duty to love GOD which hath so greatly loved thee, that he hath spared his own only Son from so cruel and wondful a death for thy sake. And being concerning the cause of Christ's Death and Passion, which as it was on our part most horrible and grievous sin, so on the other side it was the free gift of GOD, proceeding of his meek and tender love towards mankind, without any merit or defect of our part. The Lord for his mercies sake grant that we never forget this great benefit of our salvation in Christ Jesu, but that we always shew our selves thankful for it, adoring all kind of wickedness and sin, and applying our minds wholly to the service of GOD, and the diligent keeping of his commandments.

Now it remainedeth that I shew unto you, how to apply Christ's death and passion to our comfort, as a medicine to our wounds so that it may work the same effect in us wherefore it was given, namely, the health and salvation of our souls. For as it protesteth a man nothing to have sinned, unless it be well applied to the part inflected: So the death of Christ shall stand us in no force, unless we apply it to our selves in such sort as GOD hath appointed. Almighty GOD commonly worketh by means, and in this thing he hath also obtained a certain mean, whereby we may take fruit and profit to our souls health.

What mean is that? For though it is Faith, Not an unconstant or wavering Faith but a sure, steadfast, grounded, and unsignified Faith. GOD sent his Son into the World (faith St. John) To what end? That who soever believeth in him should not perish, but have life everlasting. Back these words that who soever believeth in him. Here is the mean whereby we must apply the fruits of Christ's death unto our deadly wound, here is the mean whereby we must obtain eternal life, namely Faith. For (as St. Paul teacheth in his Epistle to the Romans) With the heart man believeth unto righteousness, and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation. Paul being demanded of the Keeper of the Pison, what he should do to be saved? made this answer: Believe in the Lord Jesus.
The Second Sermon

Jesus saith thou and thine house both be saved. After the Evangelist had described and set forth unto us at large, the life and the death of the Lord Jesus, in the end he concludes with these words: These things are written, that we may believe Jesus Christ to be the Son of God, and through faith obtain eternal life. To conclude with the words of St. Paul, which are these: Christ is the end of the Law unto salvation, for every one that doth believe. By this then, you may well perceive, that the only mean and instrument of salvation required of our parts, is Faith; that is to say, a sure trust and confidence in the merits of God, whereby we persuade our selves, that God both blesse, and will forgive our sins, that he hath accepted us again into his favour, that he hath released us from the bonds of damnation, and received us again into the number of his elect people, not for our merits or defects, but only and solely for the merits of Christ's death and Passion, who became man for our sakes, and humbled himself to sustain the reproach of the Cross, that we thereby might be saved, and made inheritors of the Kingdom of heaven. This Faith is required at our hands. And this if we keep steadfastly at our hearts, there is no doubt, but we shall obtain salvation at GOD'S hands, as did Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, of whom the Scripture faith, that they believed, and it was imputed unto them for righteousness. Was it imputed unto them only; and shall it not be imputed unto us also? Yes, if we have the same faith as they had, it shall be as truly imputed unto us for righteousness, as it was unto them. For it is one Faith that must save both us and them, even a sure and steadfast Faith in Christ Jesus, who, as ye have heard, came into the World for this end, that whosoever believeth in him, should not perish, but have life everlasting. But here we must take heed that we do not halt with GOD through an unconstant and wavering Faith, but that it be strong and steadfast to our lives end.

Peter coming to Christ upon the Water, because he feared in Faith, was in danger of drowning. So we if we begin to waver or doubt, it is to be feared lest we shall sink as Peter did; not into the Water, but into the bottomless pit of Hell fire. Therefore I say unto you, that we must apprehend the merits of Christ's death and Passion by Faith, and that with a strong and steadfast Faith, nothing doubting, but that Christ by his own oblation, and once offering of himself upon the Cross, hath taken away our sins, and hath restored us again into GOD'S favour. So fully and perfectly, that no other sacrifice for sin, shall hereafter be requisite or needful in all the World.

Thus have you heard in few words, the mean whereby we must apply the fruits and merits of Christ's death unto us, so that it may work the salvation of our souls: namely, a sure, steadfast, perfect and grounded Faith. As all they which beheld steadfastly the Brazen Serpent, were healed and delivered at the very sight thereof, from their corporal diseases and bodily things; even so all they which beheld Christ crucified with a true and lively Faith, shall undoubtedly be delivered from the grievous wounds of the soul, be they never so deadly or many in number. Therefore dearly Beloved, if we chance at any time through frailty of the flesh, to fall into sin (as it cannot be chosen, but we...
of the Passion.

we must needs fall often) and if we feel the heavy burden thereof to press our souls tormenting us with the fear of Death, Hell, and Damnation; let us then use that means which GOD hath appointed in his Word, to wit, the mean of Faith, which is the only instrument of salvation now left unto us. Let us steadily behold Christ crucified, with the eyes of our heart. Let us only trust to be saved by his Death and Passion, and to have our sins cleansed away through his most precious blood, that in the end of the World, when he shall come again to judge both the quick and the dead, he may receive us into his heavenly Kingdom, and place us in the number of his Elect and chosen People, there to be partakers of that immortal and everlasting life, which he hath purchased unto us by virtue of his bloody wounds: To him therefore, with the Father, and the Holy Ghost, be all honour and glory, world without end. Amen.
of our Saviour JESUS CHRIST.

For Easter Day.

1 Cor. 15.

Fever at any time the greatness or excellency of any matter spiritual or temporal, hath stirred up your minds to give diligent ear (good Christian People, and Well-beloved in our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ) I doubt not but that I shall have you now at this present season, most diligent and ready hearers of the matter which I have at this time to open unto you. For I come to declare that great and most comfortable Article of our Christian Religion and Faith, the Resurrection of our Lord Jesus. So great surely is the matter of this Article, and of so great weight and importance, that it was thought worthy to keep our Saviour still on Earth forty days after he was risen from death to life, to the confirmation and establishment thereof in the hearts of his Disciples. So that (as Luke clearly tellitheth in the first Chapter of the Acts of the Apostles) he was convocant with his Disciples by the space of forty days continually together, to the intent he would in his person, being now glorified, teach and instruct them, which should be the teachers of other, fully and in most absolute and perfect wise the truth of this most Christian Article, which is the ground and foundation of our whole Religion, before he would ascend up to his Father into the Heavens, there to receive the glory of his most triumphant Conquest and Victour. Assuredly, so highly comfortable is this Article to our Consciences, that it is even the very Lock and Key of all our Christian Religion and Faith. If it were not true (faith the holy Apostle Paul) that Christ rose again, then our preaching were in vain, your faith which which you have received were but void, ye were yet in the danger of your sins. If Christ be not risen again (faith the Apostle) then are they in very evil case, and utterly perish'd, that beleived their sleep in Christ, then are we the most miserable of all men, which have our hope bred in Christ, if he be yet under the power of death, and as yet not delivered to his bliss again. But now he is risen again from death (faith the Apostle Paul) to be the first fruits of them that sleep, to the intent to raise them to everlasting life again: Yea, if it were not true that Christ is risen again, then were it neither true that he ascended up to heaven, nor that he sent down from heaven unto us the Holy Ghost not that he sitth on the right hand of his heavenly Father, having the rule of heaven and earth, reigning (as the Prophet faith) from sea to sea, nor that he should after this World, be the Judge as well of the living as of the dead, to give reward to the good, and judgment to the evil. That these things therefore of our faith should all hang together in edifice establishment and confirmation, it pleased our Saviour not straitway to withdraw himself from the bodily presence and sight of his Disciples, but he chose out forty days, wherein he declared unto them, by manifold and most strong arguments and tokens, that he had conquered Death, and that he was also truly risen again to life. He began (faith Luke) at Moses and all the Prophets, and expounded unto them the Prophesies that were written in all the Scriptures of him, to the intent to confirm the truth of his Resurrection, long before spoken of, which he verified indeed as it is declared very apparently and manifestly, by his first appearance to the Disciples at Sunday times. First, he sent his Angels to the Sepulchre, who did shew unto certain women the empty Sepulchre, saying that the burial linen remained therein. And by these signs were these women fully instructed, that he was risen again, and so did they confess it openly. After this Jesus himself appeared to Mary Magdalene, and after to certain other women, and straight afterward he appeared to Peter, then to the Two Disciples, which were going to Emmaus. He appeared to the Disciples also, as they were gathered together, for fear of the Jews, the very day. At another time he was seen at the Sea of Tiberias of Peter and Thomas, and of other Disciples, when they were fishing. He was seen of more than the hundred brethren in the mount of Galilee, where Jesus appointed them to be by his Angel, when he said, Sehold, he shall go before you into Galilee, there shall ye see him as he hath said unto you. After this he appeared unto James, and last of all he was visibly seen of all the Apostles, at such time as he was taken up into heaven. Thus at Sunday times he shewed himself after he was risen again, to confirm and establish this Article. And in these revelations sometime he shewed them his hands, and his feet, and had them touch him, that they should not take him for a Ghost or a Spirit. Sometime he also did eat with them, but ever he was talking with them of the everlasting Kingdom of God, to allure the truth of his Resurrection. For then he opened their understanding, that they might perceive the Scriptures, and laid unto them, This is written, and thus it behooved Christ to suffer, and to rise from death the third day and that there should be preached openly in his name pardon and remission of sins to all the Nations of the World. For (good Christian people) how necessary this Article of our Faith is, seeing it was proved of Christ himself by such evident reasons and tokens, by so long time and space. Now therefore as our Saviour was diligent for our comfort and instruction to declare it: so let us be as ready in our belief to receive it to our comfort and instruction. As he died not for himself, no more did he rise again for himself. He was dead (faith St. Paul) for our sins, and rose again for our justification. O most comfortable word, evermore to be born in remembrance! He died (faith he) to put away sin, he rose again to endow us with righteousness. His death took away sin and malice, his death was the ransom of them both, his death destroyed death, and overcame the Devil, which had the power of death in his subjection, his death destroyed hell, with all the damnation thereof. Thus is death swallowed up by Christ's victory, thus is hell spoiled for ever. If any man doubt of this history, let Christ's glorious Resurrection declare him the thing. If death could not keep Christ under his dominion and power, but that he arose again, it is manifest that his power was overcome. If Death be conquered, then must it follow that Sin, whereby death was appointed as the wages, must be also destroyed. It death and sin be vanquished away, then is the Devil's tyranny vanquished, which had the power of death, and was the author and creator of sin, and the ruler of hell. If Christ had the victory of them all by the power of his death, and openly proved it by his most victorious and valiant Resurrection (as it was not possible for his great might to be subdued of them) and it is true, that Christ died for our sins, and rose again for our justification: Why may not we, that be his members by true faith, rejoice, and boldly say with the Prophet Hosea and the Apostle Paul, Where is thy dart? O Death; Where is thy victory? O hell: Thanks be unto GOD, say they, which hath given us the victory by our Lord Jesus Christ.

This mighty conquest of his Resurrection, was not only signified before by divers Figures of the Old Testament, as by Samson when he slew the Lion, out of whose mouth came sweetmeats and honey, and as David bare his figure when he delivered the Lamb out of the Lions mouth, and when he overcame and slew the great Giant Goliath, and as when Jonas was swallowed up in the whale's mouth, and cast up again on land alive: but was also most clearly prophesied by the Prophets of the Old Testament, and in the New also confirmed by the Apostles. He bath spoiled, faith St. Paul, rule, and power, and all the dominion of our spiritual enemies. He hath made a shew of them openly, and hath triumphed over them in his own person. This is the mighty power of the Lord, whom ye believe on. By his death hath he wrought for us this history, and by his resurrection hath he purchased everlasting life and righteousness for us. It had not been enough to be delivered by his death from sin, except by his Resurrection we had been endowed with righteousness. And it should not avail us to be delivered from death, except he had risen again, to open for us the gates of heaven, to enter into life everlasting. And therefore St. Peter thanketh GOD the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ for his abundant mercy, because he hath begotten us (faith he) unto a lively hope by the Resurrection of Jesus Christ from death, to enjoy an inheritance immortal, that never shall perish, which is laid up in heaven for them that he kept by the power of GOD through faith. Thus hath his Resurrection wrought for us life and righteousness. He passed through death and hell, to the intent to put us in good hope, that by his strength we shall do the same.
of the Resurrection.

He paid the ransom of Sin, that it should not be laid to our charge. He destroyed the Devil and all his tyranny & openly triumphed over him, and took away from him all his captives and hath raised and set them with himself among the heavenly Citizens above.

Thus it is true that David sung, Veritas de terra orta est, & justitia de caelo propecit. The truth of GODS promise is in earth to man declared, or from the earth is the everlasting Unity of GODS Son risen to life, and the true righteouness of the Holy Ghost looking out of heaven, and in most liberal largess dealt upon all the World. Thus is glory and praise rebounded upwards to GOD above, for his mercy and truth. And thus is peace come down from heaven to men of good and faithful hearts. Thus is mercy and truth, as David writeth, together met, thus is peace and righteouness embaring and killing each other. If thou doubtest of so great wealth and felicity that is voucht for thee, O man, call to the mind that therefore hast thou received into thine own possession the everlasting Unity of our Saviour Jesus Christ, to confirm to thy conscience the truth of all this matter. Thou hast received him, if in true faith and repentance of heart thou hast received him. If in purpose of amendment, thou hast received him for an everlasting gage or pledge of thy salvation. Thou hast received his body which was once broken, and his blood which was shed for the remission of thine sin. Thou hast received his body, to have within thee the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost, to dwell with thee, to endow thee with grace, to strengthen thee against thine enemies and to comfort thee with their presence. Thou hast received his body to endow thee with everlasting righteouness, to allure thee of everlasting bliss, and life of the soul. For with Christ by true Faith art thou quickened again (faith St. Paul) from death of sin, to life of grace and in hope translated from corporal and everlasting death, to the everlasting life of glory in heaven, where now thy conversation should be, and thy heart and desire set. Doubt not of the truth of this matter, how great and high for thee these things be. It becometh GOD to do no small deeds, how impossible soever they seem to thee. Pray to GOD that thou mayst have Faith to perceive this great mystery of Christ's Resurrection: that by Faith thou mayst certainly believe nothing to be impossible with GOD. Only bring thou Faith to Christ's Holy Word and Sacrament. Let thy Repentance draw thy Faith, let thy purpose of amendment and obedience of thy heart to GODS law, hereafter declare thy true belief. Endeavour thyself to say with St. Paul, From henceforth our conversation is in heaven, from whence we look for a Saviour, even the Lord Jesus Christ, which shall change our vile bodies, that they may be fashioned like his glorious body, which he shall do by the same power whereby he arose from death, and whereby he shall be able to subdued all things unto himself. Thus good Christian People (for as much as ye have heard these to great and excellent benefits of Christ's mighty and glorious Resurrection, as how that he hath ransomed Sin, overcome the Devil, Death, and Hell and hath victorious gotten the better hand of them all, to make us free and safe from them, and knowing that we be by this benefit of his Resurrection riven with him by our Faith, unto life everlasting, being in full certainty of our hope, that we shall have our bodies likewise raised again from death, to have them glorified in immortality, and joined to his glorious body, having in the mean while this holy Spirit within our hearts as a seal and pledge of our everlasting inheritance. By whose assistance we are replenished with all righteousness, by whose power we shall be able to subdue all our evil affections, rising against the pleasure of GOD. These things I say, well considered, let us now in the rest of our life declare our Faith that we have in this most fruitful Article, by framing our selves thereby, in rising daily from sin to righteousness and holiness of life. For what shall it avail us (faith St. Peter) to be cleansed and delivered from the filthiness of the world, through the knowledge of the Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, if we be entangled again therewith, and be overcome again? Certainly it had been better (faith be) never to have known the way of righteousness, then after it is known and received, to turn back again from the holy Commandment of GOD given unto us. For to shall the Proverb have place in us, where it is said, The Dog is returned to his vomit again, and the Sow that was washed, to her wallowing in the mire again. What a shame were it for us, being thus so clearly and freely washed from our sin, to return to the filthiness thereof again? What a folly were it, thus endowed with righteousness, to lose it again? What madness were it to lose the inheritance that we be now let in, for the vile and transient pleasure of sin? And what an unkindness would it be, where our Saviour Christ of his mercy is come to us, to dwell with us as our Guest, to drive him from us, and to banish him violently out of our souls, and instead of him in whom is all grace and vertue, to receive the ungracious spirit of the Devil, the founder of all naughtiness and mischief. How can we and in our hearts to their uttermost unkindness to Christ, which hath now so gently called us to mercy, and offered himself unto us, and he now entered within us? Pray, how dare we be so bold to renounce the presence of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost? For where one is, there is GOD all whole in Majesty, together with all his power, wisdom, and goodness and fear not, I say, the danger and peril of so traitorous a defiance and departure: GOD Christian brethren and fathers, advise your selves, consider the dignity that ye be now set in. Let no folly loose the thing that GOD hath so preciously offered and purchased, let not wilfulness and blindness put out of great light that is now shewed unto you. Only take good hearts unto you and put upon you all the Armour of GOD, that ye may stand against your enemies, which would again subdue you, and bring you into their thraldom. Remember ye be bought from your vain conversation, and that your freedom is purchased neither with gold nor silver, but with the price of the precious blood of that innocent Lamb Jesus Christ, which was obtained to the same purpose before the world was made. But he was so declared in the latter time of grace, for your sakes which by him have your Faith in GOD, who hath raised him from death, and hath given him glory, that you should have your faith and hope towards GOD. Therefore as you have hitherto followed the vain lusts of your minds, and so displeased GOD, to the danger of your souls: So now, like obedient children thus purified by Faith, give yourselves to walk that way which GOD moveth you to, that ye may receive the end of your faith, the salvation of your souls. And as ye have given your bodies to unrighteousness, to sin, after

refuse and avoid all such things in your conversations as should offend his eyes of mercy. Endeavour your selves that way to rise up again, when ye fell into the Well or Pit of sin. If by your tongue you have offended, now thereby rise again, and glorifie GOD therewith, accustom it to laud and praise the Name of GOD, as ye have therewith disowned it. And as ye have hurt the name of your Neighbour, or otherwise hindered him, to now intend to restore it to him again.

Psal. 36. Truth it is that sin is strong, and affections untrue. Hard is it to subdue and restrue our nature, to corrupt and leavened with the lower bitterness of the poison which we received by the inheritance of our old Father Adam. But yet take good courage, faith our Saviour Christ, for I have overcome the World, and all other enemies for you. Sin shall not have power over you, for ye be now under grace, faith St. Paul.

Rom. 6. Though your power be weak, yet Christ is risen again to strengthen you in your battel, his holy Spirit shall help your infirmities. In trust of his mercy, take you in hand to purge this old leaven of sin, that corrupteth and loweth the sweetmess of our life before GOD: that ye may be as new and fresh enough, bold of all lower leaven of wickedness; so shall ye let your selves be DWote bread to GOD, that he may have his delight in you. I say, kill and offer you up the worldly and earthly affections of your bodies. For Christ our Easter Lamb is offered up for us, to lay the power of sin, to deliver us from the danger thereof, and to give us example to die to sin in our lives. As the Jews did eat their Easter Lamb and keep their Feast in remembrance of their deliverance out of Egypt: Even so let us keep our Easter Feast in the thankful remembrance of Christ's benefits, which he hath plentifully wrought for us by his Resurrection and passing to his Father, whereby we are delivered from the captivity and slavish of all our enemies. Let us in like manner pass over the afflictions of our old conversation, that we may be delivered from the bondage thereof, and rise with Christ. The Jews kept their Feast in abasing from leavened bread, by the space of seven days. Let us Christian folk keep our Holy Day in spiritual maner; that is, in abasing, not from material leavened bread, but from the old leaven of sin, the leaven of maliginousness and wickedness.

Let us cast from us the leaven of corrupt doctrine, that will infect our souls. Let us keep our Feast the whole term of our life, with eating the bread of pureness of godly life and truth of Christ's doctrine. Thus shall we declare that Christ's gifts and graces have their effect in us, and that we have the right belief and knowledge of his holy Resurrection: where truly if we apply our Faith to the virtue thereof in our life, and conform us to the example and signification meant thereby, we shall be sure to rise hereafter to everlasting glory by the goodness and mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ: To whom with the Father and the Holy Ghos, be all glory, thanksgiving, and praise, in infinita seculorum secula.

Worthy Receiving and Reverend Esteeming of the Sacrament of the Body and Blood of Christ.

He great love of our Saviour Christ towards mankind (God's Christian People) doth not only appear in that dear-bought benefit of our Redemption and Salvation by his Death and Passion, but also in that he so tenderly provided, that the same most merciful Work might be had in continual remembrance, to take some place in us, and not be frustrate of his end and purpose.
For as tender Parents are not content to procur[e] for their Children costly Possessions and Livelihood, but take order that the same may be conserved and come to their use: So our Lord and Saviour thought it not sufficient to purchase for us his Fathers Labour again (which is that deep Fountain of all goodnes[s] and eternal life) but also invented the ways most wisely, whereby they might redound to our commodity and profit. Amongst the which means, is the publice celebation of the memory of his precious Death, at the Lords Table.
Which although it seem of small vertue to some, yet being rightly done by the Faithful, it doth not only help their weakness (who be by their poisoned Nature reader to remember injuries than benefits) but strengthetheneth and comforteth their inward man with peace and gladness, and maketh them thankful to their Redeemer, with diligent care and godly conversation. And as of old time GOD decreed his wondrous benefits of the deliverance of his People, to be kept in memory by the eating of the Passover, with his Rites and Ceremonies: So our loving Savior hath ordained and established the remembrance of his great mercy expelled in his Passion, in the institution of his heavenly Supper, where every one of us must be his Guess and not Gazers, Eaters and not Lookers: feeding our selves, and not hiring others to feed for us, that we may like by our own meat, and not to perish for hunger, whiles other devour all. To this, his Commandment forseth us, saying, Do ye this, drink ye all of this. To this his Promise entirely, This is my Body which is given for you, this is my Blood which is shed for you.

Exod. 12.

1 Cor. 11.

So
So then of necessity we must be ourselves partakers of this Table, and not beholders of other: So we must address our selves to frequent the same in reverent and comely manner, lest as physic provoked for the body, being misused, more hurteth than profisseth: so this comfortable medicine of the soul unедercently received, tendeth to our greater harm and loss. And so Paul saith, He that eateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh his own damnation. Wherefore, that it be not said to us, as it was to the guest of that great Supper, Friend, how camest thou in, not having the marriage garment? And that we may fruitfully use St. Paul's counsel. Let a man prove himself, and to eat of that bread, and drink of that cup: We must certainly know, that three things be requisite in him which would feastly, as becomest such high Mysteries, referst to the Lord's Table. That is, First a right and worthy illumination and understanding of this Mystery. Secondly, to come in a sure Faith. And thirdly, to have neadiess or pureness of life to succeed the receiving of the same. But before all other things, this we must be sure of especially, that this Supper be in such wise done and ministred, as our Lord and Saviour bid and commanded to be done, as his holy Apostles used it, and the good Fathers in the Primitive Church frequented it. For (as that worthy man St. Ambrose faileth) he is unworthy of the Lord, that otherwise doth celebrate that Mystery, than it was delivered by him. Neither can he be devout, that otherwise both presume then it was given by the author. We must then take heed, lest of the memory, it be made a sacrifice, lest of a communion, it be made a private eating: lest of two parts, we have but one: lest applying it for the dead, we lose the fruit that be alive. Let us rather in these matters follow the advice of Cyprian in the like cases, that is, cleave fast to the first beginning, hold fast the Lord's tradition, do that in the Lord's commemoration which he himself bid, he himself commanded, and his Apostles confirmed. This caution or foresight if we use, then may we see these things that be requisite in the worthy receiver, of hereof this was the first, that we have a right understanding of the thing it self. As concerning which thing, this we may allurely persuade our selves, that the ignorant man can neither worthily esteem nor effectually use those marvellous graces and benefits offered and exhibited in that Supper: but either will lightly regard them, to no small offence, or utterly condemn them, to his utter destruction. So that by his negligence he deserveth the plagues of God to fall upon him, and by contempt he deserveth everlasting perdition. To avoid then these harms, use the advice of the wise man, who willeth the wise to shew thee at an earthly King's Table, to take diligent heed what things are set before thee. So now much more at the King of Kings Table, thou must carefully search and know what dainties are provided for thy soul, whether thou art come, not to feed thy senses and belly to corruption, but thy inward man to immortality and life, not to consider the earthly creatures which thou seest, but the heavenly graces which thy Faith beholdest. For this Table is not (as Chrysostom) for chattering Japs, but for Eagles, who see thither where the dead body lieth. And if this advertisement of man cannot persuade us to return to the Lord's Table with understanding, see the counsel of God in the like matter, who charged his People to teach their posterity, not only the Rites and Ceremonies of the Palseover, but the cause and end thereof:
concerning the Sacrament.

thereof: Whence we may learn, that both more perfect knowledge is required at this time at our hands, and that the ignorant cannot with fruit and profit, exercise himself in the Lord's Sacraments.

But to come nearer to the matter: St. Paul blaming the Corinthians for the prophaneing of the Lord's Supper, concluded that ignorance both of the thing it self, and the signification thereof, was the cause of their abuse: for they came thereto unheeding, not discerning the Lord's Body. Doubt not we then by the motion of the Wise man, by the wisdom of God, by the fearful example of the Corinthians, to take advised heed, that we thrust not our selves to this Table with rude and unheeding ignorance, theSmart whereof Christ's Church hath cured and lamented there many days and years: For what hath been the cause of the ruin of God's Religion, but the ignorance thereof? What hath been the cause of this gross idolatry, but the ignorance thereof? What hath been the cause of this mummish babbling, but the ignorance thereof? Pray, what hath been, and what is at this day the cause of this want of love and charity, but the ignorance thereof? Let us therefore to travel to understand the Lord's Supper, that we be no cause of the decay of God's Worship, of no idolatry, of no dumb babbling, of no hate and malice: So may we the soldier have access thereto with comfort. Neither need we to think that such exact knowledge is required of every man, that he be able to discuss all high points in the doctrine thereof: But thus much we must be fure to hold, that in the Supper of the Lord there is no vain Ceremony, no bare sign, no untrue figure of a thing absent: But (as the Scripture saith) the Table of the Lord, the Bread and Cup of the Lord, the memory of Christ, the Annunciation of his death, pray, the Communion of the Body and Blood of the Lord, in a marvellous incorporation, by which the operation of the Holy Ghost (the very bond of our communion with Christ) is through Faith wrought in the souls of the faithful, whereby not only their souls live to eternal life, but they surely trust to win their bodies a resurrection to immortality. The true understanding of this: fruition and union, which is betwixt the Body and the Head between the true Believers and Christ, the ancient Catholics fathers both perceiving themselves, and commending to their people, were not afraid to call this Supper: some of them, the Salve of Immortality and Sovereign Preservative against Death; other a visible Communion: other, the sweet dainties of our Saviour; the pledge of eternal health, the defence of Faith, the hope of the Resurrection: other, the food of Immortality, the healthful Grace, and the Confirmatory to everlasting life. All which sayings both of the holy Scripture and godly men, truly attributed to this celestial Banquet and Feast, if we would often call to mind. O how would they inflame our hearts to desire the participation of these Mysteries, and oftentimes to covet after this bread, continually to thirst for this feast? Not as especially regarding the terrestrial and earthly Creatures which remain: but always holding fast, and cleaving by Faith to the Rock whence we may suck the sweetness of everlasting salvation? And to be brief, thus much more the Faithful see, bear, and know the favourable mercies of God sealed, the satisfaction by Christ towards us confirmed, and the remission of sin established. Here they may feel the strength of Ourselves, the increse of Faith, the strengthening of Hope, the large spreading abroad of brotherly kindness, with many other kindy graces of God.
The Second Part of the Sermon

The table whereof they cannot attain unto, who be drowned in the deep diuety lake of blindness and ignorance. From the which [Beloved] wast thou luced with the living Waters of GODS Word, whereto you may perceive and know, both the spiritual food of this costly Supper, and the happy fruitions and effects that the same doth bring with it.

Now it followeth to have with this knowledge a sure and constant faith, not only that the death of Christ is available for the redemption of all the World, for the remission of sins, and reconciliation with GOD the Father; but also that he hath made upon his Cross a full and sufficient Sacrifice for thee, a perfect cleansing of thy sins, so that thou acknowledgest no other Savior, Redeemer, Mediator, Advocate, Intercessor, but Christ only, and that thou mayest lay with the Apostle, that he loved thee, and gave himself for thee. For this is to stick fail to Christ's promise made in his Institution to make Christ thine own, and to apply his merits unto thy self. Herein thou needst no other mans help, no other Sacrifice or Oblation, no sacrificing Priest, no Vassal, no means established by mans invention. That faith is necessary instrument in all these holy Ceremonies, we may thus allure our selves, for that as St. Paul saith [in the Augustine] the visible meat Spiritually. Spiritually they dined, it Spiritually they feasted, that they might be spiritually satisfied. And truly as the bodily meat cannot feed the outward man, unless it be let into a stomack to be digested which is healthsome and sound: no more can the inward man be fed, except his meat be received into his soul and heart, found and whole in Faith. Therefore [Faith Cyprian] when we do these things, we need not to what our teeth, but with sincere Faith we break and divide that whole bread. It is well known that the meat we seek for in this Supper is spiritual food, the nourishment of our soul, a heavenly refection, and not earthly, an invisible meat, and not bodily, a gloryable and not carnal, so that to think that without Faith we may enjoy the eating and drinking thereof, or that that is the fruition of it, is but to dream a gods carnal feeding, basely objecting and bindeth our selves to the Elements and Creatures. Whereas by the advice of the Council of Nicene, we ought to lift up our minds by Faith, and leaving these inferior and earthly things, there seek it, where the Sun of righteousness ever shineth. Take then this Lesson [Do thou that art destros of this Table] of Emittance a godly Father, that when thou goest up to the revereend Communion to be satisfied with Spiritual meats, thou look up with Faith upon the holy Body and Blood of thy GOD, thou marvel with reverence, thou touch it with the mind, thou receive it with the hand of thy heart, and thou take it fully with thy inward man.

Thus we see [Beloved] that relating to this Table, we must pluck up all the roots of infidelity, all distrust in GODS promises, that we make our selves living members of Christ's Body. For the unbelievers and faithless cannot feed upon that precious body: whereas the faithful have their life, their abiding in him; their union, and as it were their incorporation with him. Therefore let us prove and try our selves unfriendly, without flattering our selves, whether we be plants of the fruitful.
Concerning the Sacrament.

Fruitful Olive, living branches of the true vine, members indeed of Christ's mystical Body, whether God hath purged our hearts by faith, to the sincere acknowledging of his Gospel, and embracing of his merits in Christ Jesus, so that at this his Table we receive not only the outward Sacrament, but the spiritual thing also: not the figure, but the reality: not the shadow only, but the body: not to death but to life: not to destruction, but to salvation: which God grant us to do through the merits of our Lord and Saviour: To whom be all honour and glory for ever. Amen.

The Second Part of the Homily

Of the Worthy Receiving and Reverent Esteeming of the Sacrament of the Body and Blood of Christ.

In the homily of late rehearsed unto you, ye have heard (good people) why it pleased our Saviour Christ to institute that heavenly memory of his Death and Passion, and that every one of us ought to celebrate the same at his Table, in our own persons and not by other. You have heard also with what estimation and knowledge of so high mysteries, we ought to recite thither. You have heard with what constant faith we should cloath and deck our selves, that we might be fit and decent partakers of that Celestial Food.

Now followeth the third thing necessary in him that would not eat of this bread, nor drink of this cup unworthily, which is, newness of life, and godliness of conversation. For newness of life, as fruits of faith are required in the partakers of this Table. We may learn by eating of the Typical Lamb, whereto no man was admitted, but he that was a Jew, that was circumcised, that was before sanctified. (Ps. St. Paul) testifieth, that although the people were partakers of the Sacraments under Moses, yet to that same none were still Worshippers of Images, Whoremongers, Tempters of Christ, Bureaucrasies, and coveting after evil things: God overthrew those in the wilderness, and that for our example; that is, that we Christians should take heed we rest not unto our Sacraments with holiness of life, not trusting in the outward receiving of them, and infected with corrupt and undutiful manners. For this sentence of God must always be justified: I will have mercy and not sacrifice. Therefore (faith shall) it behoveth him that cometh to the Body and Blood of Christ, in commemoration of him that died and rose again, not only to be pure from all sinfulness of the Flesh and Spirit, lest he eat and drink his own condemnation: but also to shew out evidently, a memory of him that died and rose again.

for us, in this point, that ye be mortified to Sin and the World to live now to GOD in Christ Jesus our Lord. So then we must shew outward testimony, in following the signification of Christ's Death among the which this is not esteemed small, to render thanks to Almighty GOD for all his benefits, briefly comprised in the Death, Passion, and Resurrection of his dearly beloved Son. The which thing, because we ought chiefly at this Table to solemnize, the godly Fathers named it Eucharis, that is thanksgiving. As if they should have said, Now above all other times ye ought to laud and praise GOD. Now may ye behold the matter, the cause, the beginning and the end of all thanksgivings. Now if you lack, ye show your selves most unthankful, and that no other benefit can ever be then you to thank GOD, who so little regard here so many, so wonderfull, and so profitable benefits. Seeing then that the name and thing it fell both monit us of thanks, let us (as St. Paul saith) offer always to GOD the holiest sacrifice of praise by Christ, that is, the fruit of the lips which confess his Name. For as David sings, let that offered to GOD thanks and praise, and honor thee him. But how few be there of thankful persons, in comparison to the unthankful: So ten Lepers in the Gospel were heal'd, and but one only returned to give thanks for his health. Pea, happy it were, if among forty Communicants we could see two unfeignedly give thanks. So unkind we be, so oblivious we be, so proud Beggers we be, that partly we care not for our own commodity, partly we know not our duty to GOD, and chiefly we will not confess all that we receiv. Pea, and if we be forced by GODS povert to do it: yet we handle it so coldly, so dryly, that our lips praise him, but our hearts dispraise him, our tongues blest him, but our life curseth him. our words worship him, but our works dishonor him. So let us therefore learn to give GOD here thanks at night, and so to aggravate excelling graces pour'd upon us, that they being shut up in the Treasure-house of our hearts may in due time and season in our life and conversation, appear to the glorifying of his holy Name.

Furthermore, for newness of Life, it is to be noted that St. Paul writeth: that we being many are one bread and one body: For all be partakers of one bread. Declaring thereby not only our Communion with Christ, but that unity also, wherein they that eat at this Table, should be knit together. For by Dissension, Cain glory, Ambition, Strife, Envying, Contempt, Hatred, or Malice, they should not be dis-covered: but so joined by the bond of love, in one mystical Body, as the Coals of that Bread in one Loaf. In respect of which straw knot of Charity, the true Christians in the Primitive Church, called this Supper. Love. As if they should say, none ought to sit down there that were out of love and charity, who bear grudge and vengeance in his heart, who also did not profess his kind affection by some charitable relief for some part of the Congregation. And this was their practice. O heavenly Banquet then so used! O godly Guests, who so esteemed this Feast!

But Wretched Creatures that we be at these days, who so without reconciliation of our brethren whom we have offended, without satisfying them whom we have caused to fall, without any kind of thought or compassion toward them whom we might easily relieve, without any conscience of Slander, Dishonesty, Disreport, Division, Rancor, or inward bitter-bitterness. Pea, being accompanied with the cloaked hatred of Cain, with the long colored malice of Eliau, with the dulled hatred of Job, dare ye presume to come up to these sacred and fearful mysteries? O man, whether ruthless thou unabasedly? It is a Table of peace, and thou art ready to fight. It is a Table of singleness, and thou art imagining mischief. It is a Table of quietness, and thou art given to debate. It is a Table of pity, and thou art unmerciful. Dost thou neither fear God the maker of this Table, nor reverence His Christ, the rejection and meat, nor regardeth His spouse his well-beloved guest, nor weighteth thine own conscience, which is sometime thine inward accuser? Therefore (O man) tender thine own salvation, examine and try thy good will and love towards the children of God, the members of Christ, the heirs of the heavenly inheritance: yea, towards the image of God, the excellent creature thine own soul. If thou hast offended, now be reconciled. If thou hast caused any to stumble in the way of God, now set them up again. If thou hast disquieted thy brother, now pacify him. If thou hast wronged him, now relieve him. If thou hast defrauded him, now return to him. If thou hast nourished spite, now embrace friendship. If thou hast fostered hatred and malice, now openly show thy love and charity, yea be ready and ready to procure thy neighbors health of soul, wealth, commoditie, and pleasures, as thine own. Deserve not the heavy and dreadful burthen of Goddis displeasure for thine evil will towards thy neighbor, so unrelentingly to approach to this Table of the Lord. Last of all, as there is here the mystery of peace, and the Sacrament of Christian Society, whereby we understand what sincere love ought to be betwixt the true Communicants: So here be the tokens of purity and innocency of life, whereby we may perceive that we ought to purge our own soul from all uncleannesses, iniquity and wickedness left when we receive the mystical bread (as Origen saith) we eat it in an unclean place, that is, in a foule defiled and polluted with sin. In Moses Law, the man that did eat of the sacrifice of thanksgiving with his uncleannesses upon him, should be destroyed from his people. And shall we think that the wicked and sinful person shall be receivable at the Table of the Lord? We both read in St. Paul, that the Church of Corinth was scourged of the Lord, for misusing the Lords Supper, and we may plainly see Christ's Church these many years miserably vexed and oppriessed for the horrible profanation of the same. Wherefore let us all universal and singular, behold our own manners and lives, to amend them. Yea now at the least let us call our selves to an account, that it may grieve us of our former evil conversation, that we may hate sin, that we may sorrow and mourn for our offences, that we may with tears pour them out before God, that we may with pure heart desire and crave the value of his mercy, bought and purchased with the blood of his dearly beloved Son Jesus Christ, to heal our deadly wounds withall. For surely, if we do not with earnest repentance cleanse the filthy smother of our soul, it must needs come to pats, that as wholesome meat received into a raving stomack corrupted and marr'd all, it is the cause of further sicknesses: So shall we eat this wholesome bread and drink this cup to our eternal destruction. Thus we and not other, must sorrowfully examine, and not lightly look over our selves, not other mens, our own conscience, not other mens lives: which we ought to do uprightly, truly, and with just correction. O (faith Chry-Chrysostom) let no Judas resort to this Table, let no covetous person approach. If any be a Disciple, let him be present. For Christ saith, with my Disciples I make my Pasover. Why cried the Deacon in the Primitive Church, If any be holy, let him draw near? Why did they celebrate these Mysteries, the Quire door being shut? Why were the publick Penitents and Learners in Religion commanded at this time to avoid? Was it not because this Table received no unholy, unclean or unthankful guests? Wherefore if Servants dare not to presume to an earthly Masters Table, whom they have offended, let us take heed we come not with our sins unexamined into this presence of our Lord and Judge. If they be worthy blame which kills the Princes hand with a filthy and unclean mouth, shall thou be blameless which with a stinking soul, full of Covetousness, Fornication, Drunkenness, Pride, full of wretched cogitations and thoughts, dost breathe out iniquity and uncleanliness on the Bread and Cup of the Lord?

Thus have you heard, how you should come reverently and decently to the Table of the Lord, having the knowledge out of his Word, of the thing it self, and the fruits thereof, bringing a true and constant Faith, the root and Well-spring of all rectness of life, as well in praising GOD and loving our Neighbour, as purging our own Conscience from filthines. So that neither the ignorance of the thing shall cause us to complain it, nor unfaithfulness make us void of fruit, nor the and iniquity procure us GOD's plagues: but shall by Faith, in knowledge and amendment of life in Faith be here to united to Christ our Head in his Mysteries, to our comfort, that after we shall have full fruition of him indeed, to our everlasting joy and eternal life: To the which he bring us that died for us and redeemed us. Jesus Christ the righteous, to whom with the Father and the holy Ghost, one true and eternal GOD, be all praise, honour, and dominion, for ever. Amen.
The Coming down of the Holy Ghost;
And the manifold Gifts of the same.

For Whitsunday.

EFORE we come to the declaration of the great and manifold gifts of the Holy Ghost, wherewith the Church of God hath been evermore replenished, it shall first be needful briefly to expound unto you, whereof this Feast of Pentecost or Whitsuntide had its first beginning. You shall therefore understand, that the Feast of Pentecost, was always kept the fiftieth day after Easter, a great and solemn Feast among the Jews, wherein they did celebrate the memorial of their deliverance out of Egypt, and also the memorial of the publishing of the Law, which was given unto them in the Mount Sinai, upon that day. It was first ordained and commanded to be kept holy, not by any mortal man, but by the mouth of the Lord himself, as we read in Levit. 23. and Deut. 16. The place appointed for the observation thereof, was Hierusalem, where was great recourse of People from all parts of the World; as may well appear in the second Chapter of the Acts, wherein mention is made of Parthians, Medes, Elamites, Inhabiters of Mesopotamia, Inhabiters of Judæa, Cappadocia, Pontus, Asia, Phrygia, Pamphilia, and divers other such places, whereby we may also partly gather, what great and royal solemnity was commonly used in that Feast. Now as this was given in commandment to the Jews in the Old Law, so did our Saviour Christ, as it were, confirm the same in the time of the Gospel, ordaining (after a sort) a new Pentecost for his Disciples, namely, when he sent down the Holy Ghost visibly in form of cloven Tongues like fire, and gave them power to speak in such sort, that every one might hear them, and also understand them in his own Language. Which miracle, that it might be had in perpetual remembrance, the Church hath thought good to solemnize and and keep holy this day, commonly called Whitunday. And here is to be noted, that as the Law was given to the Jews in the Mount Sinai, the sabbath day after Easter; so was the preaching of the Gospel, through the mighty power of the Holy Ghost, given to the Apostles in the Mount Sinai, the sabbath day after Easter.

And hereof this Feast hath his name, to be called Pentecost, even of the number of the days. For as (St. Luke writeth in the Acts of the Apostles) when fifty days were come to an end, the Disciples being all together with one accord in one place, the Holy Ghost came suddenly among them, and sat upon each of them, like as it had been Cloven Tongues of fire. Which thing was undoubtedlie done, to teach the Apostles, and all other men, that it is by which good eloquence and utterance in preaching the Gospel, that it is by which openeth the mouth to declare the mighty works of God, that it is by which engendereth a burning zeal towards God's Word, and giveth all men a tongue, or a very tongue, so that they may boldly and cheerfully profess the truth in the face of the whole World, as Isaiah was indured with this Spirit. The Lord (faith Isaiah) giveth me a learned and a skilful tongue, so that I may know to raise up them that are fallen with the Word. The prophet David crieth to have this gift, saying, Open thou my lips, O Lord, and my mouth shall they forth thy praise. For our Saviour Christ also in the Gospel saith to his Disciples, It is not you that speak, but the Spirit of your Father which is in you. All which testimonies of holy Scripture, do sufficiently declare that the mystery in the Tongues, betokeneth the preaching of the Gospel, and the open confession of the Christian Faith, in all them that are possesed with the Holy Ghost. So that if any man be a dumb Christian, not professing his Faith openly, but cloaking and colouring himself for fear of danger in time to come, he giveth men occasion, guilty, and with good conscience to doubt, lest he have not the grace of the Holy Ghost within him, because he is tongueless, and both not speak. Thus then have ye heard the first institution of this Feast of Pentecost on Whitunday, as well in the Old Law, among the Jews, as also in the time of the Gospel among the Christians.

Now let us consider what the Holy Ghost is, and how consequently he worketh his miraculous works towards mankind. The Holy Ghost is a spiritual and divine substance, the third person in the Deity, distinct from the Father and the Son, and yet proceeding from them both: which thing to be true, both the Creed of Athanasius heardeth witnesses, and may be also easily proved by most plain testimonies of God's holy Word. When Christ was baptized of John in the River Jordan, we read that the Holy Ghost came down in form of a Dove, and that the Father thundered from Heaven, saying, This is my dear and wellbeloved Son, in whom I am well pleased. Where note three divers and distinct persons, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost, which all notwithstanding are not three God's, but one God. Likewise, when Christ did first institute and ordain the Sacrament of Baptism, he sent his Disciples into the whole World, willing them to baptize all nations, in the Name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost. And in another place he saith: I will pray unto my Father, and he shall give you another Comforter. Again, when the Comforter shall come, whom I will send from my Father, &c. These and such other places of the New Testament, do so plainly and evidently confirm the distinction of
of the Holy Ghost from the other persons in the Trinity, that no man possibly can doubt thereof, unless he will blaspheme the everlasting truth of GOD's Word. As for his proper nature and subsistence, it is altogether one with GOD the Father, and GOD the Son, that is to say, Spiritual, Eternal, Uncreated, Incorruptible, Almighty, to be short, he is even GOD and Lord everlasting. Therefore he is called the Spirit of the Father, therefore he is said to proceed from the Father and the Son, and therefore he was equally joined with them in the Commission that the Apostles had to baptize all Nations. But that this may appear more sensible to the eyes of all men, it shall be requisite to come to the other part, namely to the wonderful and heavenly works of the Holy Ghost, which plainly declare unto the World his mighty and divine power. First it is evident, that he did wonderfully govern and direct the hearts of the Patriarchs and Prophets in old time, illuminating their minds with the knowledge of the true Messiah, and giving them utterance to prophesy of things that should come to pass long time after. For as St. Peter witnesseth, the prophesy came not in old time by the will of man: But the holy men of GOD spake as they were moved inwardly by the Holy Ghost. And of Zachary the high Priest it is said in the Gospel, that he being full of the Holy Ghost, prophesied and praised GOD. So did also James, Anna, Mary, and divers other, to the great wonder and admiration of all men. Moreover, was not the Holy Ghost a mighty worker in the Conception and the Nativity of Christ? our Saviour? Saint Matthew saith, that the blessed Virgin was found with child of the Holy Ghost, before Joseph and the came together. And the angel Gabriel did expressly tell her, that it should come to pass saying: The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee, and the power of the Most High shall overtake thee. A marvellous matter, that a woman should conceive, and bear a child without the knowledge of man. But where the Holy Ghost worketh there nothing is impossible, as may further also appear by the inward regeneration and sanctification of mankind. When Christ said to Nicodemus, unless a man be born anew of water and the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of GOD; he was greatly amazed in his mind, and began to reason with Christ, demanding how a man might be born which was old? Can he enter (faith) into his mothers womb again, and be born anew? Behold a lively pattern of a fleshly and carnal man. He had little or no intelligence of the Holy Ghost, and therefore he goeth bluntly to work, and asketh how this thing were possible to be true. Whereas otherwise if he had known the great power of the Holy Ghost in this behalf, that it is he which inwardly worketh the regeneration and new birth of mankind, he would never have marvelled at Christ's words, but would rather take occasion thereby to praise and glorify GOD. For as there are three several and sundry persons in the Deity; so have they three several and sundry offices proper unto each of them. The Father to create, the Son to redeem, the Holy Ghost to sanctify and regenerate. Whereas of the last, the more it is hid from our understanding, the more it ought to move all men to wonder at the secret and mighty working of GOD's holy Spirit, which is within us. For it is the Holy Ghost, and no other thing, that both quicken the minds of men, stirring up good and godly motions in their hearts, which are agreeable to the will and commandment of GOD, such as otherwise of their own crooked and pervertèd nature they should never have. That which is born of the Spirit is Spirit. As who should say, Han of his own nature is fleshly and carnal, corrupt and naughty, unholy and disobedient to GOD, without any spark of goodnes in him, without any virtuous or godly motion, only given to evil thoughts and wicked deeds. As for the works of the Spirit, the fruits of Faith, charitable and godly motions, if he have any at all in him, they proceed only of the Holy Ghost, who is the only worker of our sanctification, and make us new men in Christ Jesus. Did not the Holy Spirit miraculously work in the child David, when of a poor Shepherd, he became a Princely Prophet? Did not the Holy Spirit miraculously work in Matthew, sitting at the receipt of Tullom, when of a proud Publican, he became an humble and lowly Evangelist? And who can choose but marvel to consider, that Peter should become of a simple Fisher, a chief and mighty Apostle? Paul of a cruel and bloody persecutor, a faithful Disciple of Christ, to teach the Gentiles. Such is the power of the Holy Ghost, to regenerate men, and as it were to bring them forth anew, so that they shall be nothing like the men that they were before. Neither doth he think it sufficient inwardly to work the spiritual and new birth of man, unless he do also dwell and abide in him. Know ye not (saith St. Paul) that ye are the Temple of GOD, and that his Spirit dwelleth in you? Know ye not that your bodies are the Temples of the Holy Ghost, which is within you? Again he saith, You are not in the flesh, but in the Spirit. For why? The Spirit of GOD dwelleth in you. To this agree the doctrine of St. John, writing on this wise, The anointing which ye have received (he meaneth the Holy Ghost) dwelleth in you. And the doctrine of Peter, the same, who hath these words: The Spirit of glory, and of GOD, resteth upon you. O what comfort is this to the heart of a true Christian, to think that the Holy Ghost dwelleth within him? Yea, he is with us (as the Apostle saith) who can be against us? O how shall I know that the Holy Ghost is within me? Some man perchance will say, Forsooth as the tree is known by his fruit, so also is the Holy Ghost. The fruits of the Holy Ghost (according to the mind of St. Paul) are these: Love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faithfulness, meekness, temperance, etc. Contrariwise, the deeds of the flesh are these: Adultery, fornication, uncleanness, lasciviousness, idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, contentions, jealousies, strifes, lusts, envy, murdery, drunkenness, so like.

Here is now that glass, wherein thou must behold thy self, and discern whether thou hast the Holy Ghost within thee, or the Spirit of the flesh. If thou see that thy works be virtuous and good, consonant to the precept rule of GOD's Word, favouring and tarrying not of the flesh, but of the Spirit, then assure thy self that thou art endued with the Holy Ghost: Otherwise in thinking well of thy self, thou dost nothing else but deceive thy self. The Holy Ghost doth always declare himself by his fruitful and gracious gifts, namely, by the word of Wisdom, by the word of Knowledge, which is the understanding of the Scriptures by faith, in doing of miracles, by healing them that are diseased, by prophecy, which is the declaration of GOD's mysteries, by discerning of Spirits, diversities of Tongues, interpretation of Tongues, and so forth. All which gifts as they proceed from our Spirit, and are severally given to man according to the measurable distribution of the poly for Whitunday.

Holy Ghost: Even so do they bring men, and not without good cause into a wonderful admiration of God's divine power. Who will not marvel at that which is written in the Acts of the Apostles, to bear their bold confession before the Council at Jerusalem? And to consider that they went away with joy and gladness, rejoicing that they were counted worthy to suffer rebukes and deaths for the Name and Faith of Christ Jesus? This was the mighty work of the Holy Ghost, who because he giveth patience and joyfulness of heart in temptation and affliction, hath therefore worthily obtained this name in holy Scripture, to be called a Comforter. Who will not also marvel to read the learned and heavenly Sermons of Peter, and the Disciples, considering that they were never brought up in School of Learning, but called even from their Pews, to supply counsels of Apostles? This was likewise the mighty work of the Holy Ghost, who because he doth instruct the hearts of the simple in the true knowledge of God and his Word, is most justly termed by this name and title, to be the Spirit of Truth. Eusebius in his Ecclesiastical History, calleth a strange story of a certain learned and subtle Philosopher, who being an extreme adversary to Christ and his Doctrine, could by no kind of Learning be converted to the Faith, but was able to withstand all the arguments that could be brought against him, with little or no labour. At length there stood up a poor simple man of small wit and less knowledge, one that was reputed among the Learned as an Idiot: And he on God's name would needs take in hand to dispute with this proud Philosopher. The Bishops and other learned men standing by, were marvellously abashed at the matter, thinking that by his doings they should be all confounded and put to open shame. He notwithstanding went on, and beginning in the Name of the Lord Jesus, brought the Philosopher to such point in the end, contrary to all men's expectation, that he could not dispute but acknowledge the power of God in his Words, and to give place to the truth. Was not this a miraculous work, that one silly soul of no learning, should do that which many Bishops of great knowledge and understanding were never able to bring to pass? So true is the saying of Bede: Here the Holy Ghost both instruct and teach, there is no delay at all in Learning. Much more might here be spoken of the manifold gifts and graces of the Holy Ghost, most excellent and wonderful in our eyes, but to make a long discourse through all, the shortness of time will not serve. And seeing ye have heard the discourse, ye may easily conceive and judge of the rest. Now were it expedient to discourse this question: whether all they which boast and brag that they have the Holy Ghost, do truly challenge this unto themselves: or no? Which doubt, because it is necessary and profitable, shall (God willing) be dissolvd in the next part of this homily. In the mean season, let us (as we are most bound) give hearty thanks to God the Father, and his Son Jesus Christ, for sending down his Comforter into the World, humbly bequeathing him to all men by the power of this holy Spirit, that we being regenerate and newly born again in all goodness, righteousness, holiness, and truth, may in the end be made partakers of everlasting life in his heavenly kingdom, through Jesus Christ our Lord and Saviour. Amen.

The
The Second Part of the Homily Concerning the Holy Ghost, Dissolving this Doubt: Whether all men rightly challenge to themselves the Holy Ghost, or no.

John 14, 15.

Our Saviour Christ departing out of the world unto his Father, promised his Disciples to send down another Comforter, that should continue with them for ever, and direct them into all truth. Which thing to be faithfully and truly performed, the Scriptures do sufficiently bear witness. Neither must we think that this Comforter was either promised, or else given, only to the Apostles, but also to the Universal Church of Christ, dispersed through the whole world. For unless the holy Ghost had been always present, governing and preserving the Church from the beginning, it could never have sustained so many and great bursts of affliction and persecution, with so little damage and harm as it hath. And the words of Christ are most plain in this behalf, saying, that the Spirit of truth shall abide with them for ever, that he would be with them always (he meaneth by grace, virtue, and power) even to the world's end.

Also in the prayer that he made to his Father a little before his death, he maketh intercession, not only for himself and his Apostles, but indifferently for all them that should believe in him through their words, that is to wit, for his whole Church. Again, St. Paul saith: If any man have not the Spirit of Christ, the same is not his. Also in the words following, we have received the Spirit of adoption, whereby we cry Abba, Father. Hereby then it is evident and plain to all men, that the Holy Ghost was given, not only to the Apostles, but also to the whole body of Christ's Congregation, although not in like form and majesty as he came down at the Feast of Pentecost. But now herein standeth the controversy: Whether all men do justly arrogate to themselves the Holy Ghost? No: The Bishops of Rome have for a long time made a sore challenge thereunto, reasoning for themselves after this sort. The Holy Ghost (say they) was promised to the Church and never forsaketh the Church. But we are the chief heads and the principal part of the Church; therefore we have the Holy Ghost for ever, and whatsoever things we decree are undoubtedly truths, and Doctrines of the Holy Ghost. That ye may perceive the weaknesses of this argument, it is needful to teach you, first

first, what the true Church of Christ is, and then to confer the Church of Rome thereunto, to discern how well they agree together. The true Church is an universal Congregation or fellowship of GODS faithful and elect People, built upon the foundation of the Apostles and Prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the head Corner-stone. And it hath always three notes or marks whereby it is known. Pure and sound Doctrine, the Sacraments ministered according to Christ's holy institution, and the right use of Ecclesiastical Discipline. This description of the Church is agreeable both to the Scriptures of God, and also to the Doctrine of the ancient Fathers, so that none may justly and fault thereof. Now if ye will compare this with the Church of Rome, not as it was in the beginning, but as it is presently, and hath been for the space of nine hundred years and odd: ye shall well perceive the state thereof to be so farwide from the nature of the true Church, that nothing can be more. For neither are they built upon the foundation of the Apostles and Prophets, retaining the sound and pure doctrine of Christ Jesus, neither do they ordain the Sacraments, or else the Ecclesiastical Keys, in such sort as he did institute and ordain them: But have so intermingled their own Traditions and inventions, by chopping and changing, by adding and plucking away, that now they seem to be converted into a new guise. Christ commended to his Church a Sacrament of his Body and Blood: They have changed it into a Sacrifice for the quick and the dead. Christ did minister to his Apostles and the Apostles to other men indifferently under both kinds; They have robbed the Lay people of the cup, saying, that for them one kind is sufficient. Christ ordained no other Element to be used in Baptism, but only Water whereunto, when the Word is joined, it is made (as St. Augustine faith) a full and perfect Sacrament. They being wiser in their own conceit than Christ, think it is not well nor orderly done, unless they use conjugation, unless they hallow the water, unless they be oil, salt, spittle, tapers, and such other dumb Ceremonies, serving to no use, contrary to the plain rule of St. Paul, who willeth all things to be done in the Church unto edification. Christ ordained the authority of the Keys to communicate notorious sinners, and to absolve them which are truly penitent: They abuse this power at their own pleasure, as well in curving the goods with Bell, Book, and Candle, as also in absolving the Reprobate, which are known to be unworthy of any Christian Society: Whereas they that lust to see examples, let them search their lives. To be short, Look what our Saviour Christ pronounced of the Scribes and Pharisees in the Gospel, the same may be boldly and with safe Conscience pronounced of the Bishops of Rome; namely, that they have forsaken, and daily do forsake the Commandments of GOD, to erect and set up their own Constitutions. Which, being true, as also they which have any light of GODS Word must needs confesse, we may well conclude according to the rule of Augustine, that the Bishops of Rome and their adherents, are not the true Church of Christ, much less than to be taken as chief Heads and Rulers of the same. Whosoever (faith he) do dissent from the Scripture concerning the head, although they be found in all places where the Church is appointed, yet are they not in the Church: a plain place, concluding directly against the Church of Rome. There is now the Holy Ghost which they so loudly do claim to themselves: Where is now the Spirit of Truth, that will not not suffer them in any wise to err: If it be possible to be there, where the true Church is not, then is it at Rome: otherwise it is but a vain brag, and nothing else. St. Paul (as ye have heard before) saith, If any man have not the Spirit of Christ, the same is not his. And by turning the words, it may be truly said, If any man be not of Christ, the same hath not the Spirit. How to discern who are truly his and who not, we have this rule given us, that his sheep doth always hear his voice. And St. John saith, He that is of God, heareth God's Word. Whereof it followeth, that the Popes in hearing Christ's voice, as they ought to do, but preferring their own decrees before the express Word of God, do plainly argue to the world, that they are not of Christ, nor yet possessed with his Spirit. But here they will allege for themselves, that there are divers necessary points not exprest in holy Scripture, which were left to the revelation of the Holy Ghost. Who being given to the Church, according to Christ's promise, hath taught many things from time to time, which the Apostles could not then bear. To this we may easily answer by the plain words of Christ, teaching us that the proper office of the Holy Ghost is, not to institute and bring in new ordinances, contrary to his doctrine before taught, but shall come and declare those things which he had before taught, so that it might be well and truly understood. When the Holy Ghost (saith he) shall come, he shall lead you into all truth. What truth doth he mean? Any other than he himself had before exprest in his Word? No. For by faith, he shall take of mine, and show unto you. Again, he shall bring you in remembrance of all things that I have told you. It is not then the duty and part of any Christian, under pretence of the Holy Ghost, to bring in his own dreams and phantasies into the Church; but he must diligently prove that his doctrine and decrees be agreeable to Christ's holy Testament. Otherwise in making the Holy Ghost the Author thereof, he doth blaspheme and defy the Holy Ghost, to his own condemnation.

Now to leave their doctrine, and to come to other points. What shall we think of judge of the Popes intolerable pride? The Scripture saith that God resisteth the proud, and giveth grace to the humble. Also it pronounceth them blessed which are poor in spirit, promising that they which humble themselves, shall be exalted. And Christ our Saviour will teach all his to learn of him, because he is humble and meek. As for pride, St. Gregory saith, it is the root of all mischief. And St. Augustine judgment is this, that it maketh men devils. Can any man then, which either hath or shall read the Popes libels, justly say that they had the Holy Ghost within them? First, as touching that they were termed universal bishops and heads of all Christian Churches through the world, we have the judgment of Gregory expressly against them, who writing to Mauricius, the Emperor, condemned John, bishop of Constantinople, in that behalf, calling him the Prince of Pride, Lucifer's successor, and the Pope-tamer of Antichrist. St. Bernard also agreeing therewith, saith, What greater pride can there be, than that one man should presume to be the judge of the whole congregation, as though he had the Spirit of God? And Chrysoloth pronounced a terrible sentence against them, affirming, that whoever seeketh to be chief in earth, shall fall and confusion in heaven, and that he which seeketh the supremacy, shall not be reputed among the servants of Christ. Again he saith, To desire a good work, it is good; but to covet the chief degree of honour, it is mere vanity. Do not these places sufficiently convince their outrageous pride, in affecturing to themselves a superiority above all other, as well Sinners and Bishops, as Kings also and Emperors? But as the Lion is known by his Clawes, let us learn to know these men by their Deeds. What shall we say of him that made the noble King *Dauud*us to be tied by the neck with a chain and to lie flat down before his Table, there to gnaw bones like a Dog? Shall we think that he had GODS holy Spirit within him, and not rather the Spirit of the Devil? Such a Tyrant was Pope Clement the third. What shall we say of him that proudly and contemptuously rode Frederick the Emperor under his feet, applying the verse of the Psalm unto himself, Thou shalt go upon the Lion and the Adder, the young Lion and the Dragon thou shalt tread under thy feet? Shall we say that he had GODS holy Spirit within him, and not rather the Spirit of the Devil? Such a Tyrant was Pope Alexander the third. What shall we say of him that armed and animated the Son against the Father, causing him to be taken, and to be cruelly famished to death contrary to the Law both of GOD, and also of nature? Shall we say that he had GODS holy Spirit within him, and not rather the Spirit of the Devil? Such a Tyrant was Pope Pascal the second. What shall we say of him that came into his Popedom like a Fox, that reigned like a Lion, and died like a Dog? Shall we say that he had GODS holy Spirit within him, and not rather the Spirit of the Devil? Such a Tyrant was Pope Innocent the Eighth. What shall we say of him that made Henry the Emperor, with his wife and his young child, to stand at the gates of the City in the rough Winter, bare shod, and bare legged, only clad in Linsey Woolsey, eating nothing from morning to night, and for the space of three days? Shall we say that he had GODS holy Spirit within him, and not rather the Spirit of the Devil? Such a Tyrant was Pope Hildebrand, most worthy to be called a Firebrand, if we shall term him as he hath been called. Many other examples might here be alleged. As of Pope Ione the Harlot, that was delivered of a child in the high-street, going solemnly in Procession. Of Pope Julius the second, that willfully call S. Peter Keys into the River Tiberis. Of Pope Urban the sixth, that caused five Cardinals to be put in Sacks, and cruelly drowned. Of Pope Sergius the third, that persecuted the dead body of Formosus his Predecessour, when it had been buried eight years. Of Pope John the twenty-four, of that name, who having his enemy delivered into his hands, caused him first to be stripped stark naked, his beard to be shaven, and to be hanged up a whole day by the hair, then to be set upon an Axe with his face backward toward the tail, to be carried round about the City in defiance, to be miserably beaten with rods, last of all, to be thrust out of his Country, and to be banished forever. But to conclude and make an end, ye shall briefly take this short Lession, wherefore ye and the Spirit of arrogation and pride, the Spirit of envy, hatred, contention, cruelty, murder, extortion, witchcraft, necromancy, etc., allure you selves that there is the Spirit of the Devil, and not of GOD, albeit they pretend outwardly to the world, under so much holiness. For as the Gospel teach eth us the Spirit of Jesus is a good Spirit, an holy Spirit, a sweet Spirit, a lovely Spirit, a merciful Spirit, full of charity and love, full of goodness and pity, not revenging evil for evil, extremity for extremity, but over-overcoming evil with good, and remitting all offence even from the heart. According to which rule, if any man live uprightly, of him it may be safely pronounced, that he hath the Holy Ghost within him: If not, then it is a plain token that he doth utter the name of the Holy Ghost in vain. Therefore (Dearly Beloved) according to the good counsel of St. John, believe not every spirit, but try them whether they be of God or not. Many shall come in my name (faith Chrift and shall transform themselves into Angels of Light, deceiving (if it be possible) the very Elect. They shall come unto you in Sheep's clothing, being inwardly cruel and ravening Wolves. They shall have an outward show of great holiness and innocence of life, to that ye shall hardly or not at all discern them. But the rule that ye must follow, is this, to judge them by their fruits. Which if they be wicked and naught, then it is impossible that the Tree of whom they proceed should be good. Such were all the Popes and Prelates of Rome for the most part, as both well appear in the story of their lives and therefore they are worthy accounted among the number of false Prophets, and false Christs, which deceived the World a long while. The Lord of Heaven and Earth defend us from their tyranny and pride, that they never enter into his Vineyard again, to the disturbance of his Holy flock: but that they may be utterly confounded and put to flight in all parts of the world: and be of his great mercy to work in all mens hearts, by the mighty power of the Holy Ghost, that the comfortable Gospel of his Son Christ may be truly preached, truly received, and truly followed in all places, to the beating down of Sin, Death, the Pope, the Devil, and all the kingdom of Antichrist, that like scattered and dispersed sheep, being at length gathered into one fold, we may in the end rest altogether in the bosom of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, there to be partakers of eternal and everlasting life, through the merits and death of Jesus Christ our Saviour. Amen.
For the Days of ROGATION WEEK.
That all Good things come from God.

Am purposed this day (good devout Christian people) to declare unto you the most deserved praise and commendation of Almighty GOD, not only in the consideration of the marvellous Creation of this World, or in Consideration and Government thereof; wherein his great power and wisdom might excellently appear, to move us to honour and dread him; but most especially in consideration of his liberal and large goodnesses, which he daily bestoweth on us his reasonable Creatures, for whose sake he made the whole Universal World, with all the commodities and goods therein. Which his singular goodnesses well and diligently remembered on our part, should move us (as duty is) again with hearty affection to love him, and with word and deed to praise him, and serve him all the days of our life. And to this matter, being so worthy to entertain, and so profitable for you to hear, I trust I shall not need with much circumstance of words to stir you to give your attendance to hear what shall be said. Only I would with your affection inflamed in secret wise within your soul, to raise up some motion of thanksgiving to the goodness of Almighty GOD, in every such point as shall be opened by my declaration particularly unto you. For else what shall it avail us to hear and know the great goodness of GOD towards us, to know that whatsoever is good proceedeth from him, as from the principal Fountain and the only Author; or to know that whatsoever is sent from him, must needs be good and wholesome; if the hearing of such matter moveth us no further but to know it only? What availleth it the wise men of the World to have knowledge of the Power and Divinity of GOD, by the secret inspiration of him: where they did not honour and glorifie him in their knowledges as GOD: What praise was it to them,

them, by the consideration of the Creation of the World, to behold his goodness; and not to be thankful to him again for his creatures: What other thing deserved this blindness and forgetfulness of them at GODS hands, but utter forsaking of him: And so forsaken of GOD, they could not but fall into extreme ignorance and error. And although they much esteemed themselves in their wits and knowledge, and gloried in their wisdom; yet vanished they away blindly, in their thoughts became fools, and perished in their folly. There can be none other end of such as蚱走轻 to GOD by knowledge, and yet depart from him in unthankfulness, but utter destruction. This experience saw David in his days. For in his Psalm he saith, Behold they which withdraw themselves from thee, shall perish, for thou hast destroyed them all that are deceived from thee.

This experience was perceived to be true of that holy Prophet Jeremy:

O Lord, (faith he) whatsoever they be that forsake thee, shall be confounded, they that depart from thee, shall be written in the Earth, and soon forgotten. It prayed not (good People) to hear the goodness of GOD declared unto us, if our hearts be not enflamed thereby to honour and thank him. It prayed not the Jews, which were GOD'S elect People, to hear much of GOD, seeing that he was not received in their hearts by Faith, nor thanked for his benefits bestowed upon them; their unthankfulness was the cause of their destruction. Let us eschew the manner of these before rehearsed, and follow rather the example of that holy Apostle St. Paul, who when in a deep meditation he did behold the marvellous proceedings of Almighty GOD, and considered his infinite goodness in the ordering of his Creatures, he burst out into this conclusion: Surely (faith he) of him, by him, and in him, be all things. And this once pronounced, he stuck not still at this point, but forthwith thereupon joyned to these words: To him be glory and praise for ever, Amen.

Upon the ground of which words of St. Paul (good Audience) I purpose to build my exhortation of this day unto you. Wherein I shall do my endeavour, still to prove unto you that all good things come down unto us from above from the Father of Light. Secondly, that Jesus Christ his Son and our Saviour, is the mean by whom we receive his liberal goodness. Thirdly, that in the power and virtue of the Holy Ghost we be made meet and able to receive his gifts and graces. Which things distinctly and advisedly considered in our minds, most needs compel us in most low reverence, after our bounden duty, always to render him thanks again, in some remembrance of our good hearts for his deserts unto us. And that the entreaty of this matter in hand may be to the glory of Almighty GOD, let us in our Faith and Charity call upon the Father of Mercy, from whom cometh every good gift, and every perfect gift, by the mediation of his wellbeloved Son our Saviour, that we may be all filled with the presence of his holy Spirit, and profitably on both parts, to demean our selves in speaking and hearing to the salvation of our souls.

In the beginning of my speaking unto you (good Christian people) suppose not that I do take upon me to declare unto you the excellent power, or the incomparable wisdom of Almighty GOD, as though I would have you believe that it might be expellee unto you by words. Nay, it may not be thought, that that thing may be comprehended by mans words, that is incomprehensible. For too much arrogancy it were for dust and ashes to think that he can worthily declare his Power. It palleth for the dark understanding and wisdom of a mortal man, to speak sufficiently of that divine Majesty, which the Angels cannot understand. We shall therefore lay apart to speak of the profound and unsearchable nature of Almighty GOD, rather acknowledging our weakness, than rashly to attempt what is above all mans capacity to compass. It shall better suffice us in low humility to reverence and dread his Majesty, which we cannot compile, than by overmuch curious searching to be overcharged with the glory. We shall rather turn our whole contemplation to answer a while his goodness towards us, wherein we shall be much more profitably occupied, and more may we be bold to search. To consider the great power he is of, can but make us dread and fear. To consider his high wisdom might utterly comfort our frailty to have any thing to do with him: But in consideration of his inestimable goodness, we take good heart again to trust well unto him. By his goodness we are assured to take him for our refuge, our hope and comfort, our merciful Father, in all the course of our lives. His power and wisdom compelleth us to take him for GOD omnipotent, invisible, having rule in heaven and earth, having all things in his subjection, and will have none in counsel with him, nor any to ask the reason of his doing. For he may do what liketh him, and none can reft him. For he worketh all things in his secret judgment to his own pleasure, yea, even the wicked to damnation, saith Solomon. By the reason of this nature, he is called in Scripture consuming fire, he is called a terrible and fearful GOD. Of this behalf therefore, we have no familiarity, no access unto him, but his goodness again tempereth the rigour of his high power, and maketh us bold, and putteth us in hope that he will be convolent with us, and call unto us.

It is his goodness that moveth him in Scripture: It is my delight to be with the children of men. It is his goodness that moveth him to call us unto him, to offer us his friendship and presence. It is his goodness that patiently suffereth our straying from him, and suffereth us long, to win us to repentance. It is of his goodness that we be created reasonable Creatures, where else he might have made us brute Beasts. It was his mercy to have us born among the number of Christian People, and thereby in a much more nearness to salvation, where we might have been born (if his goodness had not been) among the Kindreds, clean void from GOD, and the hope of everlasting life. And what other thing doth his loving and gentle voice spoken in his Word, where he calleth us to his presence and friendship, but declare his goodness, only without regard of our worthiness? And what other thing doth sic him to call us to him, when we be strayed from him, to suffer us patiently, to win us to repentance, but only his singular goodness, no whit of our deserving? Let them all come together that he now glorified in heaven, and let us hear what answer they will make in those points before rehearsed, whether their first Creation was in GODS goodness, or of themselves. Forsooth David would make answer for them all, and say, Know ye for surety, even the Lord is GOD, he hath made us, and not we ourselves. If they were asked again, who should be thanked for their regeneration?

For their justification - And for their salvation - Whether their deserts, or God's goodness only? Although in this point, every one confesses sufficiently the truth of this matter, in his own person; yet let David answer by the mouth of them all at this time, who cannot chuse but say, Not to us, O Lord, not to us, but to thy Name give all the thank, for thy loving mercy, and for thy truth's sake. If we should ask again, from whence came their glorious works and deeds, which they wrought in their lives, wherein God was so highly pleased and worshipped by them? Let some other witnesses be brought in, to resolve this matter, that in the mouth of two or three may the truth be known.

Verily that holy Prophet Ely heard and said, O Lord, it is thou of thy goodness that hast wrought all our works in us, not we ourselves. And to uphold the truth of this matter, against all justifications and hypoctrises, which rob Almighty God of his honour, and ascribe it to themselves, St. Paul brings it in his belief, We do not (faith be sufficient of our selves, as of our selves, once to think anything; but all our ableness is of God's goodness, for be it is in whom we have all our being, our living, and moving. If ye will know furthermore, where they had their gifts and sacrifices, which they offered continually in their lives to Almighty God, they cannot but agree with David, where he faith: Of thy liberal hand, O Lord, we have received that we gave unto thee. If this holy company therefore confess to constantly, that all the goods and graces whereby they were induced in soul, came of the goodness of God only: what more can be said to prove that all that is good, cometh from Almighty God? Is it meet to think that all spiritual goodnes comes from God above only: and that other good things, either of nature or of fortune (as we call them) cometh of any other cause? Both God of his goodnes adoin the soul, with all the powers thereof, as it is: and cometh the gifts of the body, whereby it is endowed, from any other? If he doth the more, cannot he do the less? To justifie a sinner, to new create him from a wicked person to a righteous man is a greater act (faith S. Augustine) than to make such a new Heaven and Earth, as is already made. We must needs agree, that whatsoever good thing is in us, of Grace, of Nature, or of Fortune, is of God only, as the only Author and Worker.

And yet it is not to be thought that God hath created all this whole universal World as it is, and thus once made, hath given it up to be ruled and used after our own wills and devices, to take no more charge thereof. As we see the Shipment, after he hath brought his Shipyards, to a perfect end, then delivered it to the Mariners, and taketh no more care thereof. Nay, God hath not so created the World, that he is careless of it; but he still preserves it by his goodnes, he still loves it in his creation. For else without his special goodnes it could not stand long in this condition. And therefore St. Paul faith, that he preserves all things, and hearseth them up still, in his Word lest they should fall without him to their nothing again, whereas they were made. If his special goodnes was not every where present, every creature should be out of order, and no creature should have his property wherein he was first created. He is therefore invisible every where, and in every creature, and fulllyeth both Heaven and Earth with his presence. In the fire, to give give heat in the water to give moisture, in the earth to give fruit, in the heart to give his strength; yea, in our head and drink is he, to give us nourishment, where without him the bread and drink cannot give sustenance, nor the herb health, as the Wise man plainly confesseth it, saying, It is not the increase of fruits that feedeth men, but it is thy Word (O Lord) which preferreth them that fruit in thee. And Moses agreeeth to the same, when he saith, Many life suffereth not in bread only, but in every Word which proceedeth out of GODS mouth. It is neither the herb nor the platter that giveth health of themselves, but thy Word, O Lord, (saith the Wise man) which healtheth all things. It is not therefore the power of the Creatures which worketh their effects, but the goodness of GOD which worketh in them. In his Word truly doeth all things consist. By that same Word that Heaven and Earth were made, by the same are they upholden, maintained, and kept in order (saith St. Peter) and shall be till Almighty GOD shall withdraw his power from them, and speak their dissolution. If it were not thus, that the goodnes of GOD should especially in his Creatures to rule them, how could it be that the main Sea, so raging and labouring to overflow the Earth, could be kept within his bounds and banks as it is? That holy man Job evidently spied the goodnes of GOD in this point, and confessed, that if he had not a special goodness to the preservation of the Earth, it could not but presently be overflowed of the Sea. How could it be that the Elements, so divers and contrary as they be among themselves, should yet agree and abide together in a constancy, without destruction one of another to serve our life, if it came not only of GODS goodness to temper them: how could the fire not burn and consume all things, if it were let loose to go whither it would, and not laid in his lip sore by the goodnes of GOD, measureably to heat those inferior Creatures to their riping? Consider the huge substance of the Earth, so heavy and great as it is: how could it so stand stably in the space as it doth, if GODS goodnes were not so for us to travel on? It is thou, O Lord, (saith David) which hast founded the Earth in his stabi1ity, and during thy Word, it shall never eel or fall down. Consider the great strong Beasts and Fishes, far passing the strength of man, how fierce sooner they be and strong, yet by the goodnes of GOD they prevail not against us, but are under our subjection, and serve our life. Of whom came the invention thus to subdue them, and make them fit for our commodities? Was it by man's brain and wit, rather this invention came by the goodnes of GOD, which inspired man's understanding to have his purpose of every Creature. Who was it (saith Job) that put Will and Wisdom in man's head, but GODS only his goodnes? And as the same faith again, I perceive that every man hath a mind, but it is the Inspiration of the Almighty that giveth understanding. It could not be bettly (good Christian People) that man of his own wit upholden, should invent so many and divers devices in all Crafts and Sciences, except the goodnes of Almighty GOD had been present with men, and had stirred their wits and studies of purpose to know the nature and dispositions of all his Creatures, to serve us sufficiently in our needs and necessities. Yea, not only to serve our necessities, but to serve our pleasures and delight, more than necessity requireth. So liberal is GODS goodnes to us, to provoke us to thank him, if any hearts we have. The Wise man in his contemplation by himself, could not but but grant this thing to be true that I reason unto you. In his hands faith be, he, we, and our words, and all our wisdom, and all our sciences and works of knowledge. For it is he that gave me the true institution of his Creatures, both to know the disposition of the World, and the virtues of the Elements, the beginning and end of times, the change and diversities of them, the course of the year, the order of the stars, the natures of beasts, and the powers of them, the powers of the winds, and thoughts of men, the differences of planets, the virtue of roots, and whatsoever is hid and secret in nature, I learned it. The Artificer of all these taught me this wisdom. And further he saith, Who can search out the things that be in heaven? For it is hard for us to search such things as be on Earth, and in daily sight before us. For our wishe thoughts, faith be, be imperfect, and our policies uncertain. No man can therefore search the meaning in these things, except thou givest wisdom, and sendest thy Spirit from above. If the Wise man thus confesseth all things to be of God, why should not we acknowledge it? and by the knowledge of it, consider our duty to Godward, and give him thanks for his goodness? I perceive that I am far here overcharged with the plenty and copy of matter, that might be brought in for the proof of this cause. If I should enter to show how the goodness of Almighty God appeared everywhere in the Creatures of the World, how marvellous they be in their Creation, how beautiful in their order, how necessary they be to our life; all with one voice must needs grant their Author to be none other but Almighty God. His goodness must they needs ascribe and magnifie every where; To whom be all honour and glory, for evermore.

The Second Part of the Homily

For

Rogation Week.

In the former part of this homily (good Christian People) I have declared to your contemplation, the great goodness of Almighty God, in the Creation of this World, with all the furniture thereof, for the life and comfort of man, whereby we might rather be moved to acknowledge our duty again to his Majesty. And I trust it hath wrought not only belief in you, but also it hath moved you to render your thanks secretly in your hearts to Almighty God for his loving kindness. But yet peradventure some will say, that they can agree to this, that all that is good pertaining to the soul, or whatsoever is created with us in body, should come from God, as from the Author of all goodness and from none other. But of such things as be without them both, I mean such good things which we call goods of fortune, as riches, authority, promotion, and power, some men may think, that they should come of our industry and diligence, of our labour and travel, rather than supernaturally. Now then consider, good People, if any Author there be of such things concurrent of mans labour and endeavour, were it meet to ascribe them to any other than to God? as the Panions, Philosophers, and Poets did ere, which took Fortune and made her a Goddess to be honoured. For such things is God forbid (good Christian People) that this Imagination should rashly be received of us that be worshipers of the true God, whose works and proceedings he expressed manifestly in his Word. These be the opinions and sayings of Infidels, not of true Christians. For they indeed (as Job maketh mention) believe Job 22. and say, that God hath his residence and dwelling place in the Clouds, and considerth nothing of our matters. Epicures they be that imagine that he walketh about the coasts of the heaven, and hath no respect of these inferior things, but that all these things should proceed either by chance or at adventure, or else by disposition of Fortune, and God to have no stroke in them. What other thing is this to say than as the Fool supposeth in his heart, there is no God: Whom we shall none otherwise reprove, than with God's own words by the mouth of David, Psa. 14. Psa. 14. What man is there that speaketh, and there be no God? All the Beasts of the Wood are mine, and the Fowl of the Air, and the Fish of the Sea. I have the knowledge of all the Fowls of the Air, the beauty of the Field is my hands work, mine is the whole circuit of the World. All the Beasts of the Wood are mine, and the Fowl of the Air, and the Fish of the Sea. I have the knowledge of all the Fowls of the Air, and all the plenty that is in it. And again the Prophet Jer. 23. Jer. 23. Thou thinkest that I am a God, but I am not a God. Jer. 23. Jer. 23. Thou art not a God: But I am not a God. Jer. 23. Jer. 23. Thou art not a God: But I am not a God. Jer. 23. Jer. 23. Thou art not a God: But I am not a God. and not a GOD far off: Can a man hide himself in so secret a corner, that I shall not see him? Do not I fill and replenish both Heaven and Earth?—The Lord: Which of these two should be most believed? Fortune whom they paint to be blind of both eyes, ever unstable and unconstant in her wheel, in whose hands they lay these things be: Or GOD, in whose hand and power these things be indeed, who for his truth and constancy was yet never repented? For his sight looketh through Heaven and Earth, and seeth all things presently with his eyes. Nothing is too dark or hidden from his knowledge, not the privy thoughts of mens minds. Truth it is, that GOD is all riches, all power, all authority, all near and wealth, and prosperity, of which we should have no part without his liberal distribution, and except it came from him above. David first testifyeth of riches and possessions: If thou givest good luck, they shall gather, and if thou openest thy hand, they shall be full of good things: but if thou turnest thy face they shall be troubled. And Solomon saith, It is the blessing of the Lord that maketh riches. To this agreeeth the holy Woman Ann, where the faith in her song: It is the Lord that maketh the poor, and maketh the rich, he is that promoteth and pulleth down; he can raise a needy man from his misery, and from the dunghil, he can lift up a poor personage to sit with Princes, and have the seat of glory; for all the coats of the Earth he be his. Now if any man will ask, What shall it avail us to know that every good gift, as of nature and fortune (so called) and every perfect gift, as of grace, concerning the soul, to be of GOD, and that it is his gift only: For he doth for many causes it is convenient for us to know it. For shall we know (if we confess the truth) which ought justly to be thanked for them. Our pride shall be thereby abated, perceiving nought to come of our selves but sin and vice: if any goodness be in us, to refer all laud and praise to the same to Almighty GOD. It shall make us to advance our selves before our neighbour, to despire him for that he hath fewer gifts, seeing GOD giveth his gifts where he will. It shall make us by the consideration of our gifts, not to extol our selves before our neighbors. It shall make the wise man not to glory of his wisdom, nor the strong man in his strength, nor the rich to glory in his riches, but in the living GOD, which is the author of all these, lest if we should do so, we might be rebuked with the words of St. Paul, what hath thou that thou hast not received? and if thou hast received it, why glorieth thou in thy self, as though thou hadst not received it? To confest that all good things cometh from Almighty GOD, is a great point of Wisdom. My Friends: For so confessting, we know whither to refer for to have them, if we want, as St. James biddest us, saying, If any man wanteth the gift of wisdom, let him ask it of GOD that giveth it, and it shall be given him. As the wise man in the want of such a like gift, made his recourse to GOD for it, as he tillerst in his Book: After I knew (saith he) that otherwise I could not be maist, except GOD granted it, (and this was as he there wright, high wisdom to know whose gift it was) I made haste to the Lord, and earnestly besought him, even from the roots of my heart, to have it. I would to GOD (my Friends) that in our wants and necessities, we would go to GOD, as St. James biddest, and as the Wiser man taught us that we do. I would we believed steadfastly that GOD only gives them: If we did, we should not seek our want and necessity of the Devil and and his ministers so oft as we do, as daily experience declareth it. For if we stand in necessity of corporeal health, whether the common people but to charms, witchcrafts, and other delusions of the Devil? If we knew that GOD were the Author of this gift, we would only use his means appointed, and choose his leisure, till he thought it good for us to have it given: If the Merchant and worldly occupier knew that GOD is the giver of riches, he would content himself with as much as by just means approved of GOD, he could get to his living, and would be no richer than truth would suffer him; he would never procure his gain and ask his goods at the Devil's hand. GOD forbid ye will say, that any man should take his riches of the Devil. Let not men increase themselves by usury, by extortion, by perjury, by theft, by deceit, and craft, they have their goods of the Devil's gift. And all they that give themselves to such means, and have renounced the true means that GOD hath appointed, have forsaken him, and become worshippers of the Devil, to have their lucrers and advantages. They be such as kneel down to the Devil at his bidding, and worship him: For he promised them for so doing, that he will give them the World, and the goods therein. They cannot otherwise better serve the Devil, than to do his pleasure and commandment: And his notion and will it is, to have us forsake the truth, and betake us to falsehood, to lies and perjuries. They therefore which believe perfectly in their heart that GOD is to be honoured, and required for the gift of all things necessary, would use none other means to relieve their necessities but truth and verity, and would serve GOD to have competency of all things necessary. The man in his need would not relieve his want by stealth. The woman would not relieve her necessity and poverty by giving her body to other in adultery for gain. If GOD be the Author indeed of life, health, riches, and welfare, let us make our recourse to him, as the Author, and we shall have it, faith Saint James. Yea it is high wisdom by the Wise man, therefore to know whose gift it is, for many other skills it is wisdom to know and believe that all goodnes and graces be of GOD, as the Author. Which thing well considered, must needs make us think that we shall make account for that which GOD gives us to possess, and therefore shall make us to be more diligent well to spend them to GOD's glory, and to the profit of our neighbour, that we may make a good account at the last, and be praised for good deeds, that we may hear these words of our Judge: Well done good servant and faithful, thou hast been faithful in little, I will make thee ruler over much, go into thy Masters joy. Besides, to believe certainly GOD to be the Author of all the gifts that we have, shall make us to be in silence and patience when they be taken again from us. For as GOD of his mercy doth grant us them to use: So other whiles he doth justly take them again from us, to prove our patience, to exercise our faith, and by the means of the taking away of a few, to bellow the more wary those that remain, to teach us to use them the more to his glory, after he gave them to us again. Many there be that with mouth can say that they believe that GOD is the Author of every good gift that they have: but in the time of temptation they go back from this belief. They say it in word, but deny it in deed. Consider the custom of the world, and see whether it be not true. Behold the rich man that is indited with substance, if by any adversity his goods...

goods be taken from him, how surneth and freteth he: how murmureth he and despaireth? he that hath the gift of good reputation, if his name be any thing touched by the detractor, how unquiet is he: how ambitious to revenge his despite? If a man hath the gift of wisdom, and fortune to be taken of some evil willer for a Fool, and is so reported, how much doth it grieve him to be so esteemed? Think ye that these believe constantly that GOD is the Author of these gifts? If they believe it verily, why should they not patiently suffer GOD to take away his gifts again, which he gave them freely, and lent for a time: But ye will say, I could be content to resign to GOD such gifts, if he took them again from me: But now are they taken from me by evil chances and false beliefs, by naughty Witches, how should I take this thing patiently? To this may be answered, that Almighty GOD is of his nature invisible, and cometh to no man visible after the manner of man, to take away his gifts that he lent. But in this point whatsoever GOD doth, he bringeth it about by his instruments ordained thereto. Be hath good Angels, he hath evil Angels, he hath good men, and he hath evil men, he hath Pail and Rain, he hath Wind and Thunder, he hath Heat and Cold. Innumerable instruiments hath he, and well drinkers, by whom again he asketh such gifts as he committed to our trust, as the Wise man confessed, The Creature must needs wait to serve his Maker, to be fierce against unjust men to their punishment. For as the same Author doth, he armeth the Creature, to revenge his enemies, and other wholesome to the probation of our Faith, straight he up such forms. And therefore by what mean and instrument sober GOD takes from us his gifts, we must patiently take GODS judgment in worth, and acknowledge him to be the Take and Giver, as Job faith: The Lord gabe, and the Lord took, when his enemies drove his cattle away, and when the Devil slew his children, and afflicted his body with grievous sickness. Such meekness was in that holy King and Prophet David, when he was reviled of Shimei in the presence of all his hosts, he took it patiently, and reviled not again, but as confessing GOD to be the Author of his innocency and good name, and offering it to be at his pleasure: Let him alone (faith he to one of his servants that should have revenged such despite) for GOD hath commanded him to curse David, and peradventure GOD intendeth thereby to render me some good turn for this curse of him to day. And though the minister other whiles doth evil in his act, proceeding of malice, yet forasmuch as GOD turneth his evil act to a good of our patience, we should rather submit our selves in patience, than to have indignation at GODS rod, which peradventure when he hath convinced us to our nurture, he will call it into the fire, as it deserved. Let us in like manner truly acknowledg all our gifts and perquisites, to be to GODS gifts, that we shall be ready to resign them up at his will and pleasure again. Let us throughout our whole lives confess all good things to come of GOD, of what name or nature soever they be, not of these corruptible things only, whereof I have now last spoken, but much more of all Spiritual graces behooved for our soul, without whose goodness no man is called to Faith, or said therein, as I shall hereafter in the next part of this homily declare to you. In the mean mean forget not what hath already been spoken to you, forget not to be comfortable in your judgments to the truth.

truth of his doctrine, and forget not to practise the same in the whole state of your life, whereby ye shall obtain the blessing promised by our Saviour Christ: Blessed be they which hear the Word of GOD, and fulfill it in life. Which blessing be grant to us all, who reigneth over all, our GOD in Trinity, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost: To whom be all honour and glory for ever. Amen.

for

Promised to you to declare that all spiritual gifts and graces come specially from GOD. Let us consider the truth of this matter, and hear what is testified unto of the gift of Faith, the first entry into the Christian life, without which no man can please GOD. For St. Paul confesseth it plainly to be GODS gift, saying, Faith is the gift of GOD. And again, St. Peter saith, It is of GODS power that ye be kept through faith to salvation.

It is of the goodness of GOD that we falter not in our hope unto him. It is verily GODS work in us, the charity whereby we love our brethren. If after our fall we repent, it is by him that we repent, which reacheth forth his merciful hand to raise us up. If any will we have to rise, it is he that preventeth our will, and disposeth us thereto. If after contention we feel our consciences at peace with GOD through remission of our sin, and to be reconciled again to his favour, and hope to be his children and inheritors of everlasting life: who worketh these great miracles in us? our worthiness, our deservings and endeavours, our merits, and verily: Nay verily, St. Paul will not suffer such and sly to presume to such arrogancy, and therefore faith, all is of GOD which hath reconciled us to himself by Jesus Christ. For GOD was in Christ when he reconciled the World unto himself. GOD the Father of all mercy, brought this high benefit unto us, not by his own person: but by a mean, by no less a mean than his only beloved Son, whom he spared not from any pain and travail that might do us good: For upon him he put our sins, and upon him he made our ransom, him he made the mean between us and himself, whose mediation was so acceptable to GOD the Father, through his absolute and perfect obedience, that he took his at for a full satisfaction of all our disobedience and rebellion, whose righteousness he took to weigh against our sins, whose redemption he would have laid against our damnation. In this point, what have we to muse within ourselves good Friends: I think no less than that which St. Paul said in the remembrance of this wonderful goodness of GOD. Thanks be to Almighty GOD, through Christ Jesus our Lord.

Ephes. 1. Lord: for it is he for whose sake we received his high gift of grace. For as by him (being the everlasting wisdom) he wrougt all the world and that is contained therein: So by him only and wholly, would he have all things restored again in heaven and in earth. By this our heavenly Mediator therefore do we know the favour and mercy of God the Father: by him know we his will and pleasure towards us, for he is the brightness of his Father's glory, and a very clear image and pattern of his substance. It is he whom the Father in heaven delighteth to have for his well-beloved Son, whom he authorized to be our Teacher, whom he charged us to hear, saying, hear him. It is he by whom the Father of heaven doth blest us with all spiritual and heavenly gifts, for whose sake and in favour (writhe St. John) we have received grace and favour. To this our Saviour and Mediator, hath God the Father given the power of heaven and earth, and the whole jurisdiction and authority, to distribute his goods and gifts committed to him: for so wite the Apostle, To every one of us is grace given, according to the measure of Christ's giving. And upon to execute his authority committed, after that he had bought sin and the devil to captivity to be no more hurtful to his members, he ascended up to his Father again, and from thence sent liberal gifts to his well-beloved servants, and hath still the power to the world's end, to distribute his Father's gifts continually in his Church, to the establishment and comfort thereof. And by him hath Almighty God decreed to dissolve the world, to call all before him, to judge both the quick and the dead, and finally by him shall he condemn the wicked to eternal fire in hell, and give the good eternal life, and let them assuredly in presence with him in heaven forevermore. Thus see how all is of God by his Son Christ our Lord and Saviour. Remember I say once again your duty of thanks, let them be never to want, still join your self to continue in thanksgiving, ye can offer to God no better sacrifice: For he saith himself, It is the sacrifice of praise and thanksgiving, and that shall honour me. Which thing was well perceived of that holy Prophet David, when he so earnestly spake to himself thus, O my soul blest thou the Lord, and all that is within me blest his holy Name. I say once again, O my soul blest thou the Lord, and never forget his manifold rewards. God gives us grace (good People) to know these things, and to feel them in our hearts. This knowledge and feeling is not in our self, by our self it is not possible to come by it, a great pity it were that we should lose so palpable knowledge. Let us therefore meekly call upon that bountiful Spirit the Holy Ghost, which proceedeth from our Father of mercy, and from our Mediator Christ, that he would assist us, and inspire us with his presence, that in him we may be able to hear the good news of God declared unto us to our salvation. For without his lively and secret inspiration, can we not once so much as speak the Name of our Mediator, as St. Paul plainly testifieth: No man can once name our Lord Jesus Christ, but in the Holy Ghost. Such let's should we be able to believe and know these great mysteries that be opened to us by Christ. St. Paul saith, that no man can know what is of God, but the Spirit of God. As for us (saith he) we have received not the spirit of the world, but the Spirit which is of God. For this purpose: that in that holy Spirit we might know the things that be given us by Christ. The wise man, saith, that in the power and virtue of the Holy Ghost, restless all wisdom and all ability to know.
know GOD, and to please him. For he writeth thus, We know that it is not in man's power to guide his goings. No man can know the pleasure except thou givest wisdom and lendest the holy Spirit from above. Send him down therefore (papery he to GOD) from the holy heavens, and from the throne of thy Majesty, that he may be with me, and labour with me, that so I may know what is acceptable before thee. Let us with good heart pray, as he did, and we shall not fail but to have his assistance. For he is soon seen of them that love him, he will be found of them that seek him: For very liberal and gentle is the Spirit of Wisdom. In his power shall we have sufficient ability to know our duty to GOD, in him shall we be comforted and encouraged to walk in our duty, in him shall we meet blessings to receive the grace of Almighty GOD: for it is he that purgeth and purifieth the mind by his secret working. And he only is present everywhere by his invisible power, and conteneth all things in his dominion. He lighteth the heart to conceive worthy thoughts to Almighty GOD, he stirs in the tongue of man to stir him to speak his honour; no language is hid from him: for he hath the knowledge of all speech, he only ministreth spiritual strength to the powers of our soul and body. To hold the way which GOD had prepared for us to walk rightly in our journey, we must acknowledge that it is in the power of his Spirit which helped our infancy. That we may boldly come in prayer, and call upon Almighty GOD as our Father. It is by this holy Spirit, which maketh intercession for us with continual sighs. If any gift we have wherewith we may work to the glory of GOD, and profit of our Neighbour, all is wrought by his own and self-same Spirit, which maketh his distributions peculiarly to every man as he will. If any wisdom we have, it is not of our selves, we cannot glory therein as begun of our selves but we ought to glory in GOD from whom it came to us, as the Prophet Jerem. writeth, Let him that rejoiceth, rejoice in this, that he understandeth and knoweth me, for I am the Lord which show mercy, judgment, and righteousness in the Earth, for in these things I delight, saith the Lord. This wisdom cannot be attained but by the direction of the Spirit of GOD, and therefore it is called Spiritual Wisdom. And no where can we more certainly search for the knowledge of this Will of GOD (by which we must direct all our works and desires) but in the holy Scriptures, for they be they that tellise of him, saith our Saviour Christ. It may be called knowledge and learning that is other where gotten without the Word: but the Wise man plainly telliseth, that they all be but vain which have not in them the wisdom of GOD. We see what vanity the old philosophers came, who were destitute of this science, gotten and searched for in his Word. We see what vanity the School doctrine is mixed with, for that in this word they sought not the will of GOD, but rather the will of Reason, the trade of Cuthom, the path of the Fathers, the practice of the Church. Let us therefore read and revolve the holy Scripture both day and night, for blessed is he that hath his whole meditation therein. It is that which giveth light to our feet to walk by. It is that which giveth wisdom to the simple and ignorant. In it may we find eternal life. In the holy Scriptures and we Christ, in Christ and we GOD: for he it is that is the express Image of the Father. He that seeth Christ, seeth the Father. And contrarywise, as St. Jerome saith, the ignorance of Scripture, is the ignorance of Christ. Not to know Christ, is to

to be in darkness, in the midst of our worldly and carnal light of reason and philosophy. To be without Christ, is to be in foolishness. For he is the only wisdom of the Father, in whom it pleased him that all fulness and perfection should dwell. With whom whosoever is indifferent in heart by faith, and rooted fast in charity hath laid a sure foundation to build on, whereby he may be able to comprehend with all Saints what is the breadth, length, and depth, and to know the love of Christ. This universal and absolute knowledge, is that wisdom which St. Paul willeth those Ephesians to have, as under heaven the greatest treasure that can be obtained. For of this wisdom the Wise man writeth thus of his experience, All good things came to me together with her, and innumerable riches through her hands. And addeth moreover in that same place, She is the mother of all these things: For she is an infinite treasure unto men, which would to life, become partakers of the love of God. I might with many words move some of this audience to search for this wisdom, to seek after their reason, to follow GOD's Commandment, to cast from them the wits of their brains, to labour this wisdom, to renounce the wisdom and policy of this found world, to taste and favour of that whereunto the labour and will of GOD hath called them, and willeth us finally to enjoy by his favour, if we would give ear. But I will haste to the third part of my Text, wherein is expressed further in patience, how GOD giveth his Elect understanding of the motions of the heavens, of their creations and circumstances of time. Which as it followeth in words more plentiful in the text which I have last cited unto you, so it must needs follow in them that be induced with this spiritual wisdom. For as they can search where to find this wisdom, and know of whom to ask it: So know they again that in time it is found, and can therefore attempt themselves to the occasion of the time, to suffer no time to pass away, wherein they may labour for this wisdom. And to increase therein, they know how GOD of his infinite mercy and leniency giveth all men here time and place of repentance. And they see how the wicked (as Job writeth) abuse the same to their pride, and therefore do the godly take the better hold of the time, to redeem it out of such use as it is spoilt in by the wicked. They which have this wisdom of GOD, can gather by the diligent and earnest study of the Writings of this present life, how they wait their times, and apply themselves to every occasion of time and to get riches to increase their Lands and Patrimony. They see the time pass away, and therefore take hold on it in such wise, that other wiles they will with love of their sleep and ease, with suffering many pains, catch the offer of their time, knowing that that which is past cannot be returned again. Repentance may follow, but remedy in none. Why should not they then that be spiritual wise in their generation, wait their time to increase as fast in their estate, to win and gain everlastingly? They reason what a brute forgetfulness it were in man induced with reason, to be ignorant of their times and times, when they see the Turtle Dove, the Stock, and the Swallow to wait their times, as Jeremy Faith: The Stork in the air knoweth her appointed times, the Turtle, the Crane, and the Swallow observe the time of their coming: but my people knoweth not the judgment of the Lord. St. Paul willeth us to redeem the time, because the days are evil. It is not the counsel of St. Paul only, but of all other that ever gave precepts of wisdom. for Rogation Week.

There is no present more seriously given and commanded, than to know the time. For, Christian men, to that they hear how grievously God complaineth, and threatens in the Scriptures, them which will not know the time of his visitations, are learned thereby, the rather earnestly to apply themselves thereto. After our Saviour Christ had prophesied with weeping tears of the destruction of Jerusalem, at the last he putted the cause, For that thou hast not known the time of thy visitation. O England, ponder the time of God's merciful visitation which is moved thee from day to day, and yet wilt not regard it. Neither wilt thou with his punishment be driven to thy duty, nor with his benefits be provoked to thanks. If thou knowest what may fall upon thee for thine unthankfulness, thou wouldst provide for thy peace. therefore, howsoever the world in generality is forgetful of God, let us particularly attend to our time, and wait the time with diligence, and apply our selves to that light and grace that is offered us, let us, if God's favour and judgments which he worketh in our time, cannot stir us to call home to our self to do that belonging to our salvation, at the least, let the malice of the Devil, the naughtiness of the world, which we exercise in these perilous and last times, wherein we see our days so dangerously set, provoke us to watch diligently to our vocation, to walk and go forward therein.

Let the misery and most transitory joys spied in the casualty of our days, move us while we have them in our hands, and seriously stir us to be wise, and to expend the gracious good will of God to us-ward, which all the day long stretcheth out his hand (as the Prophet saith) unto us; for the most part his merciful hands, sometime his heavy hands, that we being learned thereby, may escape the danger that must needs fall on the unwise, who lead their days in sottishness and pleasure, without the knowing of God's will toward them, but suddenly they go down into hell. Let us be found watchful, found in the peace of the Lord, that at the last day we may be found without spot and blameless: yea, let us endeavour our selves (good Christian people) diligently to keep the presence of his holy Spirit. Let us renounce all uncleannesses, for his is the Spirit of purity. Let us avoid all hypocrisy, for this holy Spirit will flee from that which is stained. Call we off all manner of evil will, for this Spirit will never enter into an evil willing soul. Let us call away all the whole lump of sin that standeth about us, for he will never dwell in that body that is subdued to sin. We cannot be seen thankful to Almighty God, and work such delight to the Spirit of grace, by whom we be sanctified, if we do our endeavours; we shall not need to fear. We shall be able to overcome all our enemies that fight against us. Only let us apply our selves to accept that grace that is offered us. If Almighty God we have comfort by his goodness, of our Saviour Christ's mediation we may be sure. And this holy Spirit will suggest unto us that shall be wholesome, and confirm us in all things. Therefore it cannot be but true that St. Paul affirmeth: Of him, by him, and in him be all things, and in him (after this transitory life well passed) shall we have all things. For St. Paul saith, When the Son of God shall subdue all things unto him, then shall God be all in all. If ye will know how God shall be all in all, derely after this sense may ye understand it: In this world ye see that we be fain to borrow many things to our necessity, of many creatures; there is no one thing that sufficiently all our Sufficiencies. If we be an hungred, we lust for bread. If we be thirsty, we seek to be refreshed with Ale or Water. If we be cold, we seek for Cloath. If we be sick, we seek to the Physician. If we be in heaviness, we seek for comfort of our Friends, or company: So that there is no one creature by it self that can content all our wants and desires. But in the World to come, in that everlasting felicity, we shall no more beg and seek our particular comforts and commodities of divers Creatures: but we shall possess all that we can ask and desire, in GOD, and GOD shall be to us all things. He shall be to us both Father and Mother. He shall be Bread and Drink, Cloth, Physicians, comfort; he shall be all things to us, and so of much more blessed fashion, and more sufficient contentation, than ever these Creatures were unto us, with much more declaration than ever mans declaration, than ever mans reason is able to conceive. The eye of man is not able to behold, nor his ear can hear, nor it can be compassed in the heart of man, what joy it is that GOD hath prepared for them that love him.

Let us all conclude then with one Voice with the words of St. Paul; To him which is able to do abundantly beyond our desires and thoughts, according to the power working in us, be glory and praise in his Church, by Christ Jesus forever, World without end. Amen.
AN EXHORTATION TO

Be spoken to such Parishes where they use their Perambulation in Rogation Week, for the oversight of the Bounds and Limits of their Town.

Though we be now assembled together (good Chiliasm People) most principally to laud and thank Almighty God for his great benefits, by beholding the fields replenished with all manner of fruit, to the maintenance of our corporal necessities, for our food and sustenance, and partly also to make our humble suit in prayers to his Fatherly providence, to conserve the same fruits in sending us reasonable Weather, whereby we may gather in the said Fruits, to that end for which his Fatherly goodness hath provided them; yet have we occasion secondarily given us in our Walks on those days, to consider the old ancient Bounds and Limits belonging to our own Township, and to other our Neighbours bordering about us, to the intent that we should be content with our own, and not contentiously strive for others, to the breach of Charity, by any encroaching one upon another, for claiming one of the other, further than that in ancient right and custom our Fore-fathers have peaceably laid out unto us for our commodity and comfort. Surely a great oversight it were in us, which be Chiliasm men in one profession of Faith, daily looking for that heavenly inheritance which is bought for every one of us by the blood-shedding of our Saviour Jesus Christ, to strive and fall to variance for the earthly Bounds of our Towns, to the disquiet of our Life between our selves, to the wasting of our Goods by vain Expenditures and Costs in the Law. We ought to remember, that our habitation is but transient and short in this mortal life. The more shame it were to fall out into immortal hated among our selves, for to bristle possessons, and so to lose our eternal inheritance in heaven. It may stand well with Charity, for a Christian man quietly to maintain his right and just title, and it is the part of every good Townsman, to prefer to as much as lieth in him, the Liberties, Franchise, Bounds, and Limits of his Town and Country; but yet to strive for our very Rights and Duties with the breach of Love and Charity, which is the only Liberty of a Christian man, or with the hurt of godly peace and quiet, by which we be knit together in one general fellow - ship of Christ's Family, in one common household of GOD, that is utterly forbidden. That both GOD abhor and detest, which provokes Almighty GOD to wrath otherwise to deprive us quite of our Commodities and Liberties, because we do so abuse them, for matters of Strife, Discord, and Discontent. St. Paul blamed the Gentiles for such Contentions, sluing among themselves, to the slander of their profession before the Enemies of Christ's Religion; laying thus unto them: Now there is utterly a fault among you, because ye go to Law one with another. Why rather suffer ye not wrong? Why rather suffer ye not harm? If St. Paul blamed the Christian men whereof some of them, for their own right went contentiously to Law, commanding thereby the profession of Patience in a Christian man; if Christ our Saviour would have us rather suffer wrong, and to turn our left cheek to him which hath smitten the right, to suffer one wrong after another, rather than by breach of Charity to defend our own: In what state be they before GOD who do the wrong? What curseth do they fall into, who by false witness defraud either their Neighbour, or Township of his due right and just possesson? Which will not let to take an Oath by the holy Name of GOD, the Author of all Truth, to let out Falshood and a Wrong? Know ye not (faith St. Paul) that the unrighteous shall not inherit the Kingdom of GOD? What shall we then win to increase a little the Bounds and Possessions of the Earth, and lose the Possessions of the Inheritance everlasting? Let us therefore take each heed in maintaining of our bounds and Possessions, that we commit not wrong by encroaching upon other. Let us beware of sudden Verdict in things of doubt. Let us well advise our selves to abstain that certainly, whereof either we have no good knowledge or remembrance, or to claim that we have no just title to. Thou shalt not (commandeth Almighty GOD in his Law) remove thy Neighbours Mark, which they of old time had set in their inheritance. Thou shalt not (faith Solomon) remove the ancient Bounds which thy Fathers have laid, and lest we should esteem it to be but a light offence so to do, we shall understand, that it is reckoned among the Curseth of GOD pronounced upon Sinners. Accursed be he, faith Almighty GOD by Moses, who removeth his Neighbours Doles, and Marks, and all the People shall say, answering Amen thereto, as ratifying that Curse upon whom it doth light. They do much provoke the wrath of GOD upon themselves, which use to grind up the Doles and Marks, which of ancient time were laid for the division of Stars and Barks in the Fields, to bring the Owners to their right. They do wickedly which do turn up the ancient Terrces of the Fields, that old men before times with great pains did read out, whereby the Lords Records (which be the Tenants Evidences) be perverted and translated sometimes to the disherriting of the right Owner, to the oppellation of the poor Fatherless, or the poor Widow. These croustous men know not what inconveniences they be the Authors of. Sometime by such craft and deceit be committed great disorders and riots in the challenge of their Lands, yea, sometimes murders and bloody deed, whereas they are guilty whatsoever they be that give the occasion thereof. This croustous practising therefore with thy Neighbours, Lands and Goods, is hateful to Almighty GOD. Let no man subtly compass or defraud his Neighbour (hiddeth St. Paul) in any manner of Cause. For GOD, faith he, is a revenger of all such. GOD is the GOD of all equity and righteousness, and therefore forbidden all such deceit and subtility in his Law; by these words, ye shall not deal unjustly in Judgment, in Line, in Weight, nor Measure. Ye shall have just Balances, true Weights, and true Measures. False Balances, saith Solomon, are an abomination unto the Lord. Remember what St. Paul faith, GOD is the Revenger of all Wrong and Injustice, as we see by daily experience, however it thinebth ungraciously which is gotten by falshood and craft. We be taught by experience, how Almighty GOD never suffereth the third to enjoy his Fathers wrong Possessions, yea, many a time they are taken from himself in his own life time. GOD is not bound to defend such possessions as are gotten by the Devil and his counsel. GOD will defend all such mens Goods and Possessions, which by him are obtained and possessed, and will defend them against the violent Oppressors. So witnessed Solomon, The Lord will destroy the house of the proud man: But he will establish the borders of the Widow. No doubt of it, faith David, better is a little truly gotten to the righteous man, than the innumerable riches of the wrongfull man. Let us see therefore (good People) all wrong practices in getting, maintaining, and defending our Possessions, Lands, and Livelihoods, our Bounds and Liberties, remembering that such Possessions be all under GODS revengeance. But what do we speak of House and Land? Nay, it is laid in the Scripture, that GOD in his ire doth root up whole Kingdoms for Wrongs and Oppressions, and doth translate Kingdoms from one Nation to another, for unrighteous dealing, for Wrongs and Riches gotten by deceit. This is the practice of the Holy One faith Daniel, to the intent that living men may know, that the Most high hath power over the Kingdoms of men, and giveth them to whomsoever he will. Furthermore, what is the cause of Penury and Starvage, of Death and Famine? Is it any other thing but a token of GODS Ire, revenging our Wrongs and Injuries done one to another? Ye have sown much, (obaideth GOD by his Prophet Haggai) and yet bring in little, ye eat, but ye be not satisfied; ye drink, but ye be not filled; ye cloath your selves, but ye be not warm, and be that earneth his Wages, putteth it into a bottomless purse; Ye looked for much increase, but loe, it came to little, and when ye thought it home (into your barns) I did blow it away, saith the Lord. O consider therefore the Ire of GOD against Sleaners, Gatherers, and Incroachers upon upon other mens Lands, and Possessions! It is lamentable to see in some places, how greedy men use to plough and grate upon their Neighbours Land that lieth next them; how covetous men nowadays plough up to nigh the common Barks and Walks, which good men before time made the greater and broader, partly for the commodious Walk of his Neighbour, partly for the better back in harvest time, to the more comfort of his poor Neighbours Cattle. It is a shame to behold the intemperances of some covetous persons in their doings; that where their Ancestors left of their Land a broad and sufficient Beer Bark, to carry the Corps to the Christian Seppulchre, how men pinch at such beer Barks, which by long use and custom ought to be inviolably kept for that purpose: And now they either quite see them up, and turn the dead Body to be born farther about in the High-Streets; or else if they leave any such Beer, it is too strait for two to walk on.

These strange encroachments (good Neighbours) should be looked upon. These should be considered in these days of our Perambulations. And afterward the parties admonished, and drastically reformed, who be the doers of such private gaining, to the slander of the Township, and the hindrance of the Poor. Your High-Ways should be considered in your Walks, to understand where to flow your Days works, according to the good Statutes provided for the same. It is a good need of Mercy, to amend the dangerous and noisome Ways, whereby thy poor Neighbour sitting on his silly weak Beast soundeth not in the deep thereof, and so the Basket the works served, for discouraging of poor Vagabonds to rest therewith the same cause. If now therefore we will have your prayers heard before Almighty GOD, for the increase of your Corn and Cattle, and for the defence thereof from unreasonable Hills and Blasts, from Rain and other such tempers, love equity, and righteousness, ensue Mercy and Charity, which GOD most required at our hands. Which Almighty GOD respecting chiefly, in making his Civil Laws, for his People the Israelites, in charging the Owners not to gather up their Corn too nigh at harvest season; nor the Grapes and Olives in gathering time, but to leave behind some ears of Corn for the poor Cleaners. By this he meant to induce them to pity the poor, to relieve the Needy, to show mercy and kindness. It cannot be lost, which for his sake is distributed to the Poor, for he which ministreth Seed to the Sower, and Bread to the hungry, which fendeeth down the early and the latter Rain upon your Farms, so to fill up the Barns with Corn, and the Winepresses with Wine and Oyl; he, I say, who recompenseth all kind of Benfits in the Resurrection of the Fult, will assuredly recompence all merciful deeds showed to the Needy, howsoever unable the Poor is, upon whom it is bestowed. O, saith Solomon, let not Mercy and Truth forsake thee. Bind them about thy neck, saith he, and write them on the table of thy heart, so shalt thou find favour at GODS hand.

Thus honour thou the Lord with thy riches, and with the first Fruits of thine increase: So shall thy Barns be filled with abundance.

dance, and thy Presses shall burst with new Wine; Nay, GOD hath promised to open the Windows of Heaven; upon the liberal righteous man, that he shall want nothing. He will repest the devouring Caterpillar, which should devour your fruits. He will give you peace and quiet to gather in your provision; that ye may sit every man under his own vine quietly, without fear of the foreign Enemies to invade you. He will give you not only Food to feed on, but Provisions and good Appetites to take comfort of your Fruits, whereby in all things ye may have sufficiency. Finally, he will bless you with all manner of abundance in this transitory life, and endue you with all manner of benefit in the next World in the Kingdom of Heaven, through the merits of our Lord and Saviour: To whom with the Father and the Holy Ghost, be all honour everlasting. Amen.
MATRIMONY.

The Word of Almighty God doth tell us, and declare, where the original beginning of Matrimony came, and why it is ordained. It is instituted of God, to the intent that Man and Woman should live lawfully in a perpetual Friendship, to bring forth fruit, and to avoid Fornication. By which mean a good Conscience might be preserved on both Parties, in bribing the corrupt inclinations of the Flesh, within the limits of honesty. For God hath strictly forbidden all Whoredom and uncleanness, and hath from time to time taken grievous punishment of this inordinate lust, as all Stories and Ages have declared. Furthermore, it is also ordained, that the Church of God and his Kingdom might by this kind of life be conferred and enlarged, not only in that God giveth Children by his blessing, but also in that they be brought up by the Parents godly, in the knowledge of God's Word, that thus the knowledge of God and true Religion might be delivered by Succession from one to another, that finally many might enjoy that everlasting immortality. Wherefore, so much as Matrimony serveth us as well to avoid Sin and offence, as to increase the Kingdom of God: you, as all other who enter the State, must acknowledge this benefit of God, with pure and thankful minds, for that he hath so ruled your hearts, that ye follow not the example. of the State of Matrimony.

ple of the wicked World, who set their delight in filthiness of sin, but both of you stand in the fear of GOD, and abhor all filthiness. For that is surely the singular gift of GOD, where the common example of the World declareth how the Devil hath their hearts bound and entangled in divers knaves, so that they in their Wives' state run into open abominations, without any grudge of their Conscience. Which sort of men that live so desperately, and filthy, what damnation awaiteth them, St. Paul describeth it to them, saying, Neither Whoremonger, neither Adulterer, shall inherit the Kingdom of GOD. This horrid judgment of GOD ye be escaped through his mercy, if to be that ye live inseparably, according to GOD'S Ordinance. But yet I would not have ye careless without Watchful. For the Devil will assay to attempt all things to interrupt and hinder your hearts and godly purpose, if ye will give him any entry. For he will either labour to break this godly knot once begun betwixt you, or else at the least he will labour to incumber it with divers griefs and displeasures.

And this is the principal craft, to work dissension of hearts of the one from the other: That whereas now there is pleasant and sweet love betwixt you, he will in the head thereof, bring in most bitter and unpleasant discord. And surely that same adversary of ours, doth, as it were from above, assail our nature and condition. For this folly is ever from our tender age grown up with us, to have a desire to rule, to think highly of our self, so that none thinketh it meet to give place to another. That wicked vice of stubborn will and self love, is more meet to break and to dissolve the love of heart, than to preserve Concord. Wherefore married persons must apply their minds in most earnest wise to Concord, and must crave continually of GOD the help of his holy Spirit, so to rule their hearts, and to knit their minds together, that they be not disserved by any division of Discord. This necessity of prayer, must be oft in the practice and using of married persons, that oft times the one should pray for the other, lest hate and debate do arise betwixt them. And because few do consider this thing, but more few do perform it (I lay, to pray diligently) we see how wonderfully the Devil delude and decoyeth this state, how few Marriages there be without chidings, bawldings, tauntings, repentings, bitter cuttings, and sightings. Which things whosoever both commit, they do not consider that it is the affliction of the godly enemy, who taketh great delight therein; for else they would with all earnest endeavour, strive against these mischiefs not only with Prayer, but also with all possible diligence. But they would not give place to the provocation of wrath, which stirreth them either to such rough and sharp words or stripes, which is surely compelled by the Devil, whose temptation if it be followed, must needs begin and weave the web of all miseries and sorrows. For this is most certainly true, that of such beginnings must needs ensue the breach of true Concord in heart, whereby all love must needs shortly be banished. Then can it not be but a miserable thing to behold, that yet they are of necessity compelled to live together, which yet cannot be in quiet together; and this is most cunningly every where to be seen. But what is the cause thereof. Forsooth, because they will not consider the crafty trains of the Devil, and therefore give not themselves to pray to GOD, that he would vouchsafe to repress his power. Moreover, they do not consider how they promote the purpose of the Devil, in that they follow the wrath of their hearts, while they treat one another, while they in their folly turn all upside down, while they will never give over their right, as they esteem it, yes, while many times they will not give over the wrong part indeed. Learn thou therefore, if thou destreest to be void of all these miseries, if thou destreest to live peaceably and comfortably in wedlock, how to make the earnest Prayer to GOD, that he would govern both your hearts by the holy Spirit, to restrain the Devil's power, whereby your Concord may remain perpetually. But to this Prayer must be joined a singular diligence, whereof Saint Peter gives this precept saying, Thou husbands, deal with your Wives according to knowledge, giving honour to the Wife, as unto the weaker vessel, and as unto them that are heirs also of the grace of life, that your Prayers be not hindered. This precept doth particularly pertain to the husband: for he ought to be the Leader and Author of Love, in cherishing and increasing Concord, which then shall take place, if he will use moderation and not tyranny, and if he yield something to the Woman. For the Woman is a weak Creature, not indited with like strength and constancy of mind, therefore they be the corner disquieted, and they be the more prone to all weak affections and dispositions of mind, more than men be, and lighter they be, and more vain in their fantasies and opinions. These things must be considered of the man, that he be not too stiff, so that he ought to wink at some things, and must gently expound all things, and to forbear. Howbeit the common sort of men both judge, that such moderation should not become a man: For they say that it is a token of womanish cowardness, and therefore they think that it is a man's part to fume in anger, to fight with fist and staff. Howbeit, howorder they imagine, undoubtedly St. Peter doth better judge what should be seeming to a man, and what he should most reasonably perform. For he saith, reasoning should be used, and not fighting. Yes he saith more, that the Woman ought to have a certain honour attributed to her, that is to say, she must be spared and born with, the rather for that she is the weaker vessel, of a frail heart, incessant and with a word soon filled with wrath. And therefore considering these her frailties she is to be the rather spared. By this means, thou shalt not only nourish Concord, but shalt have her heart in thy power and will. For honest natures will sooner be retained to do their duties, rather by gentle words, than by stripes. But he which will do all things with extremity and severity, and both use always rigor in words and stripes, what will that avail in the conclusion? Surely nothing, but that he thereby betters forward the Devil's Work, he baniseth away Concord, Charity and Sweet Amity, and bringeth in Differason. Hated, and Persecutions, the greatest griefs that can be in the mutual love and fellowship of mans life. Beyond all this, it bringeth another evil therewith, for it is the destruction and interruption of Prayer: For in the time that the mind is occupied with Differason and Discord, there can be no true true Prayer used. For the Lords Prayer hath not only a respect to particular persons, but to the whole universal, in the which we openly pronounce, that we will forgive them which have offended against us, even as we ask forgiveness of our sins of GOD. Which thing how can it be done rightly, when their hearts be at disission? How can they pray each for other, when they be at hate betwixt themselves? Now, if the aid of Prayer be taken away, by what means can they sustain themselves in any comfort? For they cannot otherwise either reful the Devil, or yet have their hearts laid in stable comfort in all perils and necessities, but by Prayer. Thus all discomforts, as well worldly as ghostly, follow this forward selfishness, and cumbrous brethren, in manners, which be more meet for brute Beasts, than for reasonable Creatures. Saint Peter doth not allow these things, but the Devil desirh them gladly. Wherefore take the more heed. And yet a man may be a man, although he doth not use such extremity, yea, although he should dissemble some things in his Wives manners. And this is the part of a Christian man, which both pleaseth GOD, and serveth also in good use to the comfort of their Marriage State. Now as concerning the Wives duty, What shall become her? Shall the abuse the gentleness and humanity of her husband, and, at her pleasure, turn all things upside down? No surely, For this is far repugnant against GODS Commandment. For this both St. Peter preach to them, *Pe Wives, 1 Pet. 2. be ye in subjection to obey your own husbands. To obey, is another thing than to control or command, which yet they may do, to their Children, and to their Family: But as for their Husbands, them must they obey, and cease from commanding, and perform subjection. For this surely both nourish concord very much, when the Wife is ready at hand at her Husbands commandment, when she will apply her self to his will, when the endeavoureth her self to seek his contentation, and to do him pleasure, when she will exercise all things that might offend him: For this will most truly be visited the laying of the Pet; A good Wife by obeying her Husband, shall bear the rule, so that he shall have a delight and a gladness, the Former at all times to return home to her. But on the contrary part, when the Wives be stubborn, Forward, and malapert, their Husbands are compelled thereby to abhor and live from their own houses, even as they should have battle with their Enemies. Howbeit, it can feantly be, but that some offences shall sometime chance between them: For no man hath live without fault, specially, for that the Woman is the more frail party. Therefore let them beware that they stand not in their faults and wilfulness: but rather let them acknowledge their follies, and lay, My Husband, so it is, that by my anger I was compelled to do this or that, forgive it me, and hereafter I will take better heed. Thus ought the Woman more ready to do, the more they be ready to offend. And they shall not do this only to avoid strife and debate: but rather in the respect of the Commandment of GOD, as St. Paul expresseth it in this form of words, Let Women Ephes. 5: be subject to their Husbands as to the Lord: for the Husband is the head of the Woman, as Christ is the head of the Church. Here you understand, that GOD hath commanded that ye should acknowledge the authority of the Husband, and refer to him.

the honour of obedience. And Saint Peter saith in that place before hearkened, that holy Matrons did in former time deck themselves, not with Gold and Silver, but in putting their whole hope in God, and in obeying their Husbands, as Sarah obeyed Abraham, calling him Lord, whose daughers ye be (saith he) if ye follow her example. This sentence is very meet for Women to paint in their remembrance. Truth it is, that they must specially feel the grief and pains of their Patrimony in that they relinquish the Liberty of their own Rule, in the pain of their Travelling, in the bringing up of their Children. In which Offices they be in great perils, and be grieved with great afflictions, which they might be without, if they lived out of Patrimony. But Saint Peter saith, that this is the chief Ornament of holy Matrons, in that they let their hope and trust in God, that is to say, in that they refused not from Marriage for the business thereof, for the gifts and perils thereof, but committed all such adventures to God, in most sure trust of help, after that they have called upon his aid. O Woman, do thou the like, and so shalt thou be most excellently beautified before God and all his Angels and Saints, and thou needest not to seek further for doing any better works. For, obey thy husband, take regard of his requests, and give heed unto him to perceive what he required of thee, and so shalt thou honour God, and live peaceably in thy house. And beyond all this, God shall follow thee with his benediction, that all things shall well prosper, both to thee and to thy husband, as the Psalm saith, Blessed is the man which feareth God, and walketh in his ways, thou shalt have the fruit of thine own hands, happy shalt thou be, and well it shall go with thee. Thy Wife shall be as a Vine, plentifully spreading about thy house. Thy children shall be as the young Springs of the Olives about thy Table. Lo, thus shall that man be blessed (saith David) that feareth the Lord. This let the Wife have ever in mind, the rather admonished hereto by the apparel of her head, whereby is signified, that she is under covert of obedience of her husband. And as that apparel is of nature so appointed to declare her subjection: so biddest Saint Paul, that all other of her raiment should express both shamefacefaces and subjection. For if it be not lawful for the Woman to have her head bare, but to bear thereto the sign of her power, wherewith she goeth: more is it required that we declare the thing that is meant thereby. And therefore these ancient Women of the Old World called their Husbands Lords, and showed them reverence in obeying them. But preference she will say, That those men loved their Wives indeed. I know that well enough, and bear it well in mind. But when I do admonish you of your duties, then call not to consideration what their duties be. For when we our selves do teach our Children to obey us as their Parents; or when we reform our Servants, and tell them that they should obey their Masters, not only at the eye, but as the Lord: If they should tell us again our duties, we should not think it well done. For when we are admonished of our duties and faults, we ought not then to seek what other mens duties be. For though a man had a Companion in his fault, yet should he not thereby be without his fault. But this must be only looked on,

by what means thou maist make thy self without blame. For Adam did lay the blame upon the Woman, and he turned it unto the Serpent: but yet neither of them was thus excused. And therefore being not such excuses to me at this time, but apply all thy diligence to bear thine obedience to thine Husband. For when I take in hand to admonish thy Husband to love thee, and to cherish thee, yet will I not cease to set out the Law that is appointed for the Woman, as well as I would require of the Man what is written for his Law. So thou therefore about such things as becometh thee only, and thy self in such a manner as in his duty to do, but perform thou diligently those things which the Law-maker hath charged thee to do: For thus is it most reasonable to obey GOD, if thou wilt not suffer thy self to transgress his Law. Be that loved his Friend, learneth to do no great thing: but he that honoureth that is hurtful and hateful to him, this man is worthy most commendation: Even so think you, if thou canst suffer an extreme Husband, thou shalt have a great reward therefor: But if thou lovest him only because he is gentle and courteous, what reward will GOD give thee therefore? Yet I speak not these things that I would with the husbands be sharp towards their wives: But I exhort the Women, that they would patiently bear the sharpness of their husbands. For when either parties do their best to perform their duties the one to the other, then followeth thereon great profit to their Neighbours for their examples sake. For when the Woman is ready to suffer a harsh husband, and the man will not extremily intreat his stubborn and troublesome wife, then be all things in quiet, as in a most sure haven. Even thus was it done in old time, that every one did their own duty and office, and was not busy to require the duty of their Neighbours. Consider, I pray thee, that Abraham took to him his Brother's son, his wife did not blame him therefore. He commanded him to go with him a long journey, she did not gainsay it, but obeyed his precept.

Again, after all these great miseries, labours, and pains of that journey, when Abraham was made as Lord over all, yet did he give place to Lot of his superiority: which matter Sarah took to little to grief, that she never once suffered her tongue to speak such words as the common manner of Women is wont to do in these days, when they see their husbands in such rooms, to be made underlings, and to be put under their Youngers: then they upbraid them with cumbrous talk, and call them Fools, Dullards, and Cowards for so doing. But Sarah was so far from speaking any such thing, that it came never into her mind and thought to so lap, but allowed the wisdom and will of her Husband. Yet besides all this after the said Lot had thus his Will, and left to his Circle the set portion of land, he chanced to fall into extreme peril: Which chance when it came to the knowledge of this said Patriarch, he incontinent put all his men in harness, and prepared himself with all his Family and Friends, against the Poll of the Periads. In which case Sarah did not counsel him to the contrary, nor did say, as thou might have been said, My husband, whither goest thou so unadvisedly? Why runnest runnell thou thus on head—Why dost thou offer thyself to so great perils, and art thus ready to jeopard thine own life, and to peril the lives of all thine, for such a man as hath done thee such wrong? At the least way, if thou regardest not thyself, yet have compassion on me, which for thy love have forsaken my kindred and my country, and have the want both of my friends and kinsfolk. And thus come into so far countries with thee, have pity on me, and make me not here a widow, to call me into such cares and troubles. Thus might she have said: But Sarah neither laid nor thought such words, but she kept her self in silence in all things. Furthermore, all that time when she was barren, and took no pains, as other women did, by bringing forth fruit in his house: What did he? he complained not to his wife, but to Almighty God. And consider how either of them did their duties as became them: for neither did he despise Sarah, because she was barren; nor never did call it in her teeth. Consider again how Abraham expelled the handmaid out of the house, when she required it: So that by this I may truly prove, that the one was pleased and contented with the other in all things: But yet let not your eyes only on this matter, but look further what was done before this, that Hagar used her mistress delightedly, and that Abraham himself was somewhat provoked against her, which must needs be an intolerable matter, and a painful, to a free-hearted Woman and a chaste. Let not therefore the Woman be too but to call for the duty of her husband, where she should be ready to perform her own, for that is not worthy any great commendations. And even so again, let not the man only consider what becometh to the Woman, and to stand too earnestly gazing thereon, for that is not his part or duty. But as I have said, let either party be ready and willing to perform that which becometh especially to themselves. For if we be bound to hold out our left cheek to strangers which will smite us on the right cheek: how much more ought we to suffer an extreme and unkind husband: But yet I mean not that a man should beat his wife, God forbid that, for that is the great shame that can be, not so much to her that is beaten, as to him that doth the deed. But if by such fortune thou chances upon such an husband, take it not too heavily, but suppose thou, that thereby is laid up no small reward hereafter, and in this life time no small commendation to thee, if thou canst be quiet. But yet to you that be men, Thus I speak, Let there be none so grievous fault to compel you to beat your wives. But what say I, Your Wives? No, it is not to be born with, that an honest man should lay hands on his maid-servant to beat her. Wherefore if it be a great shame for a man to beat his bond-servant, much more rebuke it, to lay violent hands upon his free-woman. And this thing may be well understood by the Laws which the Panims have made, which do discharge her any longer to dwell with such an husband, as unworthy to have any further company with her that doth misbehave her. For it is an extreme point, thus to vilify to entertain her like a slave, that is fellow to thee of thy life, and to joined unto thee before-time in the necessary matters of thy living. And therefore a man may well liken such a man (if he may be called a man, rather than a wild beast) to a killer of his Father or his Mother.

And whereas we be commanded to forsake our Father and Mother, for our Wives sake, and yet thereby do work them none injury, but do fulfill the Law of GOD: How can it not appear then to be a point of extreme madness, to entreat her despightfully, for whom God hath commanded thee to leave Parents? Pea, who can suffer such despight? Who can worthily express the inconvenience, that is, to see what weepings and wailings be made in the open streets, when Neighbours run together to the house of so untruly an Husband, as to a Bodilam-man, who goeth about to obturbe all that he hath at home? Who would not think that it were better for such a man to wild the ground to open, and swallow him in, than once ever after to be seen in the Market? But peradventure thou wilt object, that the Woman provoked thee to this point. But consider thou again, that the Woman is a frail Vessel, and thou art therefore made the Ruler and Head obre her, to bear the weakness of her in this her subjection. And therefore still thou to declare the honest commendation of thine authority, which thou canst no way better do, than to forbear to urge her in her weaknesses and subjection. For even as the King appeared so much the more noble, the more excellent and noble he maketh his Officers and Lieutenants, whom if he should disdaine, and despise the authority of their dignity, he should deprive himself of a great part of his own honour: Even so, if thou dost despise her that is set in the next room beside thee, thou dost much derogate and decay the excellency and vertue of thine own authority. Acquaint all these things in thy mind, and be gentle and quiet. Understand that GOD hath given thee Children with her, and art made a Father, and by due reason appease thyself. Dost thou not see the husbandmen what diligence they use to till that ground which once they have taken to farm, though it be never so full of faults? As for an example, though it be dry, though it bringeth forth Weeds, though the Soil cannot bear too much wet, yet he tilleth it, and so winneth fruit thereof: Even in like manner, if thou wouldst use like diligence to instruct and order the mind of thy spouse, if thou wouldst diligently apply thyself to work out by little and little the noxion weeds of uncomely manners out of her mind, with wholesome precepts, it could not be, but in time thou shouldst feel the pleasant fruit thereof to both your comforts. Therefore that this thing chance not so, perform this thing that I do here counsel thee: Whensoever any unpleasant matter riseth at home, if the Wife hath done ought amiss, comfort her, and increase not the headnens. For though thou shouldst be grieved with never so many things, yet shalt thou find nothing more grievous than to want the benevolence of thy Wife at home. What offence forsother thou canst name, yet shalt thou find none more intolerable, than to be at debate with thy Wife. And for this cause most of all oughtst thou to have this love in reverence. And if reason moveth thee to bear any burden at any other mens bands, much more at thy Wives. For if she be poor, upbraid her not, if shalle simple, taunt her not, but be the more courteous: for she is thy body, and made one flesh with thee. But thou peradventure wilt say that she is a wantful Woman, a Dunskard, and heastly, without wit and reason. For this cause bewail her the more. Chafe not in anger, but pray pray unto Almighty GOD. Let her be admonished and helped with good counsel, and do thou thy best endeavour, that she may be delivered of all these affections. But if thou shouldst beat her, thou shalt encrease her evil affections: For cowardliness and harpness is not amended with cowardliness, but with softness and gentleness. Furthermore, consider what reward thou shalt have at GODS hand: For where thou mightest beat her, and yet, for the respect of the fear of GOD, thou wilt abstain and bear patiently her great offences, the rather in respect of that Law which forbiddeth that a man should call out his Wife, what fault longeth he be cumbed with; thou shalt have a very great reward; and before the receipt of that reward, thou shalt feel many commodities. For by this means she shall be made the more obedient, and thou for her sake shalt be made the more meek. It is written in a Story of a certain strange Philosopher, which had a cursed Wife, a sotward, and a drunkard. When he was asked for what consideration he did so bear her evil manners? He made answer, By this means (said he) I have at home a Schoolmaster, and an example how I should behave myself abroad: For I shall (lath he) be the more quiet with others, being thus daily exercised and taught in the forbeauting of her. Surely it is a shame that Panims should be wiser than we; we, I say; that be commanded to resemble Angels, or rather GOD himself through meekness. And for the love of virtue, this said Philosopher Socrates would not expel his Wife out of this house. Yeas, some say that he did therefore marry his Wife, to learn this virtue by that occasion. Wherefore, seeing many men be far behind the wisdom of this man, my counsel is, that first and before all things, a man do his best endeavour to get him a good Wife, endued with all holiness and virtue: But if it so chance that he is deceived, that he hath chosen such a Wife as is neither good nor tolerant, then let the Husband follow this Philosopher, and let him instruct his Wife in every condition, and never lay these matters to light. For the Merchant-man, except he shall be at composition with his Faktor to use his interfares quietly, he will neither stir his Ship to sail, nor yet will lay hands upon his Merchandise: Even so, let us do all things, that we may have the fellowship of our Wives, which is the Faktor of all our doings at home, in great quiet and rest. And by these means all things shall prosper quietly, and shall we pass through the dangers of the troubled Sea of this World. For this state of life will be more honourable and comfortable than our houses, then Servants, than Money, than Lands and Possessions, than all things that can be told. As all these with Sedition and Discord, can never work us any comfort: So shall all things turn to our commodity and pleasure, if we had this yoke in our concord of heart and mind. Whereupon do your best endeavour, that after this sort ye use your Matrimony, and so shall ye be armed on every side. Ye have escaped the snares of the Devil, and the unlawful lusts of the flesh, ye have the quietness of Conscience by this institution of Matrimony obtained by GOD: therefore live off paper to him, that be would be present by you, that he would continue Concord and Charity betwixt you. Do the best ye can of your parts, tocultive your selves to softness and meekness, and bear well in worth such oversights as chance; and thus shall your conversation be most pleasant.

vant and comfortable. And although (which can no otherwise be) some adversities shall follow, and otherwhiles now one discommodity, now another shall appear: yet in this common trouble and adversity, lift up both your hands unto heaven: call upon the help and assistance of GOD, the Author of your Marriage, and surely the promise of relief is at hand. For Christ affirmed in his Gospel, 'Where two or three be gathered together in my Name, and be agreed, what matter for ever they pay for, it shall be granted them of my heavenly Father.' Why therefore shouldst thou be afraid of the danger, where thou hast so ready a promise, and so nigh an help? Furthermore, you must understand how necessary it is for Christian folk to bear Christ's Cross: for else we shall never feel how comfortable GOD'S help is unto us. Therefore give thanks to GOD for his great benefit, in that ye have taken upon you this state of wedlock, and pray you instantly, that Almighty GOD may luckily defend and maintain you therein: that neither ye be overcome with any temptations, nor with any adversity. But before all things, take good heed that ye give no occasion to the Devil to let and hinder your prayers by Diſcord and Diſſent: for there is no stronger defence and stay in all our life, than is Prayer, in the which we may call for the help of GOD and obtain it, whereby we may win his Blessing, his Grace, his Defence and Protection, to continue therein to a better life to come: which grant us, he that died for us all, to whom be all honour and praise, for ever and ever. Amen.
AN HOMILY AGAINST IDLENESS.

Orasmuch as man, being not born to ease and rest, but to labour and travail, is by corruption of nature through sin, so far degenerated and grown out of kind, that he taketh Idleness to be no evil at all, but rather a commendable thing, seemly for those that be wealthy; and therefore is greedily embraced of most part of men, as agreeable to their sensual affections, and all labour and travail is diligently avoided, as a thing painful and repugnant to the pleasure of the flesh: It is necessary to be declared unto you, that by the Ordinance of GOD, which he hath set in the nature of man, every one ought, in his lawful Vocation and Calling, to give himself to labour: and that Idleness, being repugnant to the same Ordinance, is a grievous sin, and also, for the great inconveniences and mischiefs which spring thereof, an intolerable evil: to the intent that when ye understand the same, ye may diligently see from it, and on the other part earnestly apply your selves, every man in his Vocation, to honest labour and business, which as it is enjoyned unto man by GOD's appointment, so it wanteth not his manifold blessings and sundry benefits.

Almighty GOD, after that he had created man, put him into Paradise, that he might dress and keep it: But when he had transgressed GOD's Commandment, eating the fruit of the Tree which was forbidden him, Almighty GOD forthwith did cast him out of Paradise into this woeful Case of misery, enjoying him to labour the ground that he was taken out of, and to eat his bread in the sweat of his face all the days of his life. It is the appointment and will of GOD, that every man, during the time of this mortal and transitory life, should give himself to such honest and godly exercise and labour, and every one follow his own business, and to walk uprightly in his own Calling.

Gen. 3.
The Sermon against Idleness.

Dan (saith Job) is born to labour. And we are commanded by Jesus Christ, not to hate painful works, neither husbandry, nor other such mysteries of travel, which the holy bath created. The wise man alsoShortly to think the Waters of our own Cistern, and of the Rivers that run out of the midst of our own Well: meaning thereby, that we should live of our own labours, and not devour the labours of other. St. Paul bearing that among the Thessalonians there were certain that lived disolutely and out of order, that is to say, which did not work, but were idlers: not getting their own living with their own travel, but eating other men's bread of ease; did command the Thessalonians, not only to withdraw themselves, and abate from the familiar company of such inordinate persons, but also that if there were any such among them that would not labour, the same should not eat, nor have any living at others' hands. Which doctrine of St. Paul (no doubt) is grounded upon the general Ordinance of God, which is, that every man should labour: and therefore it is to be obeyed of all men, and no man can justly exempt himself from the same. But when it is said, all men should labour, it is not so strictly meant, that all men should use handy labour. But as there be divers sorts of labours, some of the mind, and some of the body, and some of both: So every one (except by reason of age, debility of body, or want of health, he be unapt to labour at all) ought both for the getting of his own living honestly, and for to profit others, in some kind of labour to exercise himself, according as the vocation whereunto God hath called him doth require. So that whoever doth good to the Common-Weal and Society of men with his industry and labour, whether it be by governing the Common-Weal publickly, or by bearing publick Office or Ministry, or by doing any common necessary affairs of his Country, or by giving countenance to teaching and instructing others, or by what other means ever he be occupied, so that a profit and benefit redound thereof unto others, the same person is not to be accounted idle, though he work no bodily labour, nor is to be denied his living (if he attend his Vocation) though he work not with his hands.

Bodily labour is not required of them which by reason of their Vocation and office are occupied in the labors of the mind, to the succour and help of others. St. Paul shortly to chide and reprove idle Widows, which go about from house to house, because they are not only idle, but lusters also, and idlers. Speaking things which are not comely. The Prophet Ezekiel, declaring what the sins of the City of Sodom were, reckoned Idleness to be one of the principal. The sins of Sodom were these, Pride, Falseness of Heat, Abundance, and Idleness: These things had Sodom and her Daughters, meaning the Cities subject to her. The horrible and strange kind of Destruction of that City and all the Country about the same, (which was Fire and Brimstone raining from Heaven) most manifestly declared, what a grievous sin Idleness is, and ought to admonish us to flee from the same, and embrace honest and godly labour. But if we give our selves to Idleness and Sloth, to Lurking and Loitering, to wilful Wandering, and wasteful spending, never telling our selves to honest labour, but living like drones, by the labours of other men, then do we break the Lord's Commandment, we go astray from our Vocation, and incur the danger of God's wrath and heavy displeasure, to our endless

Let destruction, except by repentance we turn again uneignedly unto God. The inconveniences and mischiefs that come of idleness, as well to man's body as to his soul, are more than can in short time be well rehearsed. Sone we shall declare and open unto you, that by considering them, ye may the better with your selves gather the end. An idle hand (as that Solomon) maketh poor, but a quick labouring hand maketh rich.

Prov. 10.
Prov. 11, 28. Again, he that tilleth his land, shall have plentifulness of bread, but he that made idle idleness is a very fool, and shall have poverty enough. Again, a nothful body will not go to plough for cold of the Winter, therefore shall he go a begging in Summer and have nothing.

But what shall we need to stand much about the proving of this, that poverty followed idleness? We have too much experience thereof (the thing is the more to be lamented) in this Realm. For a great part of the beggary that is among the poor, can be imputed to nothing so much as to idleness, and to the negligence of parents, which do not bring up their children either in good learning, honest labour, or some commendable occupation or trade, whereby when they come to age, they might get their living. Daily experience also teacheth, that nothing is more enemys or pernicious to the health of man's body than idleness, too much ease and sleep, and want of exercise. But these troubles like incommodities, albeit they be great and no less, yet because they concern chiefly the body and external goods, they are not to be compared with the mischiefs and inconveniences, which the Sow idleness happeneth to the soul, whereof we will recite some. Idleness is not alone, but hath always a long tail of other vices hanging on, which corrupt and infect the whole man after such lost, that he is made at length nothing else but a trump of sin. Idleness (faith Jesus-Syrach) bringeth much evil and mischief. St. Bernard calleth it the mother of all evils, and head of all vices, adding moreover, that it doth prepare, and (as it were) tread the way to hell fire. Where idleness is once received, there the Devil is ready to let in his foot, and to plant all kind of wickedness and sin, to the everlasting destruction of man's soul. Which thing to be most true, we are plainly taught in the xiii. of Matthew, where it is said, that the Enemy came while men were asleep and sowed naughty cares among the good wheat. In very deed the best time that the Devil can have to work his deceit, is when men are asleep, that is to say, idle. Then is he most beseke in his work, then doth he compass men in the snare of perdition, then doth he fill them with all iniquity, to bring them (without God's special labour) into utter destruction. Hereof we have two notable examples, most likely set before our eyes. The one in King David, whoarrying at home idly (as the Scripture saith) at such times as other Kings went forth to battle, was quickly seduced of Satan to forake the Lord his God, and to commit two grievous and abominable sins in his sight, Adultery and Murder.

The Plagues that ensued these offences were horrible and grievous, as it may easily appear to them that will read the story. Another example of Samson, who so long as he was joined with the Philistines, enemies to the people of God, could never be taken or overcome; but after that he gave himself to ease and idleness, he not only committed fornication with the harlot Dalila, but also was taken of his enemies, and had his eyes miserably put out, was put in prison, and compelled...

prised to grind in a Mill, and at length was made the laughing stock of his enemies. If these two, who were so excellent men, so well beloved of GOD, so imbued with singular and divine gifts, the one namely of prophesie, and the other of strength, and such men as never could by eration, labour, or trouble, be overcome, were overthrown and fell into grievous sins by giving themselves for a short time to ease and idleness, and so consequently incurred miserable plagues at the hands of GOD: what sin, what mischief, what inconvenience and plague is not to be feared of them, which all their life long give themselves wholly to idleness and ease? Let us not deceive our selves, thinking little hurt to come of doing nothing; for it is a true saying, When one doth nothing, he learns to do evil. Let us therefore always be doing, of some honest work, that the Devil may find us occupied. For himself is ever occupied, never idle, but walketh continually seeking to devour us. Let us resist him with our diligent watching, in labour, and in well-doing. For be that diligently exercised himself in honest business, is not easily caught in the Devil's snare. When man through idleness, or for default of some honest occupation or trade to live upon, is brought to poverty, and want of things necessary, he sees how easily such a man is induced to his gain, to lie, to practice how he may deceive his neighbour, to forsake himself, to bear false witness, and oftentimes to steal and murder, or to use some other ungodly mean to live withal. Whereby not only his good name, honest reputation, and a good conscience, yea, his life is utterly lost, but also the great displeasure and wrath of GOD, with divers and sundry grievous plagues are procured. Lo here the end of the idle and thoughtless bodies, whose hands cannot away with honest labour: loss of name, fame, reputation, and life, here in this world, and without the great mercy of GOD, the purgation of everlasting destruction in the world to come. Have not all men then good cause to beware and take heed of idleness, seeing that they embrace and follow it, have commonly of their pleasant idleness, sharp and sordid displeasures? Doubtless God and godly men, weighing the great and manifold harms that come by idleness to a Common-weal, have from time to time provided with all diligence, that sharp and sedate laws might be made for the correction and amendment of this evil. The Egyptians had a Law, that every man should weekly bring his name to the chief Rulers of the Province, and therewithal declare what trade of life he used; to the intent that idleness might be worthily punished, and diligent labour duly rewarded. The Athenians did visit sluggards and thoughtless people, no less than they did bawous and grievous offenders, considering (as the truth is) that Idleness causeth much mischief. The Areopagites called every man to a strict account how he lived: And if they found any Lovers that did not profit the Common-weal by one means or other, they were driven out, and banished, as unprofitable members, that did only hurt and corrupt the body. And in this Realm of England, good and godly Laws have been divers times made, that no idle vagabonds and loitering runagates, should be suffered to go from Town to Town, from Place to Place, without punishment, which neither serve GOD nor their Prince, but devour the sweet fruits of other men's labour, being common Liers, Drunkards, Swearers, Thieves, Wickedmen, and Murderers, robbing all honest labour, and give themselves to nothing else but to invent and do mischief.

Chief, whereof they are more devious and greedy than any Lion of his prey. To remedy this inconvenience, let all Parents and others which have the care and governance of Youth, so bring them up either in good Learning, Labour, or some honest Occupation or Trade, whereby they may be able in time to come, not only to sustain themselves competently, but also to relieve and supply the necessity and want of others. And S. Paul's faith, let him that hath stolen, steal no more, and he that hath deceived others, use not unlawful ways to get his living, leave off the same, and labour rather, working with his hands that thing which is good, that he may have that which is necessary for himself, and also be able to give unto others that stand in need of his help. The Prophet David thinketh him happy that laboureth upon his labour, saying, When thou eatest the labours of thine hands, happy art thou, and well is thee. This happiness of blessing consisteth in these and such like points.

First, it is the gift of God (as Solomon saith) when one eateth and drinketh, and receiveth good of his labour. Secondly, When one laboureth of his own labour (so it be honest and good) be laboureth of it with a good conscience; and an upright conscience is a treasure inseparable. Thirdly, he eateth his bread not with quarrelling and whining, but with peace and quietness when quietly laboureth for the same, according to S. Paul's admonition. Fourthly, he is no man's bondman for his meat sake, nor needeth not for that, to hang upon the good will of other men; but laboureth of his own, that he is able to give part to others. And to conclude, the labouring man and his family, whiles they are busily occupied in their labour, be free from many temptations and occasions of sin, which they that live in idleness are subject unto. And here ought Artificers and labouring men, who be at wages for their work and labour, to consider their conscience to God, and their duty to their neighbour, lest they abuse their time in idleness, so defrauding them which be at charge both with great wages, and dear commons. They be worse than idle men indeed, for they seek to have wages for their loitering. It is less danger to God to be idle for no gain, than by idleness to win out of their neighbours purest wages for that which is not deserved. It is true that Almighty God is angry with such as do defraud the hired man of his wages; the cry of that injury ascendeth up to God's ear for vengeance. And as true is it, that the hired man, who doth deceit in his labour, is a thief before God. Let no man (saith S. Paul to the Thessalonians) subtly beguile his brother, let him not defraud him in his business. For the Lord is the avenger of such deceits. Whereupon be that will have a good conscience to God, that labouring man, I say, which dependeth wholly upon God's benediction, ministring all things sufficient for his living, let him use his time in a faithful labour, and when his labour by sickness or other misfortune, both fare, yet let him think for that in his health he served God and his neighbour truly he shall not want in time of necessity. God upon respect of his fidelity in health will recompence his indigence, to move the hearts of good men to relieve such deceived men in sickness. Where otherwise, whatsoever is gotten by idleness shall have no means to help in time of need.

Let the labouring man therefore eschew for his part this vice of idleness and deceit, remembering that S. Paul escheweth every man to lay away away all deceit, dissimulation, and lying, and to use truth and plainness to his neighbour, because (faith be) we be members together in one body, under one head Christ our Saviour. And here might be charged the Serving-men of this Realm, who spend their time in much idleness of life, nothing regarding the opportunity of their time, forgetting how service is no heritage. How age will creep upon them: wherefore they should expend their idle time in some good business, whereby they might increase in knowledge, and so the more worthy to be ready for every man's service. It is a great rebuke to them, that they study not either to write fair, to keep a Book of Account, to study the Tongues, and so to get wisdom and knowledge in such books and works, as be now plentifully set out in print of all manner of languages. Let young men consider the precious value of their time, and value it not in idleness, in sloth, in gaming, in banqueting, in Russians company. Youth is but vanity, and must be accounted for before God. How merry and glad for ever thou be in thy youth, O young man (faith the Preacher) how glad for ever the heart be in thy youth, how tall and freely for ever thou follow the ways of thine own heart, and the lust of thine own eyes, yet be thou sure that God shall bring thee into judgment for all these things. God of his mercy put it into the hearts and minds of all them that have the sword of punishment in their hands, or have families under their governance, to labour to repress this great enormity, of all such as live idly and unprofitably in the commonwealth, to the great dishonour of God, and the grievous plague of his holy people. To leave them unpunished, and to neglect the good bringing up of youth, is nothing else but to kindle the Lord's wrath against us, and to heap plagues upon our own heads. As long as the adulterous people were suffered to live licentiousness without reformation: so long did the plague continue and increase in Israel, as ye may see in the Book of Numbers.

But when due correction was done upon them, the Lord's anger was straightway pacified, and the plague ceased. Let all offices therefore look gravely to their charge. Let all masters of households reform this abuse in their families, let them use the authority that God hath given them: let them not maintain vagabonds and idle persons, but deliver the Realm and their households from such noisome loafers, that idleness the mother of all mischief, being clean taken away, Almighty God may turn his dreadful anger away from us, and confirm the Covenant of Peace upon us for ever, through the merits of Jesus Christ our only Lord and Saviour: To whom with the Father and the Holy Ghost be all honour and glory, world without end, Amen.
An Homily of Repentance, and Of true Reconciliation unto God.

Here is nothing that the Holy Ghost both so much labour in all the Scriptures to beat into men's heads, as Repentance, amendment of Life, and speedily returning unto the Lord GOD of Hosts. And no marvel why. For we do daily and hourly by our wickedness and stubborn disobedience, horribly fall away from GOD, thereby purchasing unto our selves (if he should deal with us according to his justice) eternal damnation. So that no doctrine is so necessary in the Church of GOD, as is the doctrine of Repentance and amendment of Life. And verily the true Preachers of the Gospel of the Kingdom of Heaven and of the glad and joyful tidings of Salvation, have always in their godly Sermons and Preachings unto the People, joyned these two together. I mean Repentance and Forgiveneß of sins, even as our Saviour Jesus Christ did appoint himself, saying, So it behoved Christ to suffer and to rise again the third day, and that Repentance and Forgiveneß of sins should be preached in his Name among all Nations. And therefore the holy Apostle both in the Acts speak after this manner: I have witnessed both to the Jews and to the Gentiles, the repentance towards GOD, and faith towards our Lord Jesus Christ. Did not John Baptist, Zacharias son, begin his Ministry with the Doctrine of Repentance, saying, Repent, for the Kingdom of GOD is at hand: The like Doctrine did our Saviour Jesus Christ preach himself and commanded his Apostles to preach the same.

I might here allege very many places out of the Prophets, in which this most wholesome doctrine of Repentance is very earnestly urged urged, as most needful for all degrees and orders of men, but one shall be sufficient at this present time.

These are the words of Joel the Prophet. Therefore also now the Lord faileth, Return unto me with all your heart, with falling, weeping, and mourning; rent your hearts and not your cloaths, and return unto the Lord your God, for he is gracious and merciful, slow to anger, and of great compassion, and ready to pardon wickedness. Whereby it is given us to understand, that we have here a perpetual rule appointed us, which ought to be observed and kept at all times, and that there is none other way whereby the wrath of God may be pacified, and his anger allayed, that the sincerity of his fiery, and the plagues of destruction, which by his righteous judgment he had determined to bring upon us, may depart, be removed and taken away. Where he faileth, but now therefore, faith the Lord, return unto me: It is not without great importance, that the Prophet speaketh so. For he had before set forth at large unto them, the terrible vengeance of God, which no man was able to abide, and therefore he both move them to repentance, to obtain mercy, as he should say, I will not have these things to be so taken, as though there were no hope of grace left. For although ye do by your sins deserve to be utterly destroyed, and God by his righteous judgments hath determined to bring no small destruction upon you, yet know that ye are in a manner on the very edge of the sword, if ye will speedily return unto him, he will most gently and most mercifully receive you into favour again. Whereby we are admonished, that repentance is never too late, so that it be true and earnest. For such that God in the Scriptures will be called our Father, doubtless he doth follow the nature and property of gentle and merciful Fathers, which seek nothing so much, as the returning again, and amendment of their children, as Christ both abundantly teach in the Parable of the Prodigal Son. Doth not the Lord himself say by the Prophet, I will not the death of the wicked, but that he turn from his wicked ways and live? And in another place, If we confess our sin, God is faithful and righteous to forgive us our sins, and to make us clean from all wickedness. Which most comfortable promises are confirmed by many examples of the Scriptures. When the Jews did willingly receive and imbrace the wholesome counsel of the Prophet Ezechiel, God by and by did reach his helping hand unto them, and by his Angel, did in one night slay the most worthy and valiant soldiers of Sennacherib's camp. Whereunto may King Manasses be added, who after all manner of bannable wickedness, returned unto the Lord, and therefore was heard of him, and restored again into his kingdom. The same grace and favour did the sinful woman Magdalene, Zachenus, the poor Thief, and many other feel. All which things ought to serve for our comfort against the temptations of our consciences, whereby the Devil goeth about to take us as well as to overthrow our faith. For every one of us ought to apply the same unto himself, and lay, Yet now return unto the Lord: neither let the remembrance of the former life discourage thee, yea, the more wicked that it hath been, the more fervent and earnest let thy repentance or returning be, and so with thou shalt feel the ears of the Lord wide open unto thy prayers. But let us more narrowly look upon the Commandment of the Lord touching this matter. Turn unto me, (faith be by the holy Prophet Joel) with all your your hearts, with falling, weeping, and mourning. Rent your hearts, and not your garments, &c. In which words, he comprehended all manner of things that can be spoken of Repentance, which is a returning again of the whole man unto God, from whom we be fallen away by sin. But that the whole discourse thereof may the better be born away, we shall first consider in other four principal points, that is, from what we must return, to whom we must return, by whom we may be able to convert, and the manner how to turn to God.

First, from whence, or from what things we must return. Truly we must return from those things, whereby we have been withdrawn, plucked, and led away from God. And these generally are our sins, which as the holy Prophet Eze 18 doth tell us, do separate God and us, and hide his face, that he will not hear us. But under the name of sin, not only those gross words and deeds, which by the common judgment of men, are counted to be filthy and unlawful, and consequently abominable sins: but also the subtle lusts and inward concupiscences of the flesh, which (as St. Paul testifieth) do resist the will and Spirit of God, and therefore ought earnestly to be bridled and kept under. We must repent of the false and erroneous opinions that we have had of God, and the wicked superstition that both here of the same, the unlawful worshipping and service of God, and other like. All these things must we forsake, that will truly turn unto the Lord and repent anigh. For that for such things the wrath of God cometh upon the children of disobedience, no end of punishment ought to be looked for, as long as we continue in such things. Therefore they be here condemned, which will seem to be repentant sinners, and yet will not forsake their Idolatry and Superstition. Secondly, we must see unto whom we ought to return. Revertimi usque ad me, saith the Lord; that is, Return as far as unto me. We must then return unto the Lord; ye we must return unto him alone: For he alone is the truth, and the Fountain of all goodness: But we must labour that we do return as far as unto him, and that we do never cease nor rest till we had apprehended and taken hold upon him.

But this must be done by Faith. For as that God is a Spirit, he can by no other means be apprehended and taken hold upon. Wherefore, till they do greatly err, which do not turn unto God, but unto the Creatures, or unto the inventions of men, or unto their own merits. Secondly, they that do begin to return unto the Lord, and do faint in the mid-way, before they come to the mark that is appointed unto them. Thirdly, because we have of our own selves nothing to present us to God, and do no less flee from him, after our fall, than our first Parent Adam did, who when he had sinned, did seek to hide himself from the sight of God, we have need of a Mediator for to bring and reconcile us unto him, who for our sins is angry with us. The same is Jesus Christ, who being true and natural God, equal and of one substance with the Father, did at the time appointed take upon him our frail nature, in the blessed Virgin's womb: and that of her undivided substance, that so he might be a Mediator between God and us, and pacify his wrath. Of him both the Father himself speak from heaven, saying, This is my well-beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased. And he himself in his Gospel doth cry out and say, of Repentance.

Lay, I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father but by me. For he alone did with the latrike of his Body and Blood, make satisfaction unto the Justice of GOD for our sins. The Apostles do tell us, that he was crafted, for to give repentance and remission of sins unto Israel. Both which things he himself did command to be preached in his Name. Therefore they are greatly desired, that preach repentance without Christ, and teach the simple and ignorant that it consisteth only in the works of men. They may indeed speak many things of good works, and of amendment of life and manners; but without Christ they be all vain and unprofitable. They that think that they have done much of themselves towards repentance, are so much more the farther from GOD, because they do seek those things in their own works and merits, which ought only to be sought in our Saviour Jesus Christ, and in the merits of his Death and Passion and Bloodshedding. Fourthly, This holy Prophet Joel doth likewise express the manner of this our Returning to Repentance, comprehending all the inward and outward things that may be here observed. First, he will have us to return unto GOD with our whole heart, whereby he doth remove and put away all hypocrisy, lest the name might unjustly be laid unto us: This People naively near unto me with their mouth, and worship me, with their lips; but their heart is far off from me.

Secondly, he requireth a sincere and pure love of godliness, and of the true worshipping and service of GOD, that is to say, that forsaking all manner of things that are repugnant and contrary unto GODS Will, we do give our hearts unto him, and the whole strength of our bodies and souls, according to that which is written in the Law: Thou shalt love the Lord thy GOD with all thy heart, with all thy soul, and with all thy strength. Here therefore nothing is left unto us, that we may give unto the world, and unto the lusts of the flesh. For such that the heart is the fountain of all our works, as many as do with their whole heart turn unto the Lord, do live unto him only. Neither do they yet repent truly, that halting on both sides, do otherwise obey GOD, but by and by do think, that laying him aside, it is lawful for them to serve the world and the flesh. And because that we are led by the natural corruption of our own flesh, and the wicked affections of the same, he doth bid us also to return with fasting: not thereby understanding a superstitious abstinence and abstinence of meats, but a true discipline or taming of the flesh, whereby the nourishments of worldly lusts, and of stubborn contumacy and pride, may be withdrawn and plucked away from it. Whereunto he doth add weeping and mourning, which do contain an outward profession of Repentance, which is very needful and necessary, that so we may partly set forth the righteousness of GOD, when by such means we do testify that we deserved punishments at his hands, and partly stop the offence that was openly given unto the weak.

This did David see, who being not content to have beseept and besought his sins privately, would publickly in his Psalms declare and set forth the righteousness of GOD, in punishing sin, and also show them that might have abused his example to sin the more boldly. Therefore they are farthest from true repentance, that will not con-

Hypocrites do counterfeit all manner of things.

Psa. 52.

Now both he add unto this Doctrine or Exhortation, certain godly reasons, which he both ground upon the nature and property of GOD, and whereby he both teacheth, that true Repentance can never be unprofitable or unfruitful. For as in all other things mens hearts do quail and faint, if they once perceive that they travel in vain: Even so most especially in this matter, must we take heed and beware that we suffer not our selves to be persuaded that all that we do is but labour lost; For thereof either sudden desperation doth arise, or a licentious boldness to sin, which at length bringeth unto desperation. Let any such thing then should happen unto them, he both certify them of the grace and goodness of GOD, who is always most ready to receive them into favour again that turn speedily unto him. Which thing he both proove with the same titles wherewith GOD doth describe and set forth himself unto Moses, speaking on this manner, For he is gracious and merciful, slow to anger, of great kindness, and repenteth him of the evil; that is, such a one as is sorry for your afflictions. First, he calleth him gentle and gracious, as he who of his own nature is most prompt and ready to do good, than to punish, Whereunto this saying of Elias the Prophet seemeth to pertain, where he saith, Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous his own imaginations, and return unto the Lord, and he will have pity on him, and to our GOD, for he is very ready to forgive. Secondly, he both attribute unto him mercy, or rather (according to the Hebrew word) the bowels of mercies; whereby he signifieth the natural affections of Parents towards their children. Which thing David both set forth goodly, saying, Is a Father had compassion on his children, so hath the Lord compassion on them that fear him; for he knoweth whereby we be made, he remembereth that we are but dust. Thirdly, he saith, that he is slow to anger, that is to say, long-suffering, and which is not lightly provoked to wrath. Fourthly, that he is of much kindness: for he is that bottomless Well of all goodness, who rejoiceth to do good unto us; therefore did he create & make men, that he might have whom he should do good unto, and make partakers of his heavenly riches. Fifthly, he repenteth of

of the evil, that is to say, he doth call back again, and revoke the punishment which he had threatened, when he saith men repent, turn, and amend. Whereupon we do not without a just cause detest and abhor the damnable opinion of them which do most wickedly go about to persuade the simple and ignorant people, that if we chance after we be once come to God, and grafted in his Son Jesus Christ, to fall into some horrible sin, shall be unprofitable to us, there is no more hope of reconciliation, or to be received again into the favour and mercy of God. And that they may give the better colour unto their pestilent and pernicious error, they do commonly bring in the fifth and tenth Chapters of the Epistle to the Hebrews, and the second Chapter of the second Epistle of Peter, not considering that in those places the holy Apostles do not speak of the daily falls, that we (as long as we carry about this body of sin) are subject unto: but of the final falling away from Christ, and his Gospel, which is a sin against the Holy Ghost that shall never be forgiven, because that they do utterly forsake the known truth, do hate Christ and his Word, they do crucifie and mock him (but to their utter destruction) and therefore fall into desperation, and cannot repent. And that this is the true meaning of the holy Spirit of God, it appeareth by many other places of the Scriptures, which promised unto all true repentant sinners, and to them that with their whole heart do turn unto the Lord their God, free pardon and remission of their sins, for the probation hereof, we read this: O Israel (faith the holy Prophet Jeremy) if thou return, return unto me, faith the Lord, and if thou put away thine abominations out of my sight, then shalt thou not be removed. Again, there are Elias's words: Let the wicked forsake his own ways, and the unrighteous his own imaginations, and turn again unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him, and to our God, for he is ready to forgive. And the Prophet Hosea, the godly exhort one another after this manner, Come and let us turn again unto the Lord, for he hath smitten us, and he will heal us, he hath wounded us, and he will bind us up again. It is most evident and plain, that these things ought to be understood of them that were with the Lord before, and by their sins and wickednesses were gone away from him.

For we do not turn again unto him with whom we were never before, but we come unto him. Now, unto all them that will return unfeignedly unto the Lord their God, the favour and mercy of God unto forgivenesses of sins is liberally offered. Whereby it followed necessarily, that although we do, after we be once come to God, and grafted in his Son Jesus Christ, fall into great sins (for there is no righteous man upon the earth that kiveth not, and if we say we have no sin, we deceive our selves, and the truth is not in us) yet if we rise again by repentance, and with a full purpose of amendment of life do flee unto the mercy of God, taking sure hold thereupon, through faith in his Son Jesus Christ, there is an assured and infallible hope of pardon and remission of the same, and that we shall be received again into the favour of our heavenly Father. It is written of David, I have found a man according to mine own heart; 02. I have found David the son of Jesse, a man according to mine own heart, who will do all things things that I will. This a great commendation of David. It is also most certain, that he did steadfastly believe the promise that was made him touching the Messiah, who should come of him touching the flesh, and that by the same Faith he was justified, and granted in our Saviour Jesus Christ to come, and yet afterwards he fell possible, committing most detestable adultery and damnable murder, and yet as soon as he cried Peccavi, I have sinned, unto the Lord, his sin being forgiven, he was received into favour again. Now will we come unto Peter, of whom no man can doubt but that he was justified in our Saviour Jesus Christ, long before his denial. Which thing may easily be proved by the answer which he did in his name, and in the name of his fellow Apostles make unto our Saviour Jesus Christ, when he laid unto them. Will ye also go away? Saller (faith he) to whom shall we go? Thou hast the words of eternal life, and we believe and know that thou art that Christ the Son of the living God. Whereunto may be added the like confession of Peter, where Christ doth give us most infallible testimony: Thou art the Christ the Son of the living God. But did not afterwards most cowardly deny his Master, although he had heard of him. Whosoever denieth me before men, I will deny him before my Father. Nevertheless, as soon as he had a loathing heart, and with a loathing heart did acknowledge his offence, and with an earnest repentance did flee unto the mercy of God, taking sure hold thereupon, though Faith in him whom he had so shamefully denied, his sin was forgiven him, and for a certificate and assurance thereof, the room of his Apostleship was not denied unto him.

But now mark what doth follow: After the same holy Apostle had on Sunday with the rest of the Disciples received the gift of the holy Ghost abundantly, he committed no small offence in Antioch, by bringing the Consciences of the faithful into doubt by his example, so that Paul was fain to rebuke him to his face, because that he walked not upright, or went not the right way in the Gospel. Shall we now say, that after this grievous offence, he was utterly excluded and shut out from the grace and mercy of God, and that this his trespass, whereby he was a stumbling block unto many, was unpardonable? GOD defend we should say so. But as these examples are not bought in, to the end that we should thereby take a boldness to sin, presumption on the mercy and goodness of God, but to the end that it through the frailness of our flesh, and the temptation of the Devil, we fall into like this, we should have no wise despair of the mercy and goodness of God: Even so must we beware and take heed, that we do in no wise think in our hearts, imagine, or believe that we are able to repent aright, or to turn effectually unto the Lord by our own might and strength. For this must be practised in all men, Without me ye can do nothing. Again, of our selves we are not able as much as to think a good thought. And in another place it is GOD that worketh in us both the Will and the Deed. For this cause, although Jeremy had said before, If thou return, O Israel, return

turn unto me, saith the Lord: Yet afterwards he saith, Turn thou me, O Lord, and I shall be turned, for thou art the Lord my God. And therefore that holy Writer and ancient Father Ambrose doth plainly affirm, that the turning of the heart unto God, is of God, as the Lord himself doth tell us by his Prophet, saying, And I will give thee an heart to know me, that I am the Lord, and they shall be my people, and I will be their God, for they shall return unto me with their whole heart. These things being considered, let us earnestly pray unto the living God our heavenly Father, that he will vouchsafe by his holy Spirit, to work a true and unfeigned Repentance in us, that after the painful labours and travels of this life, we may live eternally with his Son Jesus Christ: To whom be all praise and glory for ever and ever. Amen.
The Second Part of the Homily of Repentance.

Therefore have ye heard (Well-beloved) how needful and necessary the Doctrine of Repentance is, and how earnestly it is throughout all the Scriptures of GOD urged and set forth, both by the ancient Prophets, by our Saviour Jesus Christ, and his Apostles, and that so much as it is the connection, or turning again of the whole man unto GOD, from whom we go away by sin: these four points ought to be observed; that is, from whence, or from what things we must return, unto whom this our returning must be made, by whose means it ought to be done, that it may be sufficient: and last of all, after what sort we ought to behave our selves in the same, that it may be profitable unto us, and attain unto the thing that we do seek by it. Ye have also learned, that as the opinion of them that deny the benefit of Repentance, unto those that after they be come to GOD and graven in our Saviour Jesus Christ, do through the frailty of their flesh, and the temptation of the Devil, fall into some grievous and detestable sin, is most pestilential and pernicious: so we must beware, that we do in no wise think that we are able of our own selves, and of our own strength, to return unto the Lord our GOD, from whom we are gone away by our wickedness and sin. Now it shall be declared unto you, what be the true parts of Repentance, and what things ought to move us to repent, and to return unto the Lord our GOD with all speed. Repentance (as it is said before) is a true returning unto GOD, whereby men forsaking utterly their idolatry and wickedness, do with a lively faith embrace, love, and worship the true living GOD only, and give themselves to all manner of good works, which by GOD'S Word they know to be acceptable unto him. Now there be four parts of Repentance, which being set together, may be likened to an easy and short Ladder, whereby we may climb from the bottomless pit of perdition, that we call our selves into by our daily offences and grievous sins, up into the Call of Tower of eternal and endless salvation.

The first is the contrition of the heart. For we must earnestly for our sins, and unfeignedly lament and bewail that we have by them so grievously offended our most bounteous and merciful GOD, who tenderly loved us, that he gave his only begotten Son to be a most bitter death, and to shed his dear heart blood for our Redemption and deliverance. And verily this inward sorrow and grief being conceived in the heart, for the heinousness of sin, if it be earnest and unfeigned of Repentance.

feigned, is as a Sacrifice to GOD, as the holy Prophet David both tellis, saying, A Sacrifice to GOD is a troubled Spirit, a contrite and broken heart. O Lord, thou wilt not despise.

But that this may take place in us, we must be diligent to read and hear the Scriptures and the Word of GOD, which most likely do paint out before our eyes our natural uncleanness, and the enormity of our sinful life. For unless we have a thorough feeling of our sins, how can it be that we should earnestly be sorry for them? Before David did hear the Word of the Lord by the mouth of the Prophet Nathan, when he had committed, I know not what sin, to which he had committed. So that it might be laid right well, that he kept in his own sin. We read in the Acts of the Apostles, that when the people had heard the Sermon of Peter, they were convinced and pricked in their hearts. Which thing would never have been, if they had not heard that wholesome Sermon of Peter.

They therefore that have no mind at all neither to read, nor yet to hear GOD’s Word, there is but small hope of them that they will as much as once set their feet, or take hold upon the hell of this Ladder, but rather will sink deeper and deeper into the bottomless pit of perdition. For if at any time through the remorse of their Conscience, which accuseth them, they feel any inward grief, contrition, or headache for their sins, so much as they want the late and comfort of GOD’s Word, which they do despise, it will be unto them rather a mean to bring them to utter desperation, than otherwise.
The second is, an unfeigned confession and acknowledging of our sins unto GOD, whom by them we have so grievously offended, that if he would deal with us according to his justice, we do deserve a thousand hells, if there could be so many. Yet if we will with a sorrowful and contrite heart make an unfeigned confession of them unto GOD, he will freely and frankly forgive them, and to put all our wickedness out of remembrance before the sight of his Majesty, that they shall no more be thought upon. Hereunto both pertain the golden saying of the holy Prophet David, where he saith on this manner:

Then I acknowledged my sin unto thee, neither did I hide mine iniquity: I said, I will confess against my self my wickedness unto the Lord, and thou forgavest the iniquity of my sin. These are also the words of John the Evangelist: If we confess our sins, GOD is faithful and righteous to forgive us our sins, and to make us clean from all our wickedness. Which ought to be understood of the convention that is made unto GOD. For these are St. Augustines words:

That convention which is made unto GOD, is required by GOD’s Law, whereof John the Apostle speaketh, saying, If we confess our sins, GOD is faithful and righteous to forgive us our sins, and to make us clean from all our wickedness. For without this convention, sin is not forgiven. This is then the chiefest and most principal convention that in the Scriptures and Word of GOD we are hidden to make, and without the which we shall never obtain pardon and forgiveness of our sins. Indeed, besides this there is another kind of convention, which is needful and necessary.

And of the same both Saint James speak after this manner, saying, Acknowledge your faults one to another, and pay one for another, that ye may be laved. As if he should say; Open that which grieves you, that a remedy may be found. And this is commanded both for him that complaineth, and for him that heareth, that the one should shew his grief to the other. The true meaning of it is, that the faithful ought to acknowledge their offences, whereby some hatred, courage, ground, or malice, having risen or grown among them one to another, that a brotherly reconciliation may be had, without the which nothing that we do can be acceptable unto GOD, as our Saviour Jesus Christ doth witness himself, saying, When thou offert thine offering at the Altar, if thou rememberest that thy brother hath offended against thee, leave there thine offering, and go and be reconciled, and when thou art reconciled, come and offer thine offering. It may also be thus taken, that we ought to confess our weaknesses and iniquities one to another, to the end that knowing each other's frailness, we may the more earnestly pray together unto Almighty GOD our heavenly Father, that he will vouchsafe to pardon us our iniquities, for his Son Jesus Christ's sake, and not to impute them unto us, when he shall render to every man according to his Works. And whereas the Adversaries go about to work this place, for to maintain their Auricular Confession withal, they are greatly deceived themselves, and do shamefully deceive others: For if this text ought to be understood of Auricular Confession, then the Priests are as much bound to confess themselves unto the Laypeople, as the Lay-people are bound to confess themselves to them.

And if to pray is to absolve, then the Layman by this place hath as great authority to absolve the Priests, as the Priests have to absolve the Layman. This did Johannes Scotus, otherwise called Duns, well perceive, who upon this place wisely on this manner: Neither both it seem unto me that James did give this commandment, or that he did set it forth as being received of Christ. For first and foremost, whence had he authority to bind the whole Church, lest that he was only Bishop of the Church of Jerusalem? Except thou wilt say, that the same Church was at the beginning the Head Church, and consequently that he was the head Bishop, which thing the See of Rome will never grant. The understanding of it then, is as in these words: Confess your sins one to another. A persuasion to humility, whereby he willeth us to confess our selves generally unto our neighbours, that we are sinners, according to this saying: If we say we have no sin, we deceive our selves, and the truth is not in us. And where that they do allege this laying of our Saviour Jesus Christ unto the Lepers, to prove Auricular Confession to stand on GOD'S Word, So thy way and they say it unto the Priest: Do they not see that the Lepers was cleansed from his Leprosy, before he was by Christ sent unto the Priest for to shew himself unto him? By the same reason we must be cleansed from our spiritual Leprosy, I mean our sins must be forgiven us before that we come to Confession. What need we then to tell forth our sins into the ear of the Priest, lest they be already taken away? Therefore holy Ambrose in his Second Sermon upon the hundred and nineteenth Psalm, both lay full well, So thou say it unto the Priest. Who is the true Priest, but he which is the Priest for ever, after the order of Melchisedech? Whereby this holy Father doth understand, that both the Priesthood and the Law being changed, we ought to acknowledge none other Priest for deliverance from our sins, but our Saviour Saviour Jesus Christ, who being Sovereign Bishop, doth with the Sacrience of His Body and Blood, offer once for ever upon the altar of the Cross most effectually cleanse the Spiritual Leperole, and wash away the sins of all those that with true confession of the same do lie unto Him. It is most evident and plain, that this Atriular Confession hath not his warrant of GODS Word, else it had not been lawful for Necarius Bishop of Constantinople, upon a just occasion to have put it down. For when any thing ordained of GOD is by the lewdness of men abused, the abuse ought to be taken away, and the thing it self suffered to remain. Moreover, there are St. Augustines words: What have I to do with men, that they should hear my Confession, as though they were able to heal my diseases? A curious lot of men to know another mans life, and foolishly to correct and amend their own. Why do they seek to hear of me what I am, which will not hear of thee what they are? And how can they tell when they hear by me of my self, whether I tell the truth or not. Sib no mortal man knoweth what is in man, but the Spirit of man which is in him.
Augustine would not have written thus, if Atriular Confession had been used in his time. Being therefore not led with the Confisence thereof, let us with fear and trembling, and with a true contrite heart, use that kind of Confession, that GOD doth command in His Word, and then doubtles, as he is faithful and righteous, he will forgive us our sins, and make us clean from all wickednes, I do not say, but that if any do and themselves troubled in Confession, they may repair to their learned Curate or Parish, or to some other godly learned man, and thus the trouble and doubt of their Confisence to them, that they may receive at their hand the comfortable Salve of GODS Word: but it is against the true Christian liberty, that any man should be bound to the numbing of his sins, as it hath been used heretofore in the time of blindness and ignorance.

The third part of Repentance, is Faith, whereby we do apprehend and take hold upon the promises of GOD, touching the free pardon and forgiveness of our sins. Which promises are sealed up unto us, with the death and blood- shedidg of his Son Jesus Christ. For what should abate and profet us to be sorry for our sins, to lament and beware that we have offended our most bounteous and merciful Father, by to confess and acknowledge our offences and trespasses, though it be done never so earnestly, unless we most falsely believe, and be fully persuaded, that GOD for his Son Jesus Christ sake, will forgive us all our sins, and put them out of rememberance, and from his right? Therefor they that teach Repentance without a lively Faith in our Saviour Jesus Christ, do teach none other but Judas Repentance, as all the School-men do, which do only allow these three parts of Repentance, the Contrition of the Heart, the Confession of the Souldh, and the Satisfaction of the Word. But all these things we find in Judas Repentance, which in outward appearance did far exceed and pats the Repentance of Peter. For first and foremost we read in the Gospel, that Judas was so sorrowful and heavy, yea that he was filled with such anguish and devotion of mind, for that which he had done, that he could not abide to live any longer. Did not he also before he hanged himself, make an open confession of his fault, when he said, I have sinned, betraying the innocent blood? And verily this was a tance of the very bold confession, which might have brought him to great trouble: for by it he did lay to the high Priests and Elders charge, the shedding of innocent blood, and that they were most abominable murderers. He did also make a certain kind of satisfaction, when he did call their money unto them again. No such thing do we read of Peter, although he had committed a very heinous sin, and most grievous offence, in denying of his Master. We find that he went out and wept bitterly, whereof Ambrose speaketh on this manner: Peter was sorry and wept, because he erred as a man. I do not find what he said, I know what he wept, I read of his tears, but not of his satisfaction. But how chance that the one was received into favour again with God, and the other cast away, but because he that one did by a lively faith in him whom he had denied take hold upon the mercy of God, and the other wanted faith, whereby he did delight of the goodness and mercy of God: It is evident and plain then, that although we be never so earnestly sorry for our sins, acknowledge and confess them: yet all these things shall be but means to bring us to utter desperation, except we do solemnly believe, that God our heavenly Father will for his Son Jesus Christ's sake, pardon and forgive us our offences and trespasses, and utterly put them out of remembrance in his sight. Therefore, as we said before, they that truly repentance without Christ, and a lively faith in the mercy of God, do only teach Cain's or Judas repentance. The fourth is, an amendment of life, or a new life, in bringing forth fruits worthy of repentance. For they that do truly repent, must be clean altered and changed, they must become new creatures, they must be no more the same that they were before. And therefore thus said John Baptist unto the Pharisees and Sadducees that came unto his Baptism: O generation of vipers, who hath forewarned you to flee from the anger to come? bringing forth therefore fruits worthy of repentance. Wherby we do learn, that if we will have the wrath of God to be pacified, we must in no wise dilate, but turn unto him again with a true and sound repentance, which may be known and declared by good fruits, as by most sure and infallible signs thereof. They that do from the bottom of their hearts acknowledge their sins, and are unfeignedly sorry for their offences, will cast off all hypocrisy, and put on true humility, and lowliness of heart. They will not only receive the Physician of the soul, but also with a most fervent desert long for him. They will not only abstain from the sins of their former life, and from all other sly thy vices, but also see, seek, and abhor all the occasions of them. And as they did before give themselves to uncleanness of life; so will they from henceforth with all diligence give themselves to innocency, pureness of life, and true godliness. We have the Ninevites for an example, which at the preaching of Jonas did not only proclaim a general Fall, and that they should every one put on sackcloth; but they all did turn from their evil ways, and from the wickedness that was in their hands. But above all other, the history of Zacheus is most notable: For being come unto our Saviour Jesus Christ, he did say, Behold Lord, the half of my goods I give to the poor, and if I have defrauded any man, or taken ought away by usury or fraud, I do restore him fourfold. Here we see that after his repentance, he was no more the man that

of Repentance.

He was before, but was clean changed and altered. It was so far off, that he would continue and abide still in his unfruitful covetousness, or take ought away fraudulently from any man. That rather he was most willing and ready to give away his own, and to make satisfaction unto all them that he had done injury and wrong unto. Here may we right well and the sinful woman, which when she came to our Saviour Jesus Christ, did pour down such abundance of tears out of those wanton eyes of hers, whereby she had allured many unto folly, that she did with them wash his feet, wiping them with the hairs of her head, which she was wont most gloriously to set out, making of them a nest of the Devil. Hereby we do learn, what is the satisfaction that God both require of us, which is that we came from evil, and do good; and if we have done any man wrong, to endeavour our selves to make him true amends to the uttermost of our power, following in this the example of Zachaeus, and of this sinful woman, and also that godly lesson that John Baptist, Zacharias son, did give unto them that came to ask counsel of him. This was commonly the Penance that Christ enjoyed sinners: So thy way, and sin no more. Which Penance we shall never be able to fulfil, without the special grace of him that both lays, without we can do nothing. It is therefore our parts, if at least we be delectus of the health and salvation of our own selves, most earnestly to pray unto our heavenly Father, to all us with his holy spirit, that we may be able to hearken unto the voice of the true Shepherd, and with his obedience to follow the same.

Let us hearken to the voice of Almighty God, when he calleth us to Repentance. Let us not harden our hearts, as such infidels do, who abide the time given them of God to repent, and turn it to continue their pride and contempt against God and man, which know not how much they heap God’s wrath upon themselves, for the hardness of their hearts, which cannot repent at the day of vengeance. Where we have offended the Law of God, let us repent us of our straying from to good a Lord. Let us confess our unworthiness before him, but yet let us trust in God’s free mercy, for Christ’s sake, for the pardon of the same. And from henceforth let us endeavour our selves to walk in a new life, as new born babes, whereby we may glorify our Father, which is in heaven, and thereby to hear in our Consciences a good testimony of our Faith. So that at the last to obtain the fruition of everlasting life, through the merits of our Saviour: To whom be all praise and honour forever. Amen.
The Third Part of the Homily of Repentance.

In the homily last spoken unto you (right well-beloved people in our Saviour Christ) ye heard of the true parts and tokens of Repentance; that is, hearty contrition and sorrowfulness of our hearts, unfeigned confession in word of mouth for our unworthy living before God, a steadfast faith to the merits of our Saviour Christ for pardon, and a purpose of our selves by God's grace to renounce our former wicked life, and a full conversion to God in a new life to glorify his Name, and to live orderly and charitably, to the comfort of our Neighbour, in all righteousness, and to live soberly and modestly to our selves, by using abstinence, and temperance in word and in deed, in mortifying our earthly members here upon Earth: Now for a further persuasion to move you to those parts of Repentance, I will declare unto you some causes, which should the rather move you to Repentance.

First. The Commandment of God, who in so many places of the holy and sacred Scriptures, doth bid us return unto him. O ye children of Israel (faith he) turn again from your iniquity, wherein ye provoked your selves. Again. Turn you, turn you from your evil ways: For why will ye die. O ye house of Israel? And in another place, thus doth he speak by his holy Prophet Hosea: O Israel, return unto the Lord thy God; For thou hast taken a great fall by thine iniquity. Take unto you these words with you, when you turn unto the Lord and say unto him, Take away all iniquity, and receive us graciously, so will we offer the calves of our lips unto thee. In all these places we have an express commandment given unto us of God to return unto him. Therefore we must take good heed unto our selves, lest whereas we have already by our manifold sins and transgressions, provoked and kindled the wrath of God against us, we do by breaking this his Commandment, double our offences, and so heap still upon our heads by our daily offences and trespasses, whereby we provoke the eyes of his Majesty, we do well deserve (if he should deal with us according to his justest) to be put away for ever from the fruition of his glory, how much more then are we worthy of the endless torments of hell, if when we be so gently called again after our rebellion, and commanded to return, we will in no wise hearken unto the voice of our heavenly Father, but walk still after the stubbornness of our own hearts.

Secondly, The most comfortable and sweet promise, that the Lord our God did of his dear mercy and goodness join unto his commandment. For he doth not only say, Return unto me, O Israel; Jer. 4.
but also, If thou wilt return, and put away all thine abominations out of my sight, thou shalt never be moved. These words also have we in the Prophet Ezekiel, At what time ever a sinner doth repent him of his sin, from the bottom of his heart, I will put all his wickednesses out of my remembrance (saith the Lord) so that they shall be no more thought upon. Thus are we sufficiently instructed, that God will according to his promise, freely pardon, forgive, and forget all our sins, so that we shall never be called in the teeth with them, if obeying his commandment, and allured by his sweet promises, we will unfeignedly return unto him.

Thirdly, The falseness of sin, which is such, that as long as we do abide in it, God cannot but detest and abhor us; and so also, it is, that neither can there be any hope, that we shall enter into the heavenly Jerusalem, except we be still made clean and purged from it. But this will never be, unless forsaking our former life, we do with our whole heart return unto the Lord our God, and with a full purpose of amendment of life, see unto his mercy, taking sure hold thereupon through faith in the blood of his Son Jesus Christ. If we should suspect any uncleanness to be in us, wherefore the earthly Prince should loath and abhor the sight of us, what pains would we take to remove and put it away; how much more ought we with all diligence and speed that may be, to put away that uncleanness that doth separate and make a division between us and our God, and that hideth his face from us, that he will not hear us? And verily herein both appear: how filthy a thing sin is, and that it can by no other means be washed away, but by the blood of the only begotten Son of God. And shall we not from the bottom of our hearts detest and abhor, and with all earnestness flee from it, lest that it did colt the heart blood of the only begotten Son of God our Saviour and Redeemer, to purge us from it? Plato both in a certain place write, that if virtue could be seen with bodily eyes, all men would wonderfully be inflamed and kindled with the love of it: Even so on the contrary, if we might with our bodily eyes behold the filthiness of sin, and the uncleanness thereof, we would in no wise abide it, but as most present and deadly poison, hate and eschew it. We have a common experience of the same in them, which when they have committed any heinous offence, or some filthy and abominable sin, if it once come to light, or if they chance to have a thorough feeling of it, they be so ashamed (their own Conscience putting before their eyes the filthiness of their act) that they dare look no man in the face, much less that they should be able to stand in the light of God.

Fourthly, The uncertainty and brittleness of our own lives, which is such, that we cannot assure our selves that we shall live one hour, or one half quarter of it. Which by experience we do find daily to be true, in them that being now merry and lusty, and sometimes feasting and banqueting with their friends, do fall suddenly dead in the streets, and other whilsts under the Board when they are at meat. These daily examples, as they are most terrible and dreadful, so ought they to move us to seek for to be at one with our heavenly Judge.

Judge, that we may with a good Conscience appear before him, whenever it shall please him so to call us, whether it be suddenly or otherwise, for we have no more Charter of our life than they have. But as we are most certain that we shall die, so are we most uncertain when we shall die. For our life doth lie in the hand of GOD, who will take it away when he pleaseth him. And verily when the highest Summer of all, which is death, shall come, he will not be said nay, but we must immediately be packing, to be present before the Judgment seat of GOD, as he both find us, according as it is written, Whereas the Tree falleth, whether it be toward the South, or toward the North, there it shall lie. Whereunto agreeeth the saying of the holy Martyr of GOD Saint Cyprian, saying, As GOD doth and thee when he doth call, so doth he judge thee. Let us therefore follow the counsel of the Wise man, wherein he saith, Make no tarrying to turn unto the Lord, and put not off from day to day. For suddenly shall the wrath of the Lord break forth, and in thy security shalt thou be destroyed, and that perversely in the time of vengeance. Which words I desire you to mark diligently, because they do most lively put before our eyes, the fondonets of many men, who abusing the long-suffering and goodness of GOD, do never think on Repentance or amendment of life. Follow not (faith he) thine own mind, and thy strength, to walk in the ways of thy heart, neither say thou, Who will bring me under for my works? For GOD the Redeemer, will avenge the wrong done by thee. And say not, I have sinned, and what evil hath come unto me? For the Almighty is a patient Rewarder, but he will not leave thee unpunished. Because thy sins are forgiven thee, he not without fear to heap sin upon sin. Say not, neither, The mercy of GOD is great, he will forgive my manifold sins. For mercy and wrath come from him, and his indignation cometh upon unrepentant sinners. As if ye should say, Art thou strong and mighty? Art thou lathy and young? Hast thou the wealth and riches of the World? Or when thou hast sinned, hast thou received no punishment for it? Let none of all these things make thee to be the slower to repent, and to return with speed unto the Lord. For in the day of punishment and of his sudden vengeance, they shall not be able to help thee. And specially when thou art either by the preaching of GODS Word, or by some inward motion of his holy Spirit, or else by some other means called unto Repentance, neglect not the good occasion that is ministered unto thee, lest when thou wouldst repent, thou hast not the grace for to do it. For to repent is a good gift of GOD, which he will never grant unto them, who living in carnal security, do make a mock of his threatenings, or seek to rule his Spirit as they list, as though his working and gifts were tied unto their will.

Fifthly, The avoiding of the plagues of GOD, and the utter description that by his righteous judgment doth hang over the heads of them all that will in no wise return unto the Lord: I will (saith the Lord) give them for a terrible plague to all the Kingdoms of the Earth, and for a reproach, and for a proverb and for a curse in all places where I shall call them, and will send the Sword of famine, and the Pestilence among them, till they be consumed out of the Land. And wherefore is this? Because they hardened their hearts,

hearts, and would in no wise return from their evil ways, nor yet forfake the wickedness that was in their own hands, that the fierceness of the Lord's fury might depart from them. But yet this is nothing in comparison of the intolerable and endless torments of hell fire, which they shall be fain to suffer, who after their hard-ness of heart that cannot repent, do heap unto themselves wrath against the day of anger, and of the deleration of the just judgment of God: Whereas if we will repent, and be earnestly sorry for our sin, and with a full purpose and amendment of life flee unto the mercy of our God, and taking sure hold thereupon through Faith in our Saviour Jesus Christ do bring forth fruits worthy of Repentance: he will not only pour his manifold blessings here upon us here in this world, but also at the last, after the painful travels of this life, reward us with the inheritance of his children, which is the kingdom of heaven, purchased unto us with the death of his Son Jesus Christ our Lord: To whom with the Father and the Holy Ghost, be all praise, glory, and honour, World without end, Amen.
AN HOMILY AGAINST DISOBEDIENCE AND WILFUL REBELLION.

The First Part.

S GOD the Creator and Lord of all things appointed his Angels and heavenly Creatures in all obedience to serve and to honour his Majesty; so was it his Will that man, his chief Creature upon the Earth, should live under the obedience of his Creator and Lord: and for that cause, GOD, as soon as he had created man, gave unto him a certain Precept and Law, which he (being yet in the state of innocence, and remaining in paradise) should observe as a pledge and token of his due and bounden obedience, with denunciation of death if he did transgress and break the said Law and Commandment. And as GOD would have man to be his obedient subject, so did he make all earthly Creatures subject unto man, who kept their due obedience unto man. So long as man remained in his obedience unto GOD; in the which obedience if man had continued still, there had been no poverty, no diseases, no sickness, no death, nor other miseries wherewith mankind is now infinitely and most miserably afflicted and oppressed. So here appeareth the original Kingdom of GOD over Angels and man and universally over all things, and of man over earthly Creatures which GOD had made subject unto him, and with all the felicity and blessed state, which Angels, man, and all Creatures had remained in, had they continued in due against Wilful Rebellion.

Due obedience unto GOD their King. For as long as in this first Kingdom the Subjects continued in due obedience to GOD their King, so long did GOD embrace all his Subjects with his love, labour, and grace, which to enjoy, is perfect felicity, whereby it is evident, that obedience is the principal virtue of all virtues, and indeed the very root of all virtues, and the cause of all felicity. But as all felicity and blissfulness should have continued with the continuance of obedience, so with the breach of obedience, and breaking in of Rebellion, all vices and miseries did withal break in, and overwhelm the World. The first author of which Rebellion, the root of all vices, and mother of all mischief, was Lucifer, first GOD's most excellent creature, and most bounden Subject, who, by rebelling against the Majesty of GOD, of the highest and most glorious Angel, is become the blackest and most foul Fiend and Devil; and from the height of heaven, is fallen into the pit and bottom of hell.

Here you may see the first author and founder of Rebellion, and the reward thereof. Here you may see the Grand Captain and Father of Rebels, who persuading the following of his rebellion against GOD their Creator and Lord, unto our first parents Adam and Eve, brought them in high displeasure with GOD, wroth their exile and banishment out of Paradise, a place of pleasure and goodness, into this wretched earth and vale of misery; procured unto them, sorrows of their minds, mischiefs, sicknesses, diseases, death of their bodies, and which is far more horrible than all worldly and bodily mischiefs, he had wrought thereby their eternal and everlasting death and damnation, had not GOD by the obedience of his Son Jesus Christ repaided that, which man by disobedience and rebellion had destroyed, and so of his mercy had pardoned and forgiven him; of which all and singular the premises, the holy Scriptures do bear record in many places.

Thus do you see, that neither heaven nor Paradise could suffer any rebellion in them, neither be places for any Rebels to remain in. Thus became Rebellion, as you see, both the sill and the greatest, and the very root of all other sins and the first and principal cause both of all worldly and bodily miseries, sorrows, diseases, sicknesses, and deaths, and which is infinitely worse than all these, is fall, the very cause of death and damnation eternal also. After this breach of obedience to GOD, and rebellion against his Majesty, all mischiefs and miseries breaking in therewith and overflowing the World, left all things should come unto confusion and utter ruine, GOD forthwith by Laws given unto mankind repaired again the rule and order of obedience thus by rebellion overthrown, and besides the obedience due unto his Majesty, he not only ordained that in families and households, the wife should be obedient unto her husband, the children unto their parents, the servants unto their masters; but also, when mankind increased, and spread it itself more largely over the World, he by his holy Word did constitute and ordain in Cities and Countries several and special Governors and Judges, unto whom the residue of his people should be obedient.

As in reading of the holy Scriptures we shall find in very many and almost infinite places, as well of the Old Testament as of the New, that Kings and Princes, as well the evil as the good, do reign by GOD's De-sendeth them against their enemies, and destroyeth their enemies horribly: that the anger and displeasure of the prince is as the roaring of a Lion and the very messenger of death: and that the Subject that provoketh him to displeasure, suffereth against his own soul: with many other things concerning both the Authority of Princes, and the duty of Subjects. But here let us rehearse two particular places out of the New Testament, which may stand in stead of all other. The first out of St. Paul's Epistle to the Romans and the thirteenth Chapter, where he writeth thus unto all Subjects. Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers, for there is no power but of God, and the powers that be are ordained of God. Whosoever therefore resisteth the power, resisteth the ordinance of God and they that resist shall receive unto themselves damnation. For Princes are not to be feared for good works, but for evil. Will thou then be without fear of the power? Do well, so shalt thou have praise of the same. For he is the minister of God for thy welfare. But if thou do evil, fear: for he beareth not the sword for nought. For he is the minister of God to take vengeance upon him that doth evil. Wherefore ye must be subject, not because of wrath only, but also for conscience sake: for this cause ye pay all tribute, for they are God's ministers, serving for the same purpose. Give to every man therefore his due: tribute to whom tribute is due; custom, to whom custom is due; fear, to whom fear is due: honour, to whom ye owe honour. Thus saith St. Paul's words. The second place is in St. Peter's Epistle, and the second Chapter, where it is written: Submit yourselves unto all manner of ordinances of men for the Lord's sake, whether it be unto the King, as unto the chief head, either unto Rulers, as unto them that are sent of him for the punishment of evil doers; but for the well doing of them that do well. For so is the will of God that with well doing ye may tread down your enemies. For suffer not fornication, neither let the lust of any such kind be in you, that the Trimession of your bodies may glorify God. Honour, one another, love brotherly fellowship, fear God, honour the King. Servants, obey your masters with fear, not only if they be good and courteous, but also though they be froward. Thus saith St. Peter.

By these two places of the holy Scriptures, it is most evident that Kings, Queens, and other Princes, (for he speaketh of authority and power, be it in men or women) are ordained of God, are to be obeyed and honoured of their Subjects: that such Subjects, as are disobedient or rebellious against their Princes, disobey God, by procure their own damnation: that the government of Princes is a great blessing of God, given for the Common-welfare, specially of the good and godly: for the context and cherishing of whom, God giveth and setteth up Princes: and on the contrary part, to the fear and for the punishment of the evil and wicked. Finally, that if servants ought to obey their masters, not only being gentle, but such as be froward, as well and much more ought Subjects to be obedient, not only to their god and courteous but also to their sharp and rigorous Princes. It cometh therefore neither of chance and fortune (as they term it) nor of the ambition of mortal men and women climbing up of their own accord to dominion, that there be Kings, Queens, Princes and other Governors over men being their Subjects: but all Kings, Queens, and other Governors are specially appointed by the ordinance of God, and as God himself, being of an infinite Majesty,

Bajesty, power, and wisdom, ruleth and governeth all things in heaven and Earth, as the universal Monarch and only King and Emperour over all, as being only able to take and bear the charge of all; so hath he constituted, ordained, and set earthly Princes over particular Kingdoms and Dominions in Earth, both for the avoiding of all confusion, which else would be in the world, if it should be without Governors, and for the great quiet and benefit of earthly men their Subjects, and also that the Princes themselves in authority, power, wisdom, prudence, and righteousness in government of People and Countries committed to their charge, should resemble his heavenly government, as the Majesty of heavenly things may by the baseness of earthly things be shadowed and resembled. And for that similitude that is between the heavenly Monarchy and earthly Kingdoms well governed, our Saviour Christ in sundry Parables saith, that the Kingdom of heaven is resembled unto a man, a King, and as the name of the King is very often attributed and given unto GOD in holy Scriptures, so hath GOD himself in the same Scriptures sometime doubltace to communicate his Name with earthly Princes, terming them Gods; doubting for that similitude of Government which they have or should have, not unlike unto GOD their King, unto which similitude of heavenly Government, the nearer and nearer that an earthly Prince doth come in his regiment, the greater blessing of GOD'S mercy is be unto that Country and People over whom he reigneth; and the fonder and further that an earthly Prince doth strive from the example of the heavenly Government, the greater plague is be of GOD'S wrath, and punishment by GOD'S justice, unto that Country and People, over whom GOD for their unsanctified place such a Prince and Governor. For it is indeed evident, both by the Scriptures, and daily by experience, that the maintenance of all virtue and godliness, and consequently the wealth and prosperity of a Country and People, both land and sea, more in a wife and good Prince on the one part, than in great multitudes of other men being Subjects; and on the contrary part, the overthrow of all virtue and godliness and consequently the decay and utter ruine of a Realm and People doth grow and come more by an undiscree and evil Governor, than by many thousands of other men being Subjects. Thus lay the holy Scriptures, Well is the (De Thou Land (saith the Preacher) whose King is come of Nobles, and whose Princes eat in due season, for necessity, and not for lust. Again, a wise and righteousness King maketh his Realm and People wealthy; and a good, merciful and gracious Prince, is as a shadow in heat, as a defence in storms, as dew, as bread thereof, as fresh water springs in great droughts.

Against the Scriptures, of undiscree and evil Princes, speak thus, and do be to the (De Thou Land) whose King is but a child, and whose Princes are early at their banquets. Again, when the wicked do reign, then men go to ruine. And again, a foolish Prince destroyeth the People, and a covetous King undoeth his Subjects; thus speak the Scriptures, thus experience tellst of good and evil Princes.

What shall Subjects do then? that they obey valiant stout, wise, and good Princes, and content, disobey, and rebel against children being their Princes, or against undiscree and evil Governors. GOD forbid. For sell what a perilous thing were it to commit unto the Subjects the judgment, which Prince is wise and godly, and his Government good, and and which is otherwise, as though the foot must judge of the head: are enterprise very vainous, and most needs bred rebellion. For who else be they that are most inclined to Rebellion, but such daughtry spirits, from whom springeth such foul ruining of Realms? Is not Rebellion the greatest of all mischiefs? And who are most ready to the greatest mischiefs, but the worst men: Rebels therefore the worst of all Subjects are most ready to rebellion, as being the worst of all vices, and farthest from the duty of a good Subject: as on the contrary part the best Subjects are most firm and constant in obedience, as in the special and peculiar virtue of good Subjects. What an unworthy matter were it then to make the naughtiest Subjects, and most inclined to Rebellion and all evil, Judges over their Princes, over their Government, and over their Counsellors, to determine which of them be good or tolerable, and which be evil, and so intolerable, that they must needs be removed by Rebels, being ever ready as the naughtiest Subjects, fainest to rebel against the best Princes, especially if they be young in age, women in sex, or gentle and courteous in government, as trulling by their wicked boldness, easily to overthrow their weaknefs and gentlenefs, or at the least so to fear the minds of such Princes, that they may have impunity of their mischievous doings.

But whereas indeed a Rebel is worse than the worst Prince, and Rebellion worse than the worst Government of the worst Prince that hath to bath been: both Rebels are unmeet ministers, and Rebellion an unmeet and unwholesom medicine to reform any small lackes in a Prince, or to cure any little griefs in government, such unwholesome remedies being far worse than any other maladies and disorders that can be in the body of a Commonwealth. But whatsoever the Prince be or his Government, it is evident that for the most part, those Princes whom some Subjects do think to be very godly, and under whose government they rejoice to live: some other Subjects do take the same to be evil and ungodly, and do wish for a change. If therefore all Subjects that dislike of their Prince should rebel, no Realm should ever be without rebellion. It were more meet that Rebels should hear the advice of wise men, and give place unto their judgment, and follow the example of obedient Subjects, as reason is that they whose understanding is blinded with so evil an affection, should give place to them that be of sound judgment, and that the worst should give place to the better: and so might Realms continue in long obedience, peace, and quietness. But what if the Prince be undiscreet, and evil indeed, and is also evident to all meneyes, that he is: I ask again, what is it be long of the wickidness of the Subjects, that the Prince is undiscreet and evil? Shall the Subjects both by their wickidness provoke GOD for their deserved punishment, to give them an undiscreet or evil Prince, and also rebel against him, and withal against GOD, who for the punishment of their sins did give them such a Prince? Will you hear the Scriptures concerning this point? GOD (say the holy Scriptures) maketh a wicked man to reign for the sins of the People. Again, GOD giveth a Prince in his anger, meaning an evil one, and taketh away a Prince in his displeasure, meaning specially when he taketh away a good Prince for the sins of the People: as in our memory he took away our good Jothan, King Edward, in his young and good years for our wickidness. And contrarily the Scriptures do teach, that GOD giveth giveth wisdom unto Princes, and maketh a wise and good King to reign over that people whom he loveth, and who loveth him. Again, if the people obey GOD, both they and their King shall prosper and be safe, else both shall perish. Saith GOD by the mouth of Samuel,

Here you see, that GOD placeth as well evil Princes as good, and for what cause he doth both. If we therefore will have a good Prince, either to be given us, or to continue; now we have such a one, let us by our obedience to GOD and to our Prince, move GODtherunto. If we will have an evil Prince (when GOD shall send such a one) taken away, and a good in his place, let us take away our wickedness which provoked GOD to place such a one over us, and GOD will either displace him, or of an evil Prince make him a good Prince, so that we shall change our evil into good. For will you hear the Scriptures? The heart of the Prince is in GODS hand, which way soever it shall please him, he turneth it. Thus say the Scriptures. Wherefore let us turn from our sins unto the Lord with all our hearts, and he will turn the heart of the Prince, unto our quiet and wealth: Else for Subjects to deserve through their sins to have an evil Prince, and then to rebel against him, were double and treble evil, by provoking GOD more to plague them. Nay, let us either deserve to have a good Prince, or let us patiently suffer and obey such as we deserve. And whether the Prince be good or evil, let us according to the counsel of the holy Scriptures, pray for the Prince for his continuance and increase in goodness, if he be good and for his amendment if he be evil.

Will you hear the Scriptures concerning this most necessary point? I exhort therefore (saith St Paul) that above all things, Prayers, Supplications, Intercessions, and giving of thanks be had for all men, for Kings and all that are in authority, that we may live a quiet and peaceable life with all godliness; for that is good and acceptable in the sight of GOD our Saviour; St. Paul, Paul’s counsellors, and who I pray you, was Prince over the most part of the Chaldeans, when GODS holy Spirit by St. Paul’s pen gave them this Lesson: Fortoth, Caligula, Claudius, or Nero; who were not only no Chaldeans but Pagans, and also either foolish Rulers, or most cruel Tyrants. Will you yet bear the exord of GOD to the Jews, when they were Prisoners under Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon, after he had slain their King, Nobles, Parents, Children, and Kinsfolks, burned their Country, Cities, ye., Jerusalem it self, and the holy Temple, and had carried the residue remaining alive Captives with him into Babylon? Will you hear yet what the Prophet Baruch saith unto GODS People being in this Captivity? Pray you, saith the Prophet, for the life of Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon, and for the life of Belshazzar his Son, that their days may be as the days of Heaven upon the Earth, that GOD also may give us strength and lighten our eyes, that we may live under the defence of Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon, and under the protection of Belshazzar his Son, that we may long do them service, and find favour in their sight. Pray for us also unto the Lord our GOD, for we have sinned against the Lord our GOD.

Thus far the Prophet Baruch his words, which are spoken by him unto the people of GOD of that King who was an Heathen, a Tyrant, and cruel Oppressor of them, and had been a Sufferer of many thousands of their Nation, and a Destroyer of their Country, with a Conti...

...fession that their sins had deserved such a Prince to reign over them. And shall the old Christians by St. Paul's exhortation, pray for Caligula, Claudius, or Nero? Shall the Jews pray for Nebuchadnezzar? These Emperors and Kings being strangers unto them, being Pagans and Infidels, being Murderers, Tyrants, and cruel Oppressors of them, and Despoilers of their Country, Countrysmen, and Kinmen, the Burners of their Villages, Towns, Cities, and Temples; And shall we pray for the long, prosperous, and godly reign of our natural Prince? No stranger (which is observed as a great blessing in the Scriptures) of our Christian, our most gracious Sovereign, no heathen, nor Pagan Prince; Shall we not pray for the health of our most merciful, most loving Sovereign, the Preserver of us and our Country in so long peace, quietness, and security, no Cruel Person, no Tyrant, no Spyker of our goods, no Shedder of bloods, no Burner and Despoiler of our Towns, Cities, and Countries, as were those for whom yet as ye have heard, Christians being their Subjects ought to pray? Let us not commit so great ingratitude against GOD and our Sovereign, as not continually to thank GOD for his Government, and for his great and continual benefits and blessings poured upon us by such government. Let us not commit so great a sin against GOD, against our selves, and our Country, as not to pray continually unto GOD for the long continuance of so gracious a Ruler unto us, and our Country. Else shall we be unworthy any longer to enjoy those benefits and blessings of GOD, which hitherto we have had by him; shall be most worthy to fall into all those mischiefs and miseries, which we and our Country have by GOD's grace through his Government hitherto escaped.

What shall we lay of those Subjects? May we call them by the name of Subjects? Who neither be thankfull, nor make any prayer to GOD for so gracious a Sovereign; but also themselves take armour wickedly, assemble Companies and Bands of Rebels, to break the publick Peace so long continued; and to make, not War, but Rebellion, to endanger the Person of such a gracious Sovereign, to hazard the estate of their Country, for whose defence they should be ready to spend their lives) and being Englishmen, to rob, spoil, destroy and burn in England Englishmen, to kill and murder their own Neighbours and Kinsfolk, their own Countrymen, to do all evil and mischief; yea, and more too, than Foreign enemies would or could do: What shall we say of these men, who use themselves thus rebelliously against their gracious Sovereign? Who if GOD for their wickednesses had given them an heathen Tyrant to reign over them, were by GOD's Word bound to obey him, and to pray for him: What may be spoken of them? So far both their unkindness, unnaturalness, wickedness, mischievousnesses in their doings, palls and excels any thing, and all things that can be expressed and uttered by words. Only let us with unto all such most speedy repentance, and with so grievous sorrow of heart, as such to horrible sins against the Majesty of GOD do require, who in most extreme unthankfulness so vile, not only against their gracious Prince, against their natural Country, but against all their Countrymen, Women, and Children, against themselves, their Wives, Children, and Kinsfolks, and by so wicked an example against all Christendom, and against whole mankind of all manner of people through-

throughout the wide World, such Repentance. May, such sorrow of heart GOD grant unto all such, whose forer of private and malicious purpose, as is meet for such mischiefs attempted, and wrought by them. And unto us and all other Subjects. GOD of his mercy grant, that we may be most unlike to all such, and most like to good, natural, loving, and obedient Subjects: May, that we may be such indeed, not only in showing all obedience our selves, but as many of us as be able, to the uttermost of our power, ability and understanding, to stay and repress all Rebels, and Rebellions against GOD, our gracious Prince, and natural Country, at every occasion that is offered unto us. And that which we are all able to do, unless we do it, we shall be most wicked, and most worthy to feel in the end such extreme Plagues, as GOD hath ever poured upon Rebels.

Let us make continual Prayers unto Almighty GOD, even from the bottom of our hearts, that he will give his grace, power and strength unto our gracious King, to vanquish and subdue all, as well Rebels at home as Foreign enemies, that all domestical Rebellions being suppressed and pacified, and all outward invasions repulsed and abandoned, we may not only be sure, and long continue in all obedience unto our gracious Sovereign, and in that peaceable and quiet life which hitherto we have led under his Majesty, with all security; but also that both our gracious King, and we his Subjects, may altogether in all obedience unto GOD the King of Kings, and unto his holy Laws, lead our lives in this World, in all virtue and godliness, that in the World to come, we may enjoy his everlasting Kingdom: which I beseech GOD to grant, as well to our gracious Sovereign, as unto us all, for his Son our Saviour Jesus Christ's sake: To whom with the Father and the Holy Ghost, one GOD and King immortal, be all glory, praise, and thanksgiving, World without end. Amen.

Thus have you heard the First Part of this HOMILY.
Now, good People, let us pray.

As in that time it was Published.

O most mighty GOD, the Lord of hosts, the Governor of all Creatures, the only giver of all Victories, who alone art able to strengthen the Weak against the Mighty, and to vanquish infinite multitudes of thine Enemies with the Countenance of a few of thy servants calling upon thy Name, and trusting in thee: Defend, O Lord, thy Servant and our Governor under thee, our Queen ELIZABETH, and all thy People committed to her charge. O Lord, withstand the cruelty of all those which be Common Enemies as well to the Truth of thy Eternal Word, as to their own natural Prince and Country, and manifestly to this Crown and Realm of ENGLAND, which thou hast of thy Divine Providence assigned in these our days to the Government of thy Servant, our Sovereign and gracious Queen. O most merciful Father, (if it be thy holy Will) make soft and tender the stone hearts of all those that erect themselves against thy Truth, and seek either to trouble the quiet of this Realm of ENGLAND, or to oppress the Crown of the same; and convert them to the knowing of thy Son the only Saviour of the World, Jesus Christ, that we and they may jointly glorifie thy Mercies. Lighten, we beseech thee, their ignorant hearts to embrace the truth of thy Word, or else to abate their cruelty (O most mighty Lord) that this our Christian Realm, with others that confess thy holy GOD-
The Prayer.

PEL, may obtain by thine aid and strength, surety from all Enemies; Without shedding of Christian blood, whereby all they which be oppressed with their tyranny, may be relieved, and they which be in fear of their cruelty, may be comforted: and finally that all Christian Realms, and especially this Realm of England, may by thy Defence and Protection continue in the truth of the Gospel, and enjoy perfect Peace, Quietness, and security: and that we for these thy Mercies, jointly all together with one consonant heart and voice, may thankfully render to thee all laud and praise, that we, knit in one godly concord and unity amongst our selves, may continually magnifie thy glorious Name, Who with thy Son our Saviour Jesus Christ, and the Holy Ghost, art one Eternal, Almighty, and most merciful GOD: To whom be all laud and praise, World Without end. Amen.
The Second Part of the Homily Against Disobedience and Wilful Rebellion.

In the first part of this Treaty of Obedience of Subjects to their Princes, I have alleged divers sentences out of the holy Scriptures for proof: So shall it be good for the better declaration and confirmation of the said wholesome doctrine, to alleg'd one example or two out of the holy Scriptures of the obedience of Subjects, not only unto their good and gracious Governors, but also unto their evil and unkind Princes. As King Saul was not of the best, but rather of the worst sort of Princes, as being out of GOD's favour for his disobedience against GOD in sparing (in a wrong pity) the King Agag, whom Almighty GOD commanded to be slain according to the justice of GOD against his sworn enemy: and although Saul of a devotion meant to satisfie such things as he spared of the Amalechites to the honour and service of GOD: yet Saul was reprob'd for his wrong mercy and devotion, and was told that obedience would have more pleased him than such lenity, which sinful humanity (faith holy Chrysostom) is more cruel before GOD, than any murder or shedding of blood when it is commanded of GOD. But yet how evil beloved Saul the King was, and out of GOD'S favour, yet was he obey'd of his Subject David, the very best of all Subjects, and most valiant in the service of his Prince and Country in the Wars, the most obdient and loving in Peace, and always most true and faithful to his Sovereign and LORD, and furthest off from all manner of Rebellion. For the which his most painful, true, and faithful service, King Saul yet reward'd him not only with great unkindness, but also fought his destruction and death by all means possible: So that David was fain to save his life, not by rebellion, or any resistence, but by flight and hiding himself, from the Kings sight. Whic', notwithstanding, when King Saul upon a time came alone into the Cave where David was, so that David might easily have slain him, yet would be neither hurt him himself, neither suffer any of his men to lay hands upon him. Another time also David entering by night with one Abishai a valiant and fierce man, into the Tent where K. Saul did lie asleep, where also he might yet more easily have slain him, yet would be neither hurt him himself, nor suffer Abishai (who was willing and ready to slay K. Saul) once to touch him. This did David deal with K. Saul his Prince, notwithstanding that K. Saul continually fought his death and destruction. It shall not be amiss unto these deeds of David to add his words, and to shew you what he spake unto such as encouraged him to take his opportunity and advantage to slay King Saul, as his mortal enemy, when he might. The LORD keep me, faith David, from doing that thing, and from laying hands upon my LORD GOD'S Anointed. For who can lay his hand upon the LORDS Anointed against Wilful Rebellion.

Anointed and be guiltless? As truly as the Lord liveth, except that the Lord do smite him, or his 보내 shall come to die, or that he go down to War, and be slain in battle: the Lord be merciful unto me, that I lay not my hand upon the Lord’s Anointed.

These are David’s words spoken at many times to divers of his servants provoking him to lay King Saul when opportunity served him thereto. Nor is it to be omitted and left out, how when an Amalechite had slain King Saul, even at Saul’s own bidding, and commandment (for he would live no longer now, for that he had lost the field against his Enemies the Philistines) the said Amalechite making great haste to bring still word and news thereof unto David, as joyous unto him for the death of his mortal enemy, bringing with him the Crown that was upon King Saul’s head, and the Bracelet that was about his arm, both as a proof of the truth of his news, and also as fit and pleasant Presents unto David, being by GOD appointed to be King Saul’s Successor in the Kingdom: Yet was that faithful and godly David so far from rejoicing at these news that he rent his clothes, wept, and mourned and fasted: and so far was his thanksgiving to the Messenger, either for his deed in killing the King, though his deadly enemy, or for his message and news, or for his Presents that he brought, that he laid unto him, “Blessed art thou that thou wouldst not afraid to lay thy hands upon the Lord’s Anointed, to slay him.” Whereupon immediately he commanded one of his servants to kill the Messenger and said Thy blood be upon thine own head, for thine own mouth hast misled against thy self in concealing that thou hast slain the Lord’s Anointed.

This example, dearly beloved, is notable, and the circumstances thereof are well to be considered, for the better instruction of all Subjects in their bounteous duty of obedience, and perpetual fearing of them from attempting of any rebellion or hurt against their Prince. In the one part, David was not only a good and true Subject, but also such a Subject as both in Peace and War, had served and loved his Prince more honour and life, and delivered his Country and Country-men from great danger of Insults, For in and most cruel enemies, horribly invading the King and his Country: for the which David was in a singular favour with all the People, so that he might have had great numbers of them at his commandment, if he would have attempted any thing. Besides this, David was no common or absolute Subject, but was so apparent to the Crown and Kingdom, by GOD appointed to reign after Saul: Which as it increased the favour of the people that knew it, towards David, so did it make David cause and case much differing from the case of common and absolute Subjects. And which is most of all, David was highly and singularly in the favour of GOD: On the contrary part King Saul was out of GOD’S favour, (for that cause which is before rehearsed) and he as it were GOD’S enemy, and therefore like in War and Peace to be hurstful and pretentious unto the Common-wealth, and that was known to many of his Subjects, for that he was openly rebuked of Samuel for his disobedience unto GOD, which might make the People the less to esteem him. King Saul was also unto David a mortal and deadly enemy, though without David’s deserving, who by his faithful, painful, profitale, and most necessary service, had well deserved, as of his Country, so of his Prince, but King Saul far otherwise: the more was his unkindness, hatred, and cruelty towards such such a good Subject, both odious and detestable. Yet would David neither himself lay nor hurt such an enemy, for that he was his Prince and Lord, nor would suffer any other to kill, hurt, or lay hand upon him when he might have been slain without any such tumult, or danger of any man's life. Now let David answer to such demands, as men delirious of Rebellion, do use to make. Shall not we, specially being for good men as we are, rise and rebel against a Prince, hated of God, and God's enemy, and therefore likely not to prosper either in war or peace, but to be hurtful and pernicious to the commonwealth? No, faith good and godly David, God's such a King's faithful Subject; and so convinse such subjects as attempt any rebellion against such a King, to be neither good subjects nor good men. But say they, shall we not rise and rebel against so unkind a Prince, nothing considering our true, faithful, and painful service, or the safeguard of our polity? No faith good David, whom no such unkindness could cause to slack his due obedience to his sovereign. Shall we not, say they, rise and rebel against our known mortal, and deadly enemy, that seeketh our lives? No, faith godly David, who had learned the lesson that our Saviour afterward plainly taught, that we should do no hurt to our fellow-subjects, though they hate us and be our enemies; much less unto our Prince, though be were our enemy. Shall we not assemble an army of such good fellows as we are, and by hazarding of our lives, and the lives of such as shall withstand us, and withal hazarding the whole estate of our country, remove so naughty a Prince? No faith godly David, for if I, when I might without assembling force, or number of men, without tumult, or hazard of any man's life, or shedding of any drop of blood, have delivered my old and my country of an evil Prince, yet would I not do it. Are not they (say some) lusty and courageous Captains, valiant men of staunch and good men's bodies, that do venture for the life to kill and depose their King, being a naughty Prince, and their mortal enemy? They may be as lusty and courageous as they list, yet faith godly David, they can be no good nor godly men that so do: for I not only have rebuked, but also commanded him to be slain as a wicked man, which few kings mine enemy, though being weary of his life for the loss of the victory against his enemies, desired that man to slay him. That shall we then do to an evil, to an unkind Prince, an enemy to us, hated of God, hurtful to the commonwealth? Lay no violent hand upon him. Faith good David, but let him live until God appoint and work his end, either by natural death, or in war by lawful enemies, not by traiterous subjects.

This would godly David make answer: and Paul as ye heard before, willeth us also to pray for such a Prince. If, David would make these answers, as by his deeds and words recorded in the holy Scriptures, indeed he both make unto all such demands concerning rebelling against evil princes, unkind princes, cruel princes, princes that be to their good subjects mortal enemies, princes that are out of God's labour, and to hurtful, or like to be hurtful to the commonwealth, what answer think you, would be made to those demands? Whether they (being naughty and unkind subjects) may not, to the great hazard of the life of many thousands, and the utter danger of the state of the commonwealth, and the whole realm, assemble a host of rebels, either to depose to put in fear; or to destroy their natural and loving Prince, ene-
against Wilful Rebellion.

My to none, good to all, even to them the worst of all other, the maintainer of perpetual peace, quietness, and security, most beneficial to the Common-wealth, most necessary for the safeguard of the whole Realm. What answer would David make to their demand, whether they may not attempt cruelly and unnaturally to destroy so peaceable and merciful a Prince? What, David, would David, so reverently speaking of Saul, and so patiently suffering to evil a King, what would he answer, and say to such demands? What would be far, far, what would he do to such high attempters, who so said and did as you before have heard, unto him that slew the King his Master, though a most wicked prince? If he punished with death as a wicked woe, such a man? With what reproaches of words would he rebuke such peers, with what torment of most shameful deaths would he destroy such hell-bounds rather than evil men, such Rebels I mean, as I justly spake of? For if they do disobey an evil and unkind prince, he most unlike unto David that good Subject: What be they who do rebel against a most natural and loving Prince? And if David being so good a Subject, that he obeyed to evil a King, was worthy of a Subject to be made a King himself: What be they, which so evill Subjects that they will rebel against their gracious Prince, worthy of: Surely no mortal man can express with words, nor conceive in mind the horror and most dreadful damnation that such be worthy of, who disdain to be the quiet and happy Subjects of their good Prince, are most worthy to be the miserable captives, and vile slaves of that infernal Tyrant Satan, and with him to suffer eternal slavery and torments. This one example of the good Subject David out of the Old Testament may suffice, and for the notabilities of it, serve for all.

In the New Testament the excellent example of the blessed Virgin Mary the Mother of our Saviour Child, both at the first offer it self. When Proclamation by Commandment was sent into Jury from Augustus the Emperor of Rome, that the people there should repair unto their own Cities and dwelling places, there to be taxed: neither did the blessed Virgin, though both highly in GODS favour, and also being of the Royal blood of the ancient natural Kings of Jury, disdain to obey the commandment of an heathen and Pagan Prince, when GOD had placed such a one over them: Neither did she allege for an excuse, that she was great with child, and most near her time of delivery: Neither grudged she at the length and tedious journey from Nazareth to Bethlehem, from whence and whither she must go to be taxed; Neither repined she at the sharpness of the dead time of Winter, being the latter end of December, an unfit time to travel in, specially a long journey for a Woman being in her case: but all excuses set apart, she obeyed, and came to the appointed place, where at her coming the found such great respect and thong of people, that finding no place in any Inn, she was fain, after her long, painful, and tedious journey, to take up her Lodging in a Stable, where also she was delivered of her blessed Child: and this also declareth how near her time the took that journey. This obedience of this most noble, and most beauteous Lady, to a Pagan and Pagan Prince, both well teach us (who in comparision of her are most base and vile) what ready obedience we do owe to our natural and gracious Sovereign. Submission in this case the obedience of the whole Jewish Nation (being otherwise a stubborn People) unto the Commandment of the same Pagan Heathen Prince.

Princes, both wise, that such Christians as do most readily obey their natural gracious Sovereign, are far worse than the stubborn Jews, whom we yet account as the worst of all People. But no example ought to be of more force with us Christians, than the example of Christ our Master and Saviour, who though he were the Son of God, yet did always behave himself most reverently to such men as were in authority in the World in his time, and he not rebelliously behaved himself, but openly did teach the Jews to pay tribute unto the Roman Emperor, though a Forcin and a Pagan Prince: yea, himself with his Apostles paid tribute unto him: and finally, being brought before Pontius Pilate, a stranger born, and an Heathen man, being Lord President of Jury, he acknowledged his Authority and Power to be given him from God, and obeyed patiently the sentence of most painful and shameful death, which the said Judge pronounced and gave most unjustly against him, without any grudge, murmuring, or evil word once giving.

There be many and divers other examples of the obedience to Princes, even such as be evil, in the New Testament, to the utter confusion of disobedient and rebellious people, but this one may be an eternal example, which the Son of God, and to the Lord of all, Jesus Christ, was given to us his Christians and servants, and such as may serve for all, to teach us to obey Princes, though strangers, wicked, and wronful, when God for our sins shall place such over us. Whereby it followeth unavoidably, that such as do disobey or rebel against their own natural gracious Sovereigns, whatsoever they call themselves, or be named of others, yet are they indeed no true Christians, but worse than Jews, worse than Heathens, and such as shall never enjoy the Kingdom of Heaven, which Christ by his obedience purchased for true Christians, being obedient to him the king of all Kings, and to their Prince whom he hath placed over them. The which Kingdom the peculiar place of all such obedient Subjects, I beseech God our heavenly Father, for the same our Saviour Jesus Christ's sake to grant unto us: To whom with the Holy Ghost be all laud, honour, and glory, now and for ever. Amen.

Thus have you heard the Second Part of this Homily.
The Prayer

As in that time it was Published.

O Most mighty God, the Lord of hosts, the Governor of all Creatures, the only giver of all Victories, who alone are able to strengthen the Weak against the Mighty, and to vanquish infinite multitudes of thine Enemies with the Countenance of a few of thy servants calling upon thy Name, and trusting in thee: Defend, O Lord, thy Servant and our Governor under thee, our Queen Elizabeth, and all thy People committed to her charge. O Lord, withstand the cruelty of all those which be Common Enemies as well to the Truth of thy Eternal Word, as to their own natural Prince and Country, and manifestly to this Crown and Realm of England, which thou hast of thy Divine Providence assigned in these our days to the Government of thy Servant, our Sovereign and gracious Queen. O most merciful Father, (if it be thy holy Will) make soft and tender the stony hearts of all those that exalt themselves against thy Truth, and seek either to trouble the quiet of this Realm of England, or to oppress the Crown of the same; and convert them to the knowledge of thy Son the only Saviour of the World, Jesus Christ, that we and they may jointly glorifie thy Mercies. Lighten, we beseech thee, their ignorant hearts to embrace the truth of thy Word, or else to abate their cruelty (O most mighty Lord) that this our Christian Realm, with others that confess thy holy God.
The Prayer.

P E L, may obtain by thine aid and strength, surely from all Enemies, without shedding of Christian blood, whereby all they which be oppressed with their tyranny, may be relieved, and they which be in fear of their cruelty, may be comforted: and finally that all Christian Realms, and especially this Realm of England, may by thy Defence and Protection continue in the truth of the Gospel, and enjoy perfect Peace, Quietness, and security: and that we for these thy Mercies, jointly all together with one confo- nant heart and voice, may thankfully render to thee all laud and praise, that we, knit in one godly concord and unity amongst ourselves, may continually magnify thy glorious Name, who with thy Son our Saviour Jesus Christ, and the Holy Ghost, art one Eternal, Almighty, and most merciful GOD: To whom be all laud and praise, World Without end. Amen.
The Third Part of the Homily Against Disobedience and Wilful Rebellion.

S I have in the first Part of this Treatise shewed unto you the Doctrine of the holy Scriptures, as concerning the Obedience of true Subjects to their Princes, even as well to such as be evil as unto the good; and in the second Part of the same Treatise confirmed the same Doctrine by notable examples likewise taken out of the holy Scriptures: so remainingeth it now, that I partly do declare unto you in this Third Part, what an abominable sin against GOD and man Rebellion is, and how dreadfully the wrath of GOD is kindled and inflamed against all Rebels, and what horrible plagues, punishments, and deaths, and finally eternal damnation both hang over their heads: as how on the contrary part, good and obedient Subjects are in GOD'S favour, and be partakers of peace, quietness, and security, with other GOD'S manifold blessings in this World, and by his mercies throughout the Savioir Christ, of life everlasting also in the World to come. How horrible a sin against GOD and man Rebellion is, cannot possibly be expressed according unto the greatness thereof. For he that nameth Rebellion, nameth not a singular or one only sin, as is Theft, Robbery, Murder, and such like; but he nameth the whole Puddle and Sink of all sins against GOD and man, against his Prince, his Country, his Countrymen, his Parents, his Children, his Kinsfolks, his Friends, and against all Men universally; all sins I say, against GOD and all Men heaped together, nameth he that nameth Rebellion. For concerning the offence of GOD'S Majesty, who seeth not that Rebellion rifeth sted by contempt of GOD and of his holy Ordinances and Laws, wherein he so strictly commandeth Obedience, forbiddeth Disobedience and Rebellion: And besides, the dishonour done by Rebels unto GOD'S holy Name, by their breaking of their Oath made to their Prince, with the attestation of GOD'S Name, and calling of his Majesty to witness: Who heareth not the horrible Oaths and Blasphemies of GOD'S holy Name, that are used daily amongst Rebels, that is either amongst them, or heareth the truth of their behaviour? Who knoweth not that Rebels do not only themselves leave all works necessary to be done upon Work-days, undone, whereas they accomplish their abominable work of Rebellion, and to compel others that would gladly be well occupied, to do the same; but also how Rebels do not only leave the Sabbath day of the Lord unsanctified, the Temple and Church of the Lord uncoveted unto, but also do by their works of wickednes most horribly profane and pollute the Sabbath day, elevating Satan, and by doing of his work, making it the Devil's day in stead of the Lord's day? Rebels that, they compel good men that would gladly serve the Lord assembling in his Temple and Church.
The Third Part of the Sermon

Church upon his day, as becometh the Lords servants, to assemble and meet armed in the field, to resist the fury of such Rebels. Pea, and many Rebels, left they should leave any part of GOD’S Commandments in the first Table of his Law unbroken, or any sin against GOD undone, do make Rebellion for the maintenance of their Images and Idols, and of their Idolatry committed, or be committed by them: and in despite of GOD, cut and draw in sundry his holy Word, and tread it under their feet, as of late ye know was done.

As concerning the Second Table of GOD’S Law, and all sins that may be committed against man, who seeth not that they be contained in Rebellion: For first the Rebels do not only dishonour their Prince, the parent of their Country, but also do dishonour and shame their natural parents, if they have any, do shame their kindred and friends, do disinherit and undo for ever their children and heirs. Thefts, Robberies, and Murders, which of all sins are most loathed of most men, are in no men so much, not so perversely and mischievously, as in Rebels. For the most arrant Thieves, cruellest Murderers that ever were, so long as they refrain from Rebellion, as they are not many in number, so speedeth their wickedness and damnation unto a few, they spoil but a few, they shed the blood but of a few in comparison. But Rebels are the cause of infinite Robberies, and Murders of great multitudes, and of those also whom they should defend from the spoil and violence of other: and as Rebels are many in number, so doth their wickedness and damnation spread it forth unto many. And if the God of Abraham and Avram amongst such persons as are agreeable to such wickedness, are (as they indeed be) most damnable: what are the forcible oppressions of Barons and mens Wives, and the violating and deflowering of Virgins and Maidens, which are most rife with Rebels: how horrible and damnable think you are they? Now besides that, Rebels by breach of their Faith given, and the Oath made to their Prince, be guilty of most damnable perjury: it is wondrous to see what false colours and signed causes, by slanderous lies made upon their Prince, and the Counsellors, Rebels will devise to cloak their Rebellion withal, which is the worst and most damnable of all false witnesses bearing that may be possible. For what should I speak of coveting, of desiring of other mens Wives, Houses, Lands, Gods, and Servants in Rebels, who by their wills would leave unto no man anything of his own.

Thus you see that all good Laws are by Rebels violated and broken, and that all sins possible to be committed against GOD or man, be contained in Rebellion: which sins if a man list to name by the accustomed names of the first capital or deadly sins as Pride, Envy, Wrath, Covetousnes, Sloth, Lustony, and Lechery, he shall find them all in Rebellion, and amongst Rebels. For if these ambition and desire to be aloof, which is the property of Pride, directed up many mens minds to Rebellion, so comedy it is of a Luciferian pride and presumption, that a few rebellious Subjects should set themselves up against the Majesty of their Prince, against the Wisdom of the Counsellors, against the power and force of all Nobility, and the faithful Subjects and People of the whole Realm. As for Envy, Wrath, Murder, and desire of blood, and Covetousness of other mens Gods, Lands and Livings, they are the inseparable accidents of all Rebels, and peculiar properties that do usually lie up wicked men unto Rebellion.
against Wilful Rebellion.

Now such as by riotousness, gluttony, drunkenness, excess of apparel, and unchastity games, have wasted their own goods unthriftily, the same are most apt unto, and most desirous of Rebellion, whereby they seek to come by other men's goods unlawfully and violently. And where other gluttons and drunkards take too much of such meats and drinks as are served to Tables, Rebels waste and consume in short space, all Corn in Barns, Fields or elsewhere, whole Garners, whole Storhouses, whole Cellars, devour whole Flocks of Sheep, whole Dyomes of Dreen and Wine. And as Rebels that are married, leaving their own Wives at home, do most ungraciously, so much more do unmarried men, worse than any Thieves or robbers (being now by Rebellion set at liberty from Correction of Laws which bound them before) abuse by force other men's Wives and Daughters, and ravish Virgins and maidens most shamefully, abominably, and damnably.

Thus all sins, by all names that sins may be named, and by all means that sins may be committed and wrought, do all wholly upon years follow Rebellion, and are to be found altogether amongst Rebels. Now whereas Pestilence, Famine, and War, are by the holy Scriptures declared to be the greatest Worldly Plagues and Miseries that likely can be: it is evident, that all the Miseries that all these Plagues have in them, do wholly altogether follow Rebellion, wherein, as all their Miseries be, so is there much more mischief than in them all.

For it is known that in the reeling of great Companies of men together, which in Rebellion happeneth both upon the part of true Subjects, and of the Rebels, by their close lying together, and corruption of the Air and place where they do lie, with Odours and much filth in the hot Weather, and by unworthy Lodging and lying often upon the Ground, specially in cold and wet Weather in Winter, by their unworthy diet, and feeding at all times, and often by famine and lack of meat and drink in due time, and again by taking too much at other times: It is well known, I say, that as well Plagues and Pestilences, as all other kinds of Sicknesses and Maladies by these means grow up and spring amongst men, whereby men are consumed at the length, than are by dint of Good Suddenly Gain in the Field. So that not only Pestilences, but also all other Sicknesses, Diseases, and Maladies, do follow Rebellion, which are much more horrible than Plagues, Pestilences, and Diseases sent directly from God, as hereafter shall appear more plainly.

And as for hunger and famine, they are the peculiar companions of Rebellion: for while Rebels do in short time spoil and consume all Corn and necessary provision, which men with their labours had gotten and appointed upon, for their ending the whole Year after, and also do let all other men, Husbandmen and others, from their husbandry, and other necessary works, whereby provision should be made for times to come, who fear not that exterm famine and hunger must needs shortly ensue and follow Rebellion: Now whereas the wise King and godly Prophet David judged War to be worse than either Famine or Pestilence, for that these two are often suffered by God, for man's amendment, and be not sins of themselves: but Wars have always the sins and mischief of men upon the one side.

or other joined with them, and therefore is War the greatest of these worldy mishiefs: but of all Wars, Civil War is the worst, and far more abominable yet is Rebellion than any Civil War, being unworthy the name of any War, so far it exceeth all Wars in all naughtines, in all mischief, and in all abomination. And therefore our Saviour Christ denounceth declation and destruction to that Realm, that by Sedition and Rebellion is divided in it self.

Now as I have shewed before, that Pestilence and Famine, so is it yet more evident that all the calamities miseries, and mischiefs of War, be more grievous and do more follow Rebellion, than any other War, as being far worse than all other Wars. For not only those ordinary and usual mischiefs and miseries of other Wars do follow Rebellion, as Cown, and other things necessary to mans use, to be spoiled, houses, Villages, Towns, Cities to be taken, lacked, burned, and destroyed, not only many very wealthy men, but whole Countries to be impoverished, and utterly beggared, many thousands of men to be slain and murdered, Women and Husbands to be violated and deflowered: which things when they are done by foreign enemies, we do much mourn, as we have great causes, yet are all these miseries without any wickedness wrought by any of our own Countrymen. But when these mischiefs are brought in Rebellion by them that should be friends, by Countrymen, by Kinsmen, by those that should defend their Country, and Countrymen from such miseries; the misery is nothing to great as is the mischief and wickedness when the Subjects unnaturally do Rebel against their Prince, whose honour and life they should defend, though it were with the loss of their own lives: Countrymen to disturb the publick Peace and Quietness of their Country, for defence of whole Quietness they should spend their lives; the Brother to seek, and often to work the death of his Brother, the Son of the Father, the Father to seek or procure the death of his Sons, being at mans age, and by their faults to disinherit their innocent children and Kinsmen their heirs for ever, for whom they might purchase Livings and Lands, as natural Parents do take care and pains, and to be at great costs and charges: and universally in Head of all quietness, joy, and felicity, which do follow blessed Peace, and due Submission, to bring in all trouble, forrow, disquietness of minds and bodies and all mischief and calamity, to turn all good Order upside down, to bring all good Laws in contempt, and to treat them under feet, to oppress all Virtue and Honesty, and all vertuous and honest Persons, and to set all Vices and Wickedness, and all vicious and wicked Men at liberty, to work their wicked wills, which were before hidded by wholesome Laws to weaken, to overthrow, and to confound the strength of the Realm their natural Country, as well by the Spending and wasting of the money and treasure of the Prince and Realm, as by murdering the People of the same, their own Countrymen, who should defend the honour and liberty of their Country, against the Invasion of Foreign enemies: and so finally, to make their Country thus by their mischief weakened, ready to be a prey and spoil to all outward enemies that will invade it, to the utter and perpetual captivity, slavery, and destruction of all their Countrymen, their children, their friends, their kinsfolks left alive, whom by their wicked Rebellion they procure to be delivered into the hands of the foreign enemies, as much as in them doth lie.
against Wilful Rebellion.

In Foreign Wars our Countrymen in obtaining the Victory win the praise of valiantness; yea, and though they were overcome and slain, yet win they an honest commendation in this World, and die in a good conscience for serving GOD, their Prince, and their Country; and be children of eternal Salvation: But the Rebellion how desperate and strong sober they be, yet win they shame here in fighting against GOD, their Prince and Country, and therefore justly do fall headlong into Hell if they die; and live in shame and fearful conscience, though they escape.

But commonly they be rewarded with shameful deaths, their hands and carcasses set upon Poles, and hanged in chains, eaten with Rats and Crows, judged unworthy the honour of burial: and to their souls, if they repent not (as commonly they do not,) the Devil hurrieth them into Hell, in the midst of their mischief. For which dreadfull execution Saint Paul sheweth Rom. 13. the cause of obedience, not only for fear of death, but also in Conscience to GOD-ward, for fear of eternal damnation in the World to come.

Therefore good People, let us, as the children of Obedience, fear the dreadfull execution of GOD, and live in quiet obedience, to be the children of everlasting Salvation. For as Heaven is the place of good obedient Subjects, and Hell the Prison and Dungeon of Rebels against GOD and their Prince: so is that Realm happy where most obedience of Subjects doth appear, being the very figure of Heaven: and contrariwise where most Rebellions and Rebels be, there is the reprobate multitude of Hell, and the Rebels themselves are the very figures of Fiends and Devils, and their Captain the ungracious pattern of Lucifer and Satan the Prince of Darkness; of whose Rebellion as they be Followers, so shall they of his damnation in Hell undoubtedly be partakers: and as undoubtedly children of Peace the inheritors of Heaven with GOD the Father, GOD the Son, and GOD the holy Ghost: To whom be all honour and glory for ever and ever. Amen.

Thus have you heard the Third Part of this HOMELY.

Now good People let us pray.

The
The Fourth Part of the Homily Against Disobedience and Wilful Rebellion.

Oh, for further instruction (good People) to shew unto you how much Almighty God doth abhor disobedience and wilful Rebellion, specially when Rebels advance themselves so high, that they arm themselves with weapon, and stand in said to fight against God, their Prince, and their Country: it shall not be out of the way to shew some examples set out in Scriptures, written for our eternal edification. We may soon know (good People) how heinous an offence the treachery of Rebellion is, if we call to remembrance the heavy wrath and dreadful indignation of Almighty God against Subjects as do only but inwardly grudge, mutter, and murmur against their Governors though their inward treason so privily hatched in their breast, come not to open Declaration of their doings, as hard it is when the Devil hath so far enticed against God's Word to keep themselves there: no, he meaneth still to blow the Coal, to kindle their Rebellion's Hearts to flame into open deeds, if he be not with Grace specifically withstood.

Some of the children of Israel, being murmurers against their Magistrates appointed over them by God, were stricken with leprosy; many were burnt up with fire suddenly sent from the Lord; sometimes a great part of thousands were consumed with the Pestilence: sometimes they were stung to death with a strange kind of fiery Serpents: and (which is most horrible) some of the Captains and their bands of murmurers not dying by any usual or natural death of men, but the earth opening, they with their wives, children, and families, were swallowed quick down into hell. Which horrible destructions of such Israelites as were murmurers against Moses, appointed by God, to be their head and chief Magistrate, are recorded in the Book of Numbers, and other places of the Scriptures, for perpetual memory and warning to all Subjects, how highly God is displeased with the murmuring and evil speaking of Subjects against their Princes, so that as the Scripture recordeth, their murmur was not against their Prince only, being a mortal creature, but against God himself also. Now if such strange and horrible plagues, did fall upon such Subjects as did only murmur and speak evil against their heads: what shall become of those most wicked imps of the Devil that do conspire, arm themselves, assemble great numbers of armed Rebels, and lead them with them against their Prince and Country, spoiling and robbing, killing and murdering all good Subjects that do withstand them, as many as they may prevail against? But those examples are written to stay us, not only from such mischiefs, but also from murmuring, and speaking once

once an evil word against our Prince, which though any should do never so secretly, yet do the holy Scriptures show that the very Birds of the air will betray them: and these so many examples before noted out of the holy Scriptures do declare, that they shall not escape horrible punishment therefore.  How concerning actual Rebellion, amongst many examples thereof set forth in the holy Scriptures, the example of Abiram is notable: who entering into conspiracy against King David his father both used the advice of very witty men, and assembled a very great and huge company of Rebels: the which Abiram, though he were most goodly of person, of great nobility, being the King's Son, in great favour of the People, and so dearly beloved of the King himself, so much that he gave commandment that (notwithstanding his rebellion) his life should be spared: when for these considerations, most men were afraid to lay hands upon him. a great Tree fled to the hills, as it were for that purpose, caught him by the great and long bulk of his goodly head, covering about it as he fled hastily bare-headed under the said Tree, and so hanged him up by the hair of his head in the air, to give an eternal document, that neither connivances of personage, neither nobility, nor favour of the people, nor the favour of the King himself, can save a Rebel from due punishment: GOD the King of all Kings being so offended with him, that rather than he should lack due execution for his treason, every Tree by the way will be a Gallows or gibbet unto him, and the hair of his own head will be unto him in stead of an halter to hang him up with rather than he should lack one. A fearful example of GOD's punishment (good people) to consider. Now Achish, though otherwise an exceeding wise man, yet the mischievous Counsellor of Abiram, in this wicked Rebellion, for lack of an Hangman, a convenient Serbitor for such a Traitor, went and hanged up himself. A worthy end of all false Rebels, who rather then they should lack due execution, will by GOD's just judgment, become hangmen unto themselves. Thus happened it to the Captains of that Rebellion: beside forty thousand of rascal Rebels slain in the field, and in the chase.

Likewise is it to be seen in the holy Scriptures, how that great Rebellion which the Traitor Seba moved in Israel, was suddenly appeased, the head of the Captain Traitor: (by the means of a Fifty woman) being cut off. And as the holy Scriptures do show, so doth daily experience prove, that the Counsellors, Conspiracies, and attempts of Rebels, never took effect, neither came to good, but to most horrible end. For though GOD doth oftentimes prosper just and lawful Enemies, which he be Subjects, against their foreign Enemies: yet did he never long prosper rebellious Subjects against their Prince, were they never so great in authority, or so many in number. Five Princes or Kings (for so the Scripture termeth them) with all their multitudes, could not prevail against Chedorlaomer, unto whom they had promised loyalty and obedience, and had continued in the same certain years, but they were all overthrown and taken prisoners by him: but Abraham with his family and kinsfolk, an handful of men in respect, owing no Subjection unto Chedorlaomer, overthrew him and all his host in battle, and recovered the prisoners, and delivered them. So that though War be so dreadful and cruel a thing, as it is, yet GOD often prosper a few in lawful Wars with foreign Enemies against many thousands:

but never yet prospered he Subjects being Rebels against their natural Sovereign, were they never so great or noble, so many, so stout, so witty and politicke, but always they came by the overthrow and to a shameful end: so much both GOD abhor Rebellion, more then other Wars, though otherwise being so dreadful, and so great a destruction to mankind. Though not only great multitudes of the rude and rash Commons, but sometimes also men of great wit, nobility, and authority, have moved rebellions against their lawful Princes (whereas true Nobility should most abhor such villanous, and true Wisdom should most detest such treachrick Rebellion) though they should pretend Sundry causes, as the redrefs of the Common-wealth (which Rebellion of all other multitudes both most destroy) or Reformation of Religion (whereas Rebellion is most against all true Religion) though they have made a great show of holy meaning by beginning their rebellions with a counterfeit service of GOD, (as did wicked Aboloe begin his Rebellion with enregistrizing unto GOD, though they display and bear about ensigns and banners, which are acceptable unto the rude ignorant common people, great multitudes of whom by such false pretences and views they do deceive, and draw unto them: yet were the multitudes of the Rebels never so huge and great, the Captains never so noble, politicke and witty, the pretences fained to be never so good and holy, yet the speedy overthrow of all Rebels, of what number, state, or condition over them they were, or what colour, or cause forever they pretended, is and ever hath been such, that GOD thereby doth shew that he will not suffer the dignity of any person, nor the multitude of any people, nor the weight of any cause, as sufficient for the which the Subjects may move Rebellion against their Princes.

Turn over and read the histories of all Nations, look over the Chronicles of our own Country, call to mind so many rebellions of old time, and some yet fresh in memory, ye shall not find that GOD ever prospered any Rebellion against their natural and lawful Prince; but contrariwise, that the Rebels were overthrown and slain, and such as were taken prisoners, dreadfully executed. Consider the great and noble Families of Dukes, Marquesses, Earls, and other Lords whose names ye shall read in our Chronicles, now clean extinguished and gone, and seek out the causes of the decay, you shall find, that not lack of issue and heirs male hath so much wrought that decay, and waste of noble bloods and houses, as hath Rebellion. And so much as the redrefs of the Common-wealth hath of old been the usual fained pretence of Rebels, and Religion now of late begun to be a colour of Rebellion: let all godly and discreet Subjects consider well of both, and still concerning Religion. If peaceable King Solomon was judged of GOD to be more meet to build his Temple (whereby the ordering of Religion is meant) then his Father King David, though otherwise a most godly King for that David was a great Warrior, and had the most blood, though it were in his Wars against the Enemies of GOD: of this may all godly and reasonable Subjects consider, that a peaceable Prince, specially our most peaceable and merciful King, who hath hitherto shed no blood at all, no not of his most deadly enemies, is more like and far meet either to set up, or to maintain true Religion, than are bloody Rebels, who have not shed the blood of GOD's enemies, as King David had done, but do seek to shed the Compulsion of God's friends, of their own Countrymen, and of their own moll, dear friends and kinsfolk, for the destruction of their most gracious Prince and natural Country, for defence of whom they ought to be ready to shed their blood, if need should require. What a Religion it is that such men by such means would revenge, may easily be judged: even as good a Religion surely, as Rebels be good men and obedient Subjects, and as Rebellion is a good mean of rebels and reformation, doing it for the greatest deformation of all that may possibly be. But as the truth of the Gospel, or the Saviour Christ, being quietly and soberly taught, though it do cost them their lives, that do teach it, is able to maintain the true Religion: so hath a frantic Religion need of such furious maintenances as is Rebellion, and of such Patrons as are Rebels, being ready not to die for the true Religion, but to kill all that shall or dare speak against their false superstition and wicked idolatry.
Now concerning pretences of any rebels of the Common-wealth, made by Rebels every man that hath but half an eye may see how vain they be; Rebellion being, as I have before declared, the greatest ruine and destruction of all Common-wealthe that may be possible. And who do looketh on the one part upon the persons and government of the kings, must honourable Counsellors, by the experiment of so many years proved serviceable to his Majesty, and most profitable and beneficent unto our Country and Countrymen; and on the other part, considereth the persons, state and conditions of the Rebels themselves the reformers as they take upon them, of the present Government, he shall find that the most rash and barebrained men, the greatest unthrifts, that have most lewdly wasted our own Goods and Lands, those that are over the ears in debt, and such as for their Thiefs, Robberies and Murders, dare not in any well governed Common-wealth, where good Laws are in force, theu their faces, such as are of most lewd and wicked behavior and life, and all such as will not, or cannot live in peace, are always most ready to move Rebellion, or take part with Rebels. And are not these meet men, crou you, to restore the Common-wealth decayed, who have to spoiled and consumed all their own wealth and thievs, and very like to amend other men's manner, who have to vile vices and abominable conditions themselves? Surely that which they falsely call Reformation, is indeed not only a defacing of reformation, but also an utter destruction of all Common-wealth, as would well appear, might the Rebels have their wills, and doth right well and too well appear by their doing in such places of the Country, where Rebels do rout, where though they tarry but a very little while, they make such Reformation that they destroy all places, and undo all men, where they come, that the child yet unborn may rue it, and shall many years hereafter curse them.

Let no good and discreet Subjects therefore follow the Flag or Ban-er displayed to rebellion, and born by Rebels, though it have the image of the Plough painted therin, with God speed the Plough, given under in great letters, knowing that none hinder the Plough more than Rebels, who will neither go to the Plough themselves, nor suffer other that would go unto it. And though some Rebels bear the picture of the six wounds painted, against those who put their only hope of salvation in the wounds of Christ, not those wounds which are painted in a Cloath by some lewd Painter, but in those wounds which Christ himself bare in his precious body, though they, little knowing what the Cros
The Third Part of the Serm. &c.

Crosse of Christ meaneeth, which neither Carver nor Painter can make, to bear the Image of the Cross painted in a rag, against those that have the Cross of Christ painted in their hearts. Yet though they paint it withal in their Flags, hoc signo vinces, by this sign thou shalt get the victory, by a most fond imitation of the pole of Constantinus Magnus, that noble Christian Emperour, and great Conquerour of GOD's enemies, a most unmeet Ensign for Rebels, the enemies of GOD, their Prince and Country, or what other Banner before they shall bear: yet let no good and godly Subject, upon any hope of victory or good success, follow such Standard-Bearers of Rebellion.

For as examples of such practices are to be found as well in the histories of old, as also of latter Rebellions, in our Fathers and our selves memory: so notwithstanding these pretences made and Banners born, are recorded withal to perpetual memory, the great and horrible murders of infinite multitudes and thousands of the common People slain in Rebellion, dreadful executions of the Authors and Captains, the pitiful undoing of their wives and children, and disinheritance of the heirs of the Rebels for ever, the Spoiling, wasting, and Deprived of the people and Country where Rebellion was first begun, that the child then yet unborn might see and lament it, with the final overthrow, and shameful deaths of all Rebels; let forth as well in the Histories of foreign Nations, as in the Chronicles of our own Country, some thereof being yet in fresh memory, which if they were collected together, would make many Volumes and Books: But on the contrary part, all good luck, success and prosperity that ever happened unto any Rebels of any Age, Time, or Country, may be contained in a very few lines, or words.

Therefore to conclude, let all good Subjects, considering how horrid a sin against GOD, their Prince, their Country, and Country-men, against all GOD's laws and mans laws Rebellion is, being indeed not one separate sin, but all sins against GOD and man heaped together, considering the mischieffull life and deeds, and the shameful ends and deaths of all Rebels hitherto, and the pitiful undoing of their Wives, Children, and Families, and disinheritance of their heirs for ever, and above all things considering the eternal damnation that is prepared for all impenitent Rebels in Hell with Satan the first Founder of Rebellion, and grand Captain of all Rebels, let all good Subjects a lay considering these things, avoid and flee all Rebellion, as the greatest of all mischiefs, and imbrace due obedience to GOD and our Prince, as the greatest of all vertues, that we may both escape all evils and miseries that do follow Rebellion in this World, and eternal damnation in the World to come, and enjoy peace, quietness and security, with all other GOD's benefits and blessings which follow obedience in this life, and finally may enjoy the Kingdom of Heaven, the peculiar place of all obedient Subjects to GOD and their Prince in the World to come: which I beseech GOD the King of all Kings, grant unto us for the obedience of his Son our Saviour Jesus Christ, into whom with the Father and the holy Ghost, one GOD and King immortal, all honour, service, and obedience of all his Creatures is due for ever and ever. Amen.

Thus have you heard the Fourth Part of this Homily.

As in that time it was Published.

O Most mighty GOD, the Lord of hosts, the Governor of all Creatures, the only giver of all Victories, who alone art able to strengthen the weak against the Mighty, and to vanquish infinite multitudes of thine Enemies with the Countenance of a few of thy servants calling upon thy Name, and trusting in thee: Defend, O Lord, thy Servant and our Governor under thee, our Queen ELIZABETH, and all thy People committed to her charge. O Lord, Withstand the cruelty of all those which be Common Enemies as well to the Truth of thy Eternal Word, as to their own natural Prince and Country, and manifestly to this Crown and Realm of England, which thou hast of thy Divine Providence assigned in these our days to the Government of thy Servant, our Sovereign and gracious Queen. O most merciful Father, (if it be thy holy Will) make soft and tender the stony hearts of all those that craft themselves against thy Truth, and seek either to trouble the quiet of this Realm of England, or to oppress the Crown of the same; and convert them to the knowledge of thy Son the only Saviour of the World, Jesus Christ, that we and they may jointly glorifie thy Mercies. Lighten, we beseech thee, their ignorant hearts to embrace the truth of thy Word, or else to abate their cruelty (O most mighty Lord) that this our Christian Realm, with others that confess thy holy GOD.
The Prayer.

O, may obtain by thine aid and strength, surety from all Enemies, without shedding of Christian blood, whereby all they which be oppressed with their tyranny, may be relieved, and they which be in fear of their cruelty, may be comforted: and finally that all Christian Realms, and especially this Realm of England, may by thy Defence and Protection continue in the truth of the Gospel, and enjoy perfect Peace, Quietness, and security: and that we for these thy Mercies, jointly all together with one consonant heart and voice, may thankfully render to thee all laud and praise, that we, knit in one godly concord and unity amongst our selves, may continually magnifie thy glorious Name, Who with thy Son our Saviour Jesus Christ, and the Holy Ghost, are one Eternal, Almighty, and most merciful God: To whom be all laud and praise, World without end. Amen.
The Fifth Part of the Homily Against Disobedience and Wilful Rebellion.

Whereas both doctrine and examples of due Obedience of Subjects to their Princes, I declared lastly unto you what an abominable sin against God and man Rebellion is, and what horrible Plagues, Punishments, and Deaths, with Death everlasting, finally doth hang over the heads of all Rebels: it shall not be either impertinent, or impossible now to declare who they be, whom the Devil, the first author and founder of Rebellion, doth chiefly use to stirring up of Subjects to Rebel against their lawful Princes: that knowing them, ye may see them, and their damnable Suggestors, avoid all Rebellion, and escape the horrible plagues, and dreadful death and damnation eternal, finally due to all Rebels.

Though many causes of Rebellion may be reckoned, and almost as many as there be vices in men and women, as hath been before noted: yet in this place I will only touch the principal and most usual causes as specially Ambition and Ignorance. By Ambition, I mean the unlawful and restless desire in men, to be of higher estate than God hath given or appointed unto them. By ignorance, I mean no unskilfulness in Arts or Sciences, but the want of knowledge of God's blessed Word, which teacheth both trebly and absolutely to abhor all Rebellion, as being the root of all mischief, and specially to delight in obedience, as the beginning and foundation of all goodness, as hath been also before specified. And as these are the two chief causes of Rebellion: so are there specially two sorts of men in whom these vices do reign, by whom the Devil, the author of all evil, doth chiefly stir up all Disobedience and Rebellion.

The restless ambitious having once determined by one means or other to achieve to their intended purpose, when they cannot by lawful and peaceable means climb so high as they do desire, they attempt the same by force and violence: wherein when they cannot prevail against the ordinary authority and power of lawful Princes and Governors themselves alone, they do seek the aid and help of the ignorant multitude, abusing them to their wicked purpose. Wherefore being a few ambitious and malicious are the authors and heads, and multitudes of ignorant men are the ministers and furtherers of Rebellion, the chief point of this part shall be as well to notice to the simple and ignorant men who they be, that have been and be usual authors of Rebellion, that they may know them; and also to admonish them to beware of the subtle Suggestors of such restless ambitious persons, and to see them: that Rebellions (though attempted by a few ambitious) through the lack of maintenance by any multitudes, may speedily and

It is well known as well by all histories, as by daily experience, that none have either more ambitiously aspired above Emperors, Kings and Princes: nor have more perniciously moved the ignorant people to rebellion against their Princes, than certain persons which falsely challenge to themselves to be only counted and called Spiritual. I must therefore here yet once again briefly put you (good people) in remembrance out of GODS holy Word, how our Saviour Jesus Christ and his holy Apostles, the heads and chief of all true Spiritual and Ecclesiastical men, behaved themselves towards the Princes and Rulers of their time, though not the best Governors that ever were, that you be not ignorant whether they be the true Disciples and followers of Christ and his Apostles, and so true Spiritual men, that either by ambition do so highly aspire, or do most maliciously teach, or most perniciously do execute Rebellion against their lawful Princes, being the work of all carnal works, and mischievous deeds.

The holy Scriptures do teach most expressly, that our Saviour Christ himself, and his Apostles Saint Paul, Saint Peter, with others, were unto the Magistrates and higher powers, which ruled at their being upon the earth, both obedient themselves, and did also diligently and earnestly exhort all other Christians to the like obedience unto their Princes and Governors; whereby it is evident that men of the Clergy, and Ecclesiastical Ministers, as their successors ought both themselves specially, and before other, to be obedient unto their Princes, and also to exhort all others unto the same. Our Saviour Christ likewise teaching by his doctrine that his Kingdom was not of this World, did by his example in fleeing from those that would have made him King, continue the same: expressly also forbidding his Apostles, and by them the whole Clergy, all princeps dominion over People and Nations; and he and his holy Apostles likewise, namely Peter and Paul, did forsake unto all Ecclesiastical Ministers, dominion over the Church of Christ. And indeed whiles the Ecclesiastical Ministers continued in Christ's Church in that order as that is in Christ's Word prescribed unto them, and in Christian kingdoms kept themselves obedient to their own Princes, as the holy Scripture doth teach them: both was Christ's Church more clear from ambitious emulations and contentions, and the state of Christian Kingdoms, less subject unto tumults and rebellions. But after that ambition and desire of dominion entered once into Ecclesiastical Ministers, whose greatness after the doctrine and example of our Saviour, should quickly stand in humbling themselves: and that the Bishop of Rome being by the order of GOD's Word none other than the Bishop of that one See and Diocese, and never yet well able to govern the same, did by intolerable ambition challenge, not only to be the Head of all the Church dispersed throughout the World, but also to be Lord of all Kingdoms of the World, as is expressly set forth in the Book of his own Canon Laws, most contrary to the Doctrine and example of our Saviour Christ, whose Vicar, and of his Apostles, namely Peter, whose successor he pretendeth to be: after his ambition entered, and this challenge once made by the Bishop of Rome, he became at once the spoiler and despoiler both of the Church, which is the Kingdom of our Saviour Christ, and of the Christian Empire, Empire, and all Christian Kingdoms, as an universal Tyrant over all.

And whereas before that challenge made, there was great unity and love amongst the Christians of all Countries, hereupon began emulation and much hatred between the Bishop of Rome and his Clergy and Friends on the one part, and the Exem Clergy and Christians of the East on the other part, so that they refused to acknowledge any such Supreme authority of the Bishop of Rome over them: the Bishop of Rome for this cause amongst other, not only naming them, and taking them for Schismatics, but also never ceasing to persecute them, and the Emperors who had their See and Continuance in Greece, by stir-ing of the Subjects to Rebellion against their Sovereign Lords, and by raising deadly hatred and most cruel wars between them and other Christian Princes. And when the Bishops of Rome had translated the title of the Emperor, and as much as in them did lie, the Empire it fell from their Lord the Emperor of Greece, and of Rome also by right unto the Christian Princes of the West. They became in short space no better unto the West Emperors, than they were before unto the Emperors of Greece: for the usual discharging of Subjects from their Oath of fidelity made unto the Emperors of the West their Sovereign Lords, by the Bishops of Rome: the unnatural stirring up of the Subjects unto Rebellion against their Princes; pe, of the Son against the Father, by the Bishop of Rome: the most cruel and bloody Wars raised amongst Christian Princes of all Kingdoms, the horrible murder of infinite thousands of Christian men being slain by Christians: and which ensued thereupon, the pitiful lot of so many goodly Cities, Countries, Dominions, and Kingdoms, sometime possessed by Christians in Asia, Africa, Europa: the miserable fall of the Empire and Church of Greece, sometime the most flourishing part of Christendom, into the hands of the Turks: the lamentatable diminishing, decay, and ruin of Christian Religion: the dreadful increase of Paganism, and power of the Infidels and Infidels, and all by the practice and procurement of the Bishop of Rome chiefly, is in the Bishops and Chronicles written by the Bishop of Rome's own Labourers and friends to be seen: and as well known unto all such as are acquainted with the said Histories. The ambitious intent and most lustile drifts of the Bishops of Rome in these their practices, appeared evidently by their bold attempt in spoiling and robbing the Emperors of their Cities, Dominions, and Kingdoms, in Italy, Lombardy, and Sicily, of ancient right belonging to the Empire, and by joyning of them unto their Bishoprick of Rome, or else giving them unto strangers, to hold them of the Church and Bishop of Rome as in capite, and as of the chief Lords thereof, in which tenure they hold the most part thereof, even at this day. By these ambitious, and indeed traiterous means and spoiling of their Sovereign Lords, the Bishops of Rome, of Princes, and none other by right than the Bishops of one City and Diocese, are by false usurpation become great Lords of many Dominions, mighty Princes, ye, or Emperors rather, as claiming to have divers Princes and Kings to their vassals, Liege-men, and Subjects; as in the same Histories written by their own Familiars and Courtiers is to be seen. And indeed since the time that the Bishops of Rome by ambition, treason, and usurpation, attained and attained to this height and greatness, they behaved themselves more like Princes, Kings, and Ecc. 2 Emperor.
Emperours in all things, then remained like Priests, Bishops and Ecclesiastical, or (as they would be called) Spiritual persons, in any one thing at all. For after this rate they have handled other Kings and Princes of other Realms throughout Christendom, as well as their Sovereign Lords the Emperors, usually discharging their Subjects of their Debt of Fidelity, and so stirring them up to Rebellion against their natural Princes. Whereof some Examples shall in the last part hereof be notified unto you.

Therefore let all good Subjects, knowing these the special instruments and ministers of the Devil, to the stirring up of all Rebellions, avoid and see them, and the pestilent Suggessions of such foreign Usurers, and their adherents, and embrace all obedience to GOD, and their natural Princes and Sovereigns, that they may enjoy GOD's blessings, and their Princes favour, all peace, quietness, security in this World and finally attain through Christ our Saviour, life everlasting in the World to come: which GOD the Father for the same our Saviour Jesus Christ his sake grant unto us all: To whom with the Holy Ghost, be all honour and glory, World without end. Amen.

Thus have you heard the Fifth Part of this Homily.

The Sixth and last Part of the Homily Against Disobedience and Wilful Rebellion.

On whereas the Injuries, Oppressions, Rabiny, and Tyranny of the Bishops of Rome usurping, as well against their natural Lords the Emperors, as against all other Christian Kings and Kingdoms, and their continual stirring of Subjects unto Rebellions against their Sovereign Lords, whereof I have partly admonished you before, were intolerable: and it may seem more then marvellous, that any Subjects would after such sort hold with unnatural foreign Whispers against their own Sovereign Lords, and natural Country: It remaineth that I do declare the mean whereby they compassed these matters, and so to conclude this whole Treatise of due Obedience, and against Disobedience and Wilful Rebellion. You shall understand, that by ignorance of GOD'S Word, wherein they kept all men, especially the common people, they wrought and brought to pass all these things, making them believe that all that they said was true, all that they did was good and godly: and that to hold with them in all things, against Father, Mother, Prince, Country, and all men, was most meritorious. And indeed what mischief will not blind ignorance lead simple men unto?

By ignorance the Jewish Clergy induced the common People to ask the delivery of Barabbas the seditious murderer, and to sue for the cruel crucifying of our Saviour Christ, for that he subdued the ambition, superstition, and other vices of the High Priests and Clergy. For as our Saviour Christ testified, that those who crucified him will not what they did: lo both the holy Apostle St. Paul say, If they had known, if they had not been ignorant, they would never have crucified the Lord of glory: but they knew not what they did. Our Saviour Christ himself also foretold that it should come to pass by ignorance, that those who should persecute and murder his true Apostles and Disciples, should think they did GOD acceptable sacrifice, and good service: as it is also verified even at this day.

And in this ignorance have the Bishops of Rome kept the people of GOD, specially the common sort, by no means so much, as by withholding the Word of GOD from them, and by keeping it under the vail of an unknown strange tongue. For as it served the ambitious humour of the Bishops of Rome, to compel all Nations to use the natural language of the City of Rome, where they were Bishops, which served a certain acknowledging of submission unto them: so yet served it much more their crafty purpose, thereby to keep all people so blind, that they not knowing what they prayed, what they believed, what they were commanded by GOD, might take all their commandments for GOD'S. For as they would not suffer the holy Scriptures of Church
The Sixth Part of the Sermon

Service to be used or had in any other Language than the Latine: so were very few, even of the most simple people taught the Lords Prayer, the Articles of the Faith, and the Ten Commandments, otherwise than in Latine, which they understood not: by which universal ignorance, all men were ready to believe whatsoever they said, and to do whatsoever they commanded.

For to imitate the Apostles phrase: If the Emperors Subjects had known out of GODS Word their duty to their Prince, they would not have suffered the Bishop of Rome to persuade them to forsake their Sovereign Lord the Emperor against their oath and fidelity, and to rebel against him, only for that he call Images (unto the which Idolatry was committed) out of the Churches, which the Bishop of Rome bare them in hand to be hereticks. If they had known of GODS Word but as much as the Ten Commandments, they should have found that the Bishop of Rome was not only a Traitor to the Emperor his Liege Lord, but to GOD also, and an horrible blasphemer of his majesty, in calling his holy Word and Commandment hereticks; and that which the Bishop of Rome took for a just cause to rebel against his lawful Prince they might have known to be a doubting and tripling of his most heinous wickedness, beaped with horrible imperty and blasphemy.

But lest the present people should know too much, he would not let them have as much of GODS Word as the Ten Commandments, wholly and perfectly withdrawing from them the second Commandment, that he might keep his imperty, by a subtle sacrilege. Had the Emperors Subjects likewise known and been of any understanding in GODS Word, they would at other times have rebelled against their Sovereign Lord, and by their Rebellion have holpen to depose him, only for that the Bishop of Rome did bear them in hand that it was Sodom and hereticks too, for the Emperor to give any Ecclesiastical dignities or promotions to his learned Chaplains, or other of his learned Clergy, which all Christian Emperors before him had done without controlment; would they, I say, for that the Bishop of Rome bare them so in hand, have rebelled by the space of more than forty years, together against him, with so much shedding of Christian blood, and murder of so many thousands of Christians, and finally have depoected their Sovereign Lord, had they known and had in GODS Word any understanding at all: specially had they known that they had all this to pluck from their Sovereign Lord, and his successors for ever, that ancient right of the Empire, to give it unto the Roman Clergy, and to the Bishop of Rome, that he might for the consecration of one Archbishop, and for the Roman Bish, which he called a Pall, scarce worth twelve pence, receive many thousand crowns of Gold, and of other Bishops, likewise great sums of mony for their Bulls, which is Sodom indeed: would, I say, Christian men and Subjects by Rebellion have spent so much Christian blood, and have depoected their natural, most noble, and most valiant Prince, to bring the matter finally to this pass, had they known what they did, or had any understanding in GODS Word at all? And these ambitious Murmurs the Bishops of Rome have over-flowed all Italy and Germany with streams of Christian blood, and by the Rebellions of ignorant Subjects against their natural Lords and Emperors, whom they have likewise therunto by such false pretences: so is there no Country in Christendom, which by their like means and false pretences hath,

hath not been over-sprinkled with the blood of Subjects by Rebellion against their natural Sovereigns, stirred up by the same Bishops of Rome.

And to use one example of our own Country: The Bishop of Rome did pick a quarrel to King John of England, about the election of Stephen Langton to the Bishoprick of Canterbury; wherein the King had ancient right, being used by his Progenitors, all Christian Kings of England before him the Bishops of Rome having no right, but had begun then to usurp upon the Kings of England, and all other Christian Kings, as they had before done against their Sovereign Lords the Emperors: proceeding even by the same wars and means, and likewise cursing King John, and discharging his Subjects of their oath of loyalty unto their Sovereign Lord. Now had Englishmen at that time known their duty to their Prince let forth in GODS Word, would a great many of Nobles, and other English men natural Subjects, for this foreign and unnatural Usurper his vain curze of the King, and for his known discharging of them of their oath and fidelity to their natural Lord, upon no tender or no ground at all, have rebelled against their Sovereign Lord the King: Would English Subjects have taken part against the King of England, and against English men, with the French King and French men, being incensed against this Realm by the Bishop of Rome? Would they have lent for, and received the Dolphin of France with a great Army of French men into the Realm of England? Would they have sworn fidelity to the Dolphin of France, breaking their oath of fidelity to their natural Lord the King of England, and have stood under the Dolphins Banner displayed against the King of England? Would they have expelled their Sovereign Lord the King of England out of London, the chief City of England, and out of the greatest part of England, upon the South side of the Trent, even unto Lincoln, and out of Lincoln it self also, and have delivered the possession thereof unto the Dolphin of France, whereof he kept the possession a great while: Would they being English men have pored to great shedding of English blood, and other infinite mischiefs and miseries unto England, their natural Country, as did follow those cruel wars and traiterous rebellions, the fruits of the Bishop of Rome's blessings: Would they have driven their natural Sovereign Lord the King of England to such extremity, that he was forced to submit himself unto that foreign falle Usurper the Bishop of Rome, who compelled him to surrender up the Crown of England into the hands of his Legat, who in token of possession kept it in his hands divers days, and then delivered it again to King John, upon that condition that the King and his Successors, Kings of England, would hold the Crown and Kingdom of England of the Bishop of Rome and his Successors, as the City and the City of the said Bishops of Rome for ever: in token whereof the Kings of England should also pay a yearly Tribute to the said Bishop of Rome as his Successors and Liege men, Would English men have brought their Sovereign Lord, and natural Country into this shaldom and submission to a falle foreign Usurper, had they known and had any understanding in GODS Word at all: Out of which most lamentable case, and miserable tyranny, raviny, and spoil of the most greedy Romish Wolves ensuing hereupon, the Kings and Realm of England could not rid themselves by the space of many years after: the Bishop of Rome by his ministers continually not only only spoiling the Realm and Kings of England of infinite treasure, but also with the same money hiring and maintaining foreign enemies against the Realm and Kings of England, to keep them in such his subjection, that they should not refuse to pay whatsoever those unfa-liable wolves did greedily gape for, and suffer whatsoever those most cruel tyrants would lay upon them. Would Englishmen have suffered this? Would they by Rebellion have caused this yow, and all for the Bishop of Rome's caulest curse, had they in those days known and understood, that GOD doth curse the blessings and blest the cursings of such wicked usurping Bishops and Tyrants? As it appeared afterward in King Henry the Eighth his days, and King Edward the Sixth, and in our gracious Sovereigns days that now is, where neither the Papes curses, nor GODS manifold blessings are wanting. But in King Johns time, the Bishop of Rome understanding the hart blindness, ignorance of GODS Word, and superstition of Englishmen, and how much they were inclined to worship the Babylonish Beast of Rome, and to fear all his threatening, and caulest curses, he abused them thus, and by their Rebellion brought this noble Realm and Kings of England under his most cruel tyranny, and to be a Sway of his most vile and unfruitful obstouscurts and robberies, for a long and a great deal too long a time. And to join unto the reports of Histories, matters of later memory, could the Bishop of Rome have raised the Rebellions in the North and West Countries in the times of King Henry and King Edward, but by abusing of the ignorant people: Or is it not most evident that the Bishop of Rome hath of late attempted by his Irish Patriarchs and Bishops, sent from Rome with his Bulls, (whereof some were apprehended) to break down the bars and hedges of the publick peace in Ireland, only upon confidence easily to abuse the ignorance of the wild Irish men, Or who feed not that upon like confidence, yet more lately be hath likewise procured the breach of the publick peace in England, (with the long and blest continuance whereof he is sore grieved) by the ministrv of his disguised Chap-tains, creeping in Lay-mens apparel into the houses, and whispering in the ears of certain Northern borderers, being then most ignorant of their duty to GOD and to their Prince of all people of the Realm, whom therefore as most meet and ready to execute his intended purpose, be hath by the said ignorant Bafis-Priests, as blind guides leading the blind, brought those silly blind Subjects into the deep ditch of borrible Rebellion, damnable to themselves, and very dangerous to the state of the Realm, had not GOD of his mercy miraculously calmed that raging tempest, not only without any Shipwreck of the Commonwealth, but almost without any shedding of Christian and English blood at all.

And it is yet much more to be lamented, that not only common people, but some other youthful or unskilful Princes also, suffer themselves to be abused by the Bishop of Rome, his Cardinals and Bishops, opppelling of Christian men their faithful Subjects either themselves, or else by persuading the force and strength of Christian men, to be conveyed out of one Country, to oppels true Christians in another Country and by these means open an entry unto Gods and Infidels, into the posfession of Christian Realms, Countries: other Christian Princes in the mean time, by the Bishop of Rome procuring also, bring to occupied in Civil
against Wilful Rebellion.

Civil Wars, or troubled with Revellions, that they have neither leisure nor ability to confer their common forces to the defence of their fellow Christians against such invasions of the common enemies of Christendom, the Infidels and Dissenters. Would to God we might only read and hear out of the histories of old, and not also see and feel these new and present oppressions of Christians, rebellions of Subjects, effusion of Christian blood, destruction of Christian men, decay and ruine of Christendom, increase of Pagans, most lamentable and pitifull to behold being procured in these our days, as well as in times past, by the Bishop of Rome and his Ministers, abusing the ignorance of God's Word, yet remaining in some Christian Princes and People, by which sorrow and bitter fruits of ignorance, all men ought to be moved to give ear and credit to God's Word, shewing as most truly, so most plainly how great a mischief ignorance is, and again how great and how good a gift of God's knowledge in God's Word is. And to begin with the Romish Clergy, who though they do brag now, as did sometime the Jewish Clergy, that they cannot lack knowledge; yet both God by his holy Prophets both charge them with ignorance, and threaten them also, that they had repelled the knowledge of God's Word and Law, from themselves, and from his people, that he will repel them, that they shall be no more his Priests. God likewise charged Princes as well as Priests, that they should endeavour themselves to get understanding and knowledge in God's Word, threatening his heavy wrath and destruction unto them, if they fail thereof. And the wise man saith to all men universally, Priests, Princes, and People: There is no knowledge, there is no good nor health to the soul; and that all men be vain in whom is not the knowledge of God and his holy Word, that they who walk in darkness, know not whither they go; and that the people that will not learn, shall fall into great mischief, as did the people of Israel, who for their ignorance in God's Word, were sent into captivity, and when by ignorance afterward they would not know the time of their Visitation, but crucified Christ our Saviour, persecuted his holy Apostles, and so ignorant and blind that when they did most wickedly and cruelly, they thought they did God good and acceptable service (as so many by ignorance think even at this day;) finally, through their ignorance and blindness, their Country, Towns, Cities, Jerusalem it self, and the Temple of God, were all most horribly destroyed, the most chiefe part of their people slain, and the rest led into most miserable captivity. For he that made them had no pity upon them, neither would spare them, and all for their ignorance.

And the holy Scriptures do teach, that the people that will not see with their eyes, nor hear with their ears, to learn, and to understand with their hearts, cannot be converted, and saved. And the wicked themselves, being damned in hell, shall confess their ignorance in God's Word to have brought them thereunto, saying, We have erred from the way of the truth, and the light of righteousness hath not shined unto us, and the Sun of understanding hath not rised unto us, we have walked ourselves in the way of wickedness and delusion, and have walked cumbersome and crooked ways: but the way of the Lord have we not known.

And as well our Saviour himself, as his Apostle St. Paul both teach. teach that the ignorance of GOD'S WORD cometh of the Devil, is the cause of all vice and misjudging (asfalleth out with ignorant Subjects, who can rather esp'y a little more in the eye of the Prince, or a Counsellor, then a great beam in their own) and universally it is the cause of all evil, and finally of eternal damnation: GOD'S judgment being severer towards those, who when the light of CHRIST'S GOSPEL is come into the world, do delight most in darknes of ignorance, than in the light of knowledge in GOD'S WORD. For all are commanded to read and hear, to search and study the holy Scriptures, and are promised understanding to be given them from GOD, if they do: all are charged not to believe either any dead man, nor if an Angel should speak from heaven, much les if the Pope do speak from Rome against or contrary to the Word of GOD, from the which we may not decline, nether to the right hand nor to the left.

In GOD'S WORD Princes must learn how to obey GOD, and to govern men: in GOD'S WORD Subjects must learn obedience both to GOD and their Princes. Old men and young, rich and poor, all men and women, all estates, sexes and ages, are taught their several duties in the Word of GOD. For the Word of GOD is bright giving light unto all men's eyes, the shining lamp directing all men's paths at steps.
Let us therefore awake from the sleep and darknes of ignorance, and open our eyes that we may see the light; let us rise from the works of darknes, that we may escape eternal darknes, the due reward thereof, and let us walk in the light of GOD'S WORD: whereas we have light, as becometh the children of light, so directing the steps of our lives in that way which leadeth to light and life everlasting, that we may finally obtain and enjoy the same: which GOD the Father of lights, who dwelleth in light incomprehensible, and inaccessible grant unto us, through the light of the World our Saviour JESUS CHRIST. Unto whom with the holy Ghost, one most glorious GOD, be all honour, praise, and thank-giving for ever and ever. Amen.

Thus have you heard the Sixth Part of this HOMILY.
Now, good People, let us pray.
THE PRAYER
As in that time it was Published.

O Most mighty God, the Lord of hosts, the Governor of all Creatures, the only giver of all Victories, who alone are able to strengthen the Weak against the Mighty, and to vanquish infinite multitudes of thine Enemies with the Countenance of a few of thy servants calling upon thy Name, and trusting in thee: Defend, O Lord, thy Servant and our Governor under thee, our Queen Elizabeth, and all thy People committed to her charge. O Lord, withstand the cruelty of all those which be Common Enemies as well to the Truth of thy Eternal Word, as to their own natural Prince and Country, and manifestly to this Crown and Realm of England, which thou hast of thy Divine Providence assigned in these our days to the Government of thy Servant, our Sovereign and gracious Queen. O most merciful Father, (if it be thy holy Will) make soft and tender the sordy hearts of all those that exalt themselves against thy Truth, and seek either to trouble the quiet of this Realm of England, or to oppress the Crown of the same; and convert them to the knowledge of thy Son the only Saviour of the World, Jesus Christ, that we and they may jointly glorify thy Necessies. Lighten, we beseech thee, their ignorant hearts to embrace the truth of thy Word, or else to abate their cruelty. (O most mighty Lord) that this our Christian Realm, with others that confess thy holy GDS-
The Prayer.

PEL, may obtain by thine aid and strength, surety from all Enemies, without shedding of Christian blood, whereby all they which be oppressed with their tyranny, may be relieved, and they which be in fear of their cruelty, may be comforted: and finally that all Christian Realms, and especially this Realm of England, may by thy Defence and Protection continue in the truth of the Gospel, and enjoy perfect Peace, Quietness, and security: and that we for these thy Mercies, jointly all together with one consonant heart and voice, may thankfully render to thee all laud and praise, that we, knit in one godly concord and unity amongst our selves, may continually magnify thy glorious Name, who with thy Son our Saviour Jesus Christ, and the Holy Ghost, are one Eternal, Almighty, and most merciful GOD: To whom be all laud and praise, World without end. Amen.
A THANKSGIVING
The Suppression of the last Rebellion.

O Heavenly and most merciful Father, the defender of those that put their trust in thee, the sure Fortress of all them that flee to thee for succour: who of thy most just judgments for our disobedience and rebellion against thy holy Word, and for our sinful and wicked living, nothing answering to our holy profession, whereby we have given an occasion that thy holy name hath been blasphemed amongst the ignorant, hast of late both sore abashed the whole Realm, and People of England, with the terror and danger of Rebellion, thereby to awake us out of our dead sleep of careless security: and hast yet by the miseries following the same Rebellion, more sharply punished part of our Countrymen and Christian brethren, who have more nearly felt the same: and most dreadfully hast scourged some of the seditious persons with terrible executions, justly inflicted for their disobedience unto thee, and to thy servant their Sovereign, to the example of us all, and to the warning, correction, and amendment of thy servants, of thine accustomed goodness, turning always the wickedness of evil men to the profit of them that fear thee: who in thy judgments remembering thy mercy, hast by thy assistance given the victory to thy Servant our Queen, her true Nobility, and and faithful Subjects, with so little, or rather no effusion of Christian blood, as also might have justly ensued, to the exceeding comfort of all sorrowful Christian hearts, and that of thy fatherly pity, and merciful goodness only, and even for thine own name sake, without any our desert at all. Wherefore we render unto thee most humble and hearty thanks for these thy great mercies shewed unto us, who had deserved harsher punishment, most humbly beseeching thee to grant unto all us that confess thy holy Name, and profess the true and perfect Religion of thy holy Gospel, thy heavenly grace to shew our selves in our living according to our profession: that we truly knowing thee in thy blessed Word, may obediently walk in thy holy Commandments, and that we being warned by this thy Fatherly correction, do provoke thy just wrath against us no more: but may enjoy the continuance of thy great mercies towards us, thy right hand, as in this, so in all other invasions, rebellions, and dangers, continually saving and defending our Church, our Realm, our Queen, and People of England, that all our Posterities ensuing, confessing thy holy Name, professing thy holy Gospel, and leading an holy life, may perpetually praise and magnifie thee, with thy only Son Jesus Christ our Saviour, and the Holy Ghost: To whom be all laud, praise, glory, and Empire, for ever and ever. Amen.
